US Senators Ask Slash In Housing

Need for Defense Space Conceded by Senators Ives, Schoeppel, Who Ask Caution

Sparkman Agrees

Alabama Democrat Has Equivalent Stand on Situation

Washington, Jan. 17 (AP)—Two Republican lawmakers demanded today that "inflationary aspects" of President Truman's big-scale defense housing program be held to a minimum.

G.O.P. Senators Ives of New York and Schoeppel of Kansas declared that while some sort of program to provide housing for defense workers is necessary, Congress must see to it that the project does not dangerously strain the nation's economy.

Senator Sparkman (D.-Ala.) said he agrees the administration program could increase inflationary pressures. He added, however, that the plan is vitally important and must be undertaken despite the inflation danger.

"Adequate housing for our defense workers is just as absolutely necessary as it is that they have food, clothing and education facilities for their families," Sparkman told reporters.

Sparkman, Ives and Schoeppel all are members of the Senate Banking Committee, which scheduled another hearing on the administration bill today. Officials of the Federal Security Administration were called to testify.

Would Authorize Billions

The measure would authorize the Federal Housing Administration (FHA) to insure an additional $3,000,000,000 worth of new construction by private industry.

Government officials have estimated that about $1,000,000,000 of that total would be earmarked for defense area dwellings under the program, which they said would be on a standby basis until absolutely needed.

The remaining $2,000,000,000 in mortgage authority would be handled under the regular FHA insurance program which has been in operation several years, Raymond M. Foley, housing and home finance administrator, told the committee yesterday.

The bill also provides for federal grants for community facilities, such as schools, in new housing developments. Another provision would authorize the government to build defense housing if private industry could not supply it.

U. S. Moves Nearer Full Price Order

Action Due to Come as Soon as E.S.A. Gets Enough Workers for Job

Progress Reported

Fear of Inequities Has Slowed Imposition of Controls

Washington, Jan. 17 (AP)—The government will order a general price and wage freeze within the next five or six days, a high-level government source reported today.

Action Expected

Washington, Jan. 17 (AP)—Spurred by the highest food prices in American history, the government today moved significantly nearer general controls over prices and wages.

A nationwide price-wage freeze is widely expected whenever the economic stabilization agency gathers a staff able to handle such an order without being snowed under. The E.S.A. is making progress toward getting such a staff.

Here are key developments on the stabilization front:

1. E.S.A. employes rose to 450, an increase of 100 in the last 10 days.

2. Work of opening field offices was rushed. E.S.A. officials said the 13 regional offices will be "in business" by Feb. 1, some of them earlier. And the regional offices will turn to the job of opening district offices as soon as possible. Max McCullough, former O.P.A. deputy administrator, is organizing the field staff.

Leaders Are Chosen

3. Industry leaders were being chosen rapidly to head E.S.A. "commodity divisions," such as foods, chemicals, consumer goods, and forest products. E.S.A. officials said these men will be ready to move into their jobs at a moment's notice.

4. The Bureau of Labor Statistics announced that the retail prices of 50 foods in eight large cities have hit a new peak. On Jan. 2, the average of those prices stood at 218.9 per cent of the 1935-1939 average. During the two weeks, prior to Jan. 2, the price level had surpassed the former high of 216.8 on July 15, 1948.

5. One government official—a man whose influence was extremely important in blocking a 30-day price freeze last week—told a reporter he is not against a freeze, but is only against doing it now, when the staff is still inadequate.

Inequities Feared

This official, who cannot be identified, said a freeze of prices, with such a small staff, would create a vast number of inequities, would be difficult to enforce, and would tend to drive low-profit articles out of the market.

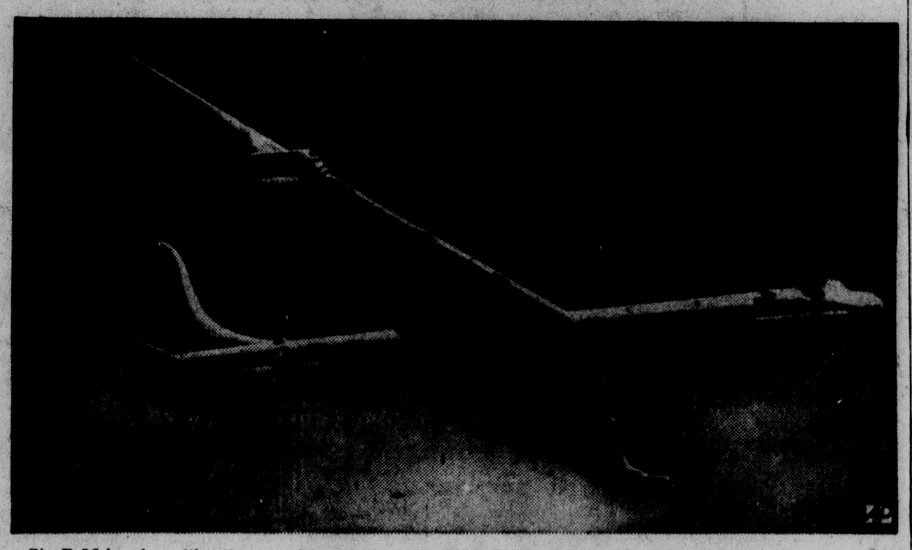
But he said he would not favor waiting until the E.S.A. is fully staffed before risking a freeze.

He said he would prefer to see detailed price ceilings worked out in advance in certain complicated cases—such as meat and clothing prices—because a blanket freeze order would be least likely to prove practical in those fields.

This official would not name a date when a flat, general price freeze might be ordered. Some E.S.A. leaders believe the staff can be in sufficiently good shape within two to four weeks.

If prices are frozen, wages must be controlled, too, under the Defense Production Act. The nine-man Wage Stabilization Board, which is one arm of the E.S.A., is at work on a wage control formula which it will recommend to E.S.A. Administrator Alan Valentine.

America's B-36 Bomber



Six B-36 bombers like the one shown here arrived in England Jan. 16, after a 5,000-mile flight from Texas, the first time the giant bombers have flown to Europe. The planes are equipped with six propeller engines and four jet engines. They have a range of 10,000 miles and are capable of a speed in excess of 435 miles per hour. The flight was described as a routine training mission, and on their return the planes will fan out on separate missions ranging from 25 to 40 hours on the homeland flight to Fort Worth.

Forces Test Strength of Red Troops

Allies Inflict 500 Casualties on Chinese in Hour; General Views Battle

Others Go to Front

Smith and Bolling Inspect Sectors Held by U.N. Units

Tokyo, Jan. 17 (AP)—Allied tank-infantry raider teams held firmly today to three western Korean outposts within striking range of 120,000 Chinese Red troops.

The scouting forces are on the third day of a mission to test enemy strength south of Seoul.

They ran into their toughest fight Tuesday at Suwon.

The U. S. Army chief of staff, Gen. J. Lawton Collins, watched allied tanks, troops and warplanes rout a 1,000 man Red garrison force there.

Suwon is 20 air miles south of Seoul and closer still to the massing area of three Chinese armies south of the Han river and the old Korean capital.

The allied raiders swept into Suwon and—with allied warplanes strafing the fleeing Reds—inflicted 500 casualties in an hour-long skirmish.

On the central front, a spokesman said allied forces still occupied Yongwol, 30 miles southeast of Wonju.

Collins saw the Suwon fight on his tour of Korean battlefronts. He and Gen. Hoyt S. Vandenberg, U. S. Air Forces chief of staff, are leaving for Washington Wednesday night after their battlefront tours and conferences here with Gen. MacArthur.

Difficult for Reds

Vandenberg told a Tokyo news conference allied air power aimed to hit the Reds and their supply lines around the clock. The air general, just back from Korea, said the day and night air raids are making it difficult for the Reds to move supplies to the front over lengthening lines of communication.

Their supply problem will get tougher as the Communists move further south, Vandenberg said. But he said there was one drawback: "The airplane is an inefficient weapon against the individual soldier." Communist troops can move south along mountain trails or at widely spaced intervals on main roads.

Two Visit Front

Two other Washington Pentagon generals visited the front Wednesday. They are Lt. Gen. Walter Bedell Smith, central intelligence agency chief, and Maj. Gen. Alexander R. Bolling, U. S. Army Intelligence head.

All four arrived in Tokyo Sunday for high-level conferences and on-the-spot views of the Korean war.

An A.P. field dispatch said leading attack columns swept on Suwon from two directions and mowed down many of the surprised Chinese in the open. Some were caught without their guns.

"They came scurrying like rats out of houses in all directions," a lieutenant said.

Tanks Take Up Fight

Then 10 allied tanks took up the fight inside the city. Their guns blazed at Red hideouts for an hour.

Allied planes hit the town as the ground force withdrew. They rocketed and machinegunned troops on rooftops and Chinese fleeing north out of Suwon.

Other Allied scouting forces which had entered Osan, 28 air miles south of Seoul, and Kumyangjang, 25 air miles southeast of the old Korean capital, withdrew by plan at dusk Tuesday to positions just south of the two towns.

A blanket censorship imposed since noon Tuesday (10 p. m., EST, Monday) prevented the location by name of corps, divisional or lesser units. A security clampdown usually means a shifting in troop positions.

Morse Asks Draft At 18; Urges Plan

Fire Destroys Famed Troopship

Transport Washington Is Charred Hulk at Baltimore Pier

Baltimore, Jan. 17 (AP)—Wind-fanned flames swept down a $5,000,000 pier in Baltimore's south harbor last night, spread to a historic old troopship and left it a listing hulk—"good for nothing but scrap."

The ship, decommissioned in 1947, was the transport George Washington, which carried President Woodrow Wilson to and from Europe for the Versailles Peace Conference in 1919.

Placed back in service in 1941 at a cost of $8,800,000, a similar vessel couldn't be built now for less than 25 or 30 million dollars, according to officials of Bethlehem Steel Shipyards and the Maritime Commission here.

One coast guardsman and six firemen were hurt while battling the ten-alarm blaze. Only the serviceman was reported seriously injured.

He was guardsman Robert Long, 17, who plunged from the upper deck of the coast guard cutter Chinook while manning a fire hose. He was in Marine Hospital today under observation for a possible brain hemorrhage.

Tug Is Abandoned

A blazing tug was abondoned to sink near the burning pier, and two barges and a huge pile driving derrick being used in the building of Maryland's Chesapeake bay bridge were damaged.

The Gen. Edmund B. Alexander, another decommissioned troopship tied alongside the George Washington, escaped with only a scorched port side.

Even before the flames were out, the army and FBI announced they were beginning immediate investigations. They said nothing to indicate sabotage was suspected.

Neither would they speculate the costly blaze could be connected with mysterious fires that were discovered a few days ago about an hour apart on two other Baltimore piers. The fires were extinguished before serious damage was done.

The 1,000-foot pier, built during the early part of World War II, was used to load thousands of tons of ammunition for overseas. It was put in a standby status shortly after hostilities ended. There was no ammunition reported in the area.

Senator Proposes 25-Year Program, Because of Tension

Washington, Jan. 17 (AP)—Oregon's Republican Senator Morse today backed the Pentagon's plan to draft 18-year-olds and went on to urge a 25-year mobilization program because "we face a period of tension that long with Russia and communism."

Morse is a member of the Senate Armed Services Preparedness Subcommittee. It is considering a proposal by Secretary of Defense Marshall for a permanent universal military service and training program. Marshall's plan calls for lowering the draft age from 19 to 18, and stretching service from 21 to 27 months.

After a week of testimony by Marshall and Assistant Secretary of Defense Anna M. Rosenberg, the chairman of the subcommittee, Senator Lyndon Johnson (D.-Tex.), remained sharply critical of the proposal.

May Require Revision

Morse declared that a quarter-century period of military alert may require "a widespread revision of our educational systems." He spoke to a reporter prior to the appearance (10 a. m., EST) before the subcommittee of a group of educational leaders who helped develop the new military training proposal.

"The manpower program is going to confront us for 25 years," Morse said. "It may be that long before we can feel safe. We must gear our economy, manpower and military plans for a long pull."

If many thousands of young men must take basic military training each year, he said, most college courses should be shortened from the present four years to three.

Concentration Urged

"There is not much sense in going to school for only nine months a year after the sophomore year in high school," he said. "We should give students concentrated courses the year around."

"At present the period between 18 and 19 often is wasted," Morse added. "Employers do not want to take and train a man who may be drafted in a year. The boy cannot make his college plans until he completes his basi training."

Claim Democrats Will Oppose Single Budget

Washington, Jan. 17 (AP)—Republican members of the House Appropriations Committee claimed enough Democratic support today to prevent lumping the federal budget in a single bill.

Rep. Taber of New York, senior Republican on the committee, said the 20 GOP members have agreed informally to oppose the one-package appropriations plan this year.

"Most Republicans will oppose it," Taber said in an interview. "We need about six or seven Democrats and I think we will have enough votes."

A decision on the proposal may come next Monday when the appropriations committee of 30 Democrats and 20 Republicans holds its first meeting of the new Congress. The committee did not vote on the one-package plan last year but accepted a decision that appropriations would be handled in a single measure instead of in a dozen departmental bills as in past years.

Vandenberg Says Air Forces Could Hit Back Quickly

Unheralded Assault on US Mainland Could Be Handled, Chief Declares

Tokyo, Jan. 17 (AP)—Gen. Hoyt S. Vandenberg said today the air forces likely would be able to strike back quickly any unheralded air assault against the United States mainland.

"Even in undeclared war," the air force chief of staff told a news conference, "there would be certain indications which, if properly utilized, should put us in a position to retaliate almost immediately."

He explained that a long-range air attack "cannot be launched instantly."

He said the so-called "radar fence" guarding air approach to the United States was just going in.

Vandenberg said he visited Korea especially to see close tactical air support and night operations by B-26 bombers. The aim, he said, is to achieve 24-hour air support for U.N. ground troops.

Made Very Difficult

Vandenberg said night intruder and armed reconnaissance missions are making it very difficult for Chinese Communists to get their supplies down to the fighting front in Korea.

"And as the enemy moves farther south his difficulty will be greater," he said. "They have to move on the roads longer, and they are exposed to air attack longer."

Vandenberg said the "most efficient" way to deny the Chinese weapons and supplies would be strategic air attack on their factories in Manchuria and China, "but you understand we can't do that."

Vandenberg added that there probably isn't a target in Korea right now worth using the atomic bomb against.

Asked if the A-bomb could be employed effectively against Mukden, in Manchuria, and Chinese cities, Vandenberg replied:

"I venture to guess we first would have to find out what military objectives were in the area, and then decide whether to waste an A-bomb. I say 'waste' because perhaps those targets could be destroyed just as well by weapons other than the atomic bombs.

"It is a weapon which should be used against war-making potential rather than against people."

Boy Kills Mother

Cromwell, Okla., Jan. 17 (AP)—Mrs. Fran Orr's five-year-old son, Larry, accidentally shot and killed her yesterday and then called the telephone operator and cried: "Please help me, I shot my mother." Seminole County Attorney Tom Smith said the boy thought the gun was unloaded. Frank Orr, the husband and father, works for the Oklahoma Highway Department. There are three other children in the family. Mrs. Orr was 33.

10 Persons Killed

Bogota, Colombia, Jan. 17 (AP)—A bus carrying 28 pasengers plunged into a 100-foot gorge today and varying press reports said between seven and 10 persons were killed. The accident occurred near Salamina, about 100 miles northwest of here.

Air Force Expansion Planned by Nation

Washington, Jan. 17 (AP)—A top officer said today the air force intends to expand to 95 to 100 groups of planes and 971,000 officers and men. This about doubles its pre-Korean war strength.

Lt. Gen. Idwal Edwards, air force deputy chief of staff in charge of operations, gave that report to a House Armed Services subcommittee.

As of last June, the air force had 412,000 officers and men and 48 air groups. The number of planes in an air group varies with the purpose of the aircraft, ranging from 18 heavy bombers to 75 fighters.

Edwards testified at hearings on a bill to reorganize the air force.

His testimony did not bring out when the air force expects to reach its expansion goals.

Byrnes' Stand Is Non-Isolationist

Large Audience Is Responsive to Statements

Columbia, S. C., Jan. 17 (AP)—If Gov. James F. Byrnes can speak for the south—and many southerners say that he does—there is practically no isolationism left in this part of the United States.

Byrnes took a very strong line yesterday in the speech that followed his inauguration as governor of South Carolina.

He went all-out for military aid to western Europe, including the use of American troops. And he said bluntly that if the United Nations does not authorize the bombing of Red China then the American divisions (which constitute the bulk of the U.N. force) should be withdrawn from Korea.

An unusually large audience cheered both points when Byrnes expressed them. His speech was much more than a sectional address, made on the occasion of a sectional ceremony.

Jagged Metal Only Evidence of Plane Crash on Coast

Reason Behind Accident Killing 10 Sought by Officers in Washington

Edwall, Wash., Jan. 17 (AP)—Jagged pieces of airplane metal sticking up through snow on an eastern Washington wheat field were the only visible evidence today that 10 persons died there.

Investigators began to probe the snow and question witnesses today. They are looking for the reason behind the crash of a Northwest Airlines plane shortly after noon yesterday.

There were seven passengers and a crew of three aboard. Coroner Fred Campbell said four victims had been identified from personal effects. He said fingerprints would be necessary to identify others.

The plane, a twin-engined Martin 202, was torn to shreds. It was on a flight from Chicago to Seattle, when it stopped at Spokane to pick up passengers. Thirteen minutes after it took off the pilot messaged by radio that he was "in trouble" and losing altitude. Moments later the plane smashed into the ground near the L. E. Bundy farmhouse 3½ miles north of Edwall.

Craft Exploded

It struck with terrific violence and exploded. Bundy and his wife said it sounded like the plane was in a power dive.

Bundy ran the 500 feet from his house to the wreckage. But there was nothing he could do. There was no sign of life, nor even of a whole body.

Northwest Airlines released this list of the passengers and crew aboard when it left Spokane:

The passengers — Curtis Edwards, Yakima, Wash.; W. J. Craft, San Francisco; Robert R. Mann, Tacoma, Wash.; Mr. and Mrs. G. J. Milligan, Fairfax, Va.; Charles Wood, Seattle and W. H. Goodlowe, San Francisco.

The crew — Pilot Lloyd Rickman, 33; Co-Pilot Edmund J. Gander, 28, and Stewardess Joan Tabor, 22, all of Seattle.

Republican Legislators Accuse Democrats Of Waging False Fight Against Rent Boosts

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 17 (AP)—Republican legislators today accused the Democrats of waging a phony fight against an official plan to permit residential rent increases up to 15 per cent.

The GOP charged that the Legislature's Democratic minority leaders were "playing politics" and trying to "hoax" tenants by their flat opposition to the new rent control plan drafted by State Rent Czar Joseph D. McGoldrick.

They accused the Democrats of:

1—"Deliberately" implying that the McGoldrick plan would authorize "across-the-board rent increases" of 15 per cent.

2—Insincere opposition to the plan's four per cent "fair net return" formula for landlords.

The Republicans reiterated that the 15 per cent increases permitted under the McGoldrick plan would affect less than one-third—possibly only 20 per cent—of the estimated 5,000,000 tenants protected by the present state rent "freeze."

They also contended that the Democrats favored "an unlimited fair net return" formula for landlords last year. They claimed that many Democrats had expressed approval of the McGoldrick "fair net return" method on which to base rent increases.

McGoldrick said last night that the proposed program was neither a "landlord plan" nor a "tenant's plan." He added that he had tried to "produce a fair and reasonable plan."

McGoldrick spoke in New York city at a dinner-meeting of the management division of the Real Estate Board of New York, Inc. He said:

"Unless there is some equalization of rents—until all landlords are at least allowed a minimum profit—I do not see how there could be equitable controls now or a basis upon which to approach eventual decontrol, however far away decontrol may be."

"Accordingly," he continued, "the proposed regulations provide generally for the same basic controls of rents and evictions that are in the present regulations, with every continuing protection and safeguard for the tenant of housing accommodations which had been intended for tenant occupancy, and with the allowance—the novel part of the new rent control plan—of a minimum return for landlords who are now being deprived of that return."

Governor Dewey, who appointed McGoldrick last year when the state went into the rent control business, has not commented on the plan.

Republican leaders indicate cautiously it will not be rejected by the legislature, although a few hint there may be some changes. Some parliamentary authorities, however, contend the Legislature must either reject or accept the McGoldrick plan in

Dewey's Blast at Truman Starts Talk About Future

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 17 (AP)—Governor Dewey's blast at "vast increases" for non-defense spending in President Truman's new budget touched off fresh speculation today over Dewey's political future.

Some observers concluded that Dewey might be warding off any offer to join the Truman cabinet in order to stay in the clear for another possible shot at the Republican nomination in 1952.

Dewey accused the President yesterday of imperiling "essential unity" on national defense by proposing a $1,400,000,000 increase in spending on Fair Deal domestic programs.

Dewey termed it "a serious venture into politics-as-usual" and said the country could not afford this in time of crisis.

Apparently referring to the possible effect of increased non-defense spending on unity behind the defense program, Dewey commented:

This "well could be the straw that broke the camel's back."

Although Dewey supports the administration foreign policy of combatting communism on a world-wide front, his new criticism of the President's home-front policies brought speculation as to possible political factors.

In reply to a question as to whether he spoke as titular leader of the Republican party, Dewey replied:

"I'm saying what I think is right—as a citizen and as governor. Just as Tom Dewey. Take it as you will."

Some observers wondered whether the attack on President Truman's non-defense spending might not have been launched to:

1—Reassure Republicans that Dewey was not playing political

Rejection Reported

Tokyo, Thursday, Jan. 18 (AP)—Peiping radio said today the Chinese Communist regime had rejected the latest United Nations Korean cease-fire proposal.

Welch Offers Bill

Washington, Jan. 17 (AP)—Representative Welch (D-Mo.) said he would reoffer in the House today a bill to provide $100,000 a year for life to each of the individuals who discover cures for cancer, polio and heart disease. Under his bill, the $100,000 annuities would be tax exempt. The surgeon general of the U. S. Public Health Service would be empowered to determine whether any research qualified by discovering a general cure for one of the diseases. His decision would be final and could not be challenged in court. Welch introduced a somewhat similar bill in the last Congress but no action was taken on it.

Two other Washington Pentagon generals visited the front Wednesday. They are Lt. Gen. Walter Bedell Smith, central intelligence agency chief, and Maj. Gen. Alexander R. Bolling, U. S. Army Intelligence head.

All four arrived in Tokyo Sunday for high-level conferences and on-the-spot views of the Korean war.

An A.P. field dispatch said leading attack columns swept on Suwon from two directions and mowed down many of the surprised Chinese in the open. Some were caught without their guns.

"They came scurrying like rats out of houses in all directions," a lieutenant said.

Tanks Take Up Fight

Then 10 allied tanks took up the fight inside the city. Their guns blazed at Red hideouts for an hour.

Allied planes hit the town as the ground force withdrew. They rocketed and machinegunned troops on rooftops and Chinese fleeing north out of Suwon.

Other Allied scouting forces which had entered Osan, 28 air miles south of Seoul, and Kumyangjang, 25 air miles southeast of the old Korean capital, withdrew by plan at dusk Tuesday to positions just south of the two towns.

A blanket censorship imposed since noon Tuesday (10 p. m., EST, Monday) prevented the location by name of corps, divisional or lesser units. A security clampdown usually means a shifting in troop positions.

Morse Asks Draft At 18; Urges Plan

Fire Destroys Famed Troopship

Transport Washington Is Charred Hulk at Baltimore Pier

Baltimore, Jan. 17 (AP)—Wind-fanned flames swept down a $5,000,000 pier in Baltimore's south harbor last night, spread to a historic old troopship and left it a listing hulk—"good for nothing but scrap."

The ship, decommissioned in 1947, was the transport George Washington, which carried President Woodrow Wilson to and from Europe for the Versailles Peace Conference in 1919.

Placed back in service in 1941 at a cost of $8,800,000, a similar vessel couldn't be built now for less than 25 or 30 million dollars, according to officials of Bethlehem Steel Shipyards and the Maritime Commission here.

One coast guardsman and six firemen were hurt while battling the ten-alarm blaze. Only the serviceman was reported seriously injured.

He was guardsman Robert Long, 17, who plunged from the upper deck of the coast guard cutter Chinook while manning a fire hose. He was in Marine Hospital today under observation for a possible brain hemorrhage.

Tug Is Abandoned

A blazing tug was abondoned to sink near the burning pier, and two barges and a huge pile driving derrick being used in the building of Maryland's Chesapeake bay bridge were damaged.

The Gen. Edmund B. Alexander, another decommissioned troopship tied alongside the George Washington, escaped with only a scorched port side.

Even before the flames were out, the army and FBI announced they were beginning immediate investigations. They said nothing to indicate sabotage was suspected.

Neither would they speculate the costly blaze could be connected with mysterious fires that were discovered a few days ago about an hour apart on two other Baltimore piers. The fires were extinguished before serious damage was done.

The 1,000-foot pier, built during the early part of World War II, was used to load thousands of tons of ammunition for overseas. It was put in a standby status shortly after hostilities ended. There was no ammunition reported in the area.

Senator Proposes 25-Year Program, Because of Tension

Washington, Jan. 17 (AP)—Oregon's Republican Senator Morse today backed the Pentagon's plan to draft 18-year-olds and went on to urge a 25-year mobilization program because "we face a period of tension that long with Russia and communism."

Morse is a member of the Senate Armed Services Preparedness Subcommittee. It is considering a proposal by Secretary of Defense Marshall for a permanent universal military service and training program. Marshall's plan calls for lowering the draft age from 19 to 18, and stretching service from 21 to 27 months.

After a week of testimony by Marshall and Assistant Secretary of Defense Anna M. Rosenberg, the chairman of the subcommittee, Senator Lyndon Johnson (D.-Tex.), remained sharply critical of the proposal.

May Require Revision

Morse declared that a quarter-century period of military alert may require "a widespread revision of our educational systems." He spoke to a reporter prior to the appearance (10 a. m., EST) before the subcommittee of a group of educational leaders who helped develop the new military training proposal.

"The manpower program is going to confront us for 25 years," Morse said. "It may be that long before we can feel safe. We must gear our economy, manpower and military plans for a long pull."

If many thousands of young men must take basic military training each year, he said, most college courses should be shortened from the present four years to three.

Concentration Urged

"There is not much sense in going to school for only nine months a year after the sophomore year in high school," he said. "We should give students concentrated courses the year around."

"At present the period between 18 and 19 often is wasted," Morse added. "Employers do not want to take and train a man who may be drafted in a year. The boy cannot make his college plans until he completes his basi training."

Claim Democrats Will Oppose Single Budget

Washington, Jan. 17 (AP)—Republican members of the House Appropriations Committee claimed enough Democratic support today to prevent lumping the federal budget in a single bill.

Rep. Taber of New York, senior Republican on the committee, said the 20 GOP members have agreed informally to oppose the one-package appropriations plan this year.

"Most Republicans will oppose it," Taber said in an interview. "We need about six or seven Democrats and I think we will have enough votes."

A decision on the proposal may come next Monday when the appropriations committee of 30 Democrats and 20 Republicans holds its first meeting of the new Congress. The committee did not vote on the one-package plan last year but accepted a decision that appropriations would be handled in a single measure instead of in a dozen departmental bills as in past years.

Vandenberg Says Air Forces Could Hit Back Quickly

Unheralded Assault on US Mainland Could Be Handled, Chief Declares

Tokyo, Jan. 17 (AP)—Gen. Hoyt S. Vandenberg said today the air forces likely would be able to strike back quickly any unheralded air assault against the United States mainland.

"Even in undeclared war," the air force chief of staff told a news conference, "there would be certain indications which, if properly utilized, should put us in a position to retaliate almost immediately."

He explained that a long-range air attack "cannot be launched instantly."

He said the so-called "radar fence" guarding air approach to the United States was just going in.

Vandenberg said he visited Korea especially to see close tactical air support and night operations by B-26 bombers. The aim, he said, is to achieve 24-hour air support for U.N. ground troops.

Made Very Difficult

Vandenberg said night intruder and armed reconnaissance missions are making it very difficult for Chinese Communists to get their supplies down to the fighting front in Korea.

"And as the enemy moves farther south his difficulty will be greater," he said. "They have to move on the roads longer, and they are exposed to air attack longer."

Vandenberg said the "most efficient" way to deny the Chinese weapons and supplies would be strategic air attack on their factories in Manchuria and China, "but you understand we can't do that."

Vandenberg added that there probably isn't a target in Korea right now worth using the atomic bomb against.

Asked if the A-bomb could be employed effectively against Mukden, in Manchuria, and Chinese cities, Vandenberg replied:

"I venture to guess we first would have to find out what military objectives were in the area, and then decide whether to waste an A-bomb. I say 'waste' because perhaps those targets could be destroyed just as well by weapons other than the atomic bombs.

Boy Kills Mother

Cromwell, Okla., Jan. 17 (AP)—Mrs. Fran Orr's five-year-old son, Larry, accidentally shot and killed her yesterday and then called the telephone operator and cried: "Please help me, I shot my mother." Seminole County Attorney Tom Smith said the boy thought the gun was unloaded. Frank Orr, the husband and father, works for the Oklahoma Highway Department. There are three other children in the family. Mrs. Orr was 33.

10 Persons Killed

Bogota, Colombia, Jan. 17 (AP)—A bus carrying 28 pasengers plunged into a 100-foot gorge today and varying press reports said between seven and 10 persons were killed. The accident occurred near Salamina, about 100 miles northwest of here.

Air Force Expansion Planned by Nation

Washington, Jan. 17 (AP)—A top officer said today the air force intends to expand to 95 to 100 groups of planes and 971,000 officers and men. This about doubles its pre-Korean war strength.

Lt. Gen. Idwal Edwards, air force deputy chief of staff in charge of operations, gave that report to a House Armed Services subcommittee.

As of last June, the air force had 412,000 officers and men and 48 air groups. The number of planes in an air group varies with the purpose of the aircraft, ranging from 18 heavy bombers to 75 fighters.

Edwards testified at hearings on a bill to reorganize the air force.

His testimony did not bring out when the air force expects to reach its expansion goals.

Large Audience Is Responsive to Statements

Columbia, S. C., Jan. 17 (AP)—If Gov. James F. Byrnes can speak for the south—and many southerners say that he does—there is practically no isolationism left in this part of the United States.

Byrnes took a very strong line yesterday in the speech that followed his inauguration as governor of South Carolina.

He went all-out for military aid to western Europe, including the use of American troops. And he said bluntly that if the United Nations does not authorize the bombing of Red China then the American divisions (which constitute the bulk of the U.N. force) should be withdrawn from Korea.

An unusually large audience cheered both points when Byrnes expressed them. His speech was much more than a sectional address, made on the occasion of a sectional ceremony.

Jagged Metal Only Evidence of Plane Crash on Coast

Reason Behind Accident Killing 10 Sought by Officers in Washington

Edwall, Wash., Jan. 17 (AP)—Jagged pieces of airplane metal sticking up through snow on an eastern Washington wheat field were the only visible evidence today that 10 persons died there.

Investigators began to probe the snow and question witnesses today. They are looking for the reason behind the crash of a Northwest Airlines plane shortly after noon yesterday.

There were seven passengers and a crew of three aboard, Coroner Fred Campbell said four victims had been identified from personal effects. He said fingerprints would be necessary to identify others.

The plane, a twin-engined Martin 202, was torn to shreds. It was on a flight from Chicago to Seattle, when it stopped at Spokane to pick up passengers. Thirteen minutes after it took off the pilot messaged by radio that he was "in trouble" and losing altitude. Moments later the plane smashed into the ground near the L. E. Bundy farmhouse 3½ miles north of Edwall.

Craft Exploded

It struck with terrific violence and exploded. Bundy and his wife said it sounded like the plane was in a power dive.

Bundy ran the 500 feet from his house to the wreckage. But there was nothing he could do. There was no sign of life, nor even of a whole body.

Northwest Airlines released this list of the passengers and crew aboard when it left Spokane:

The passengers — Curtis Edwards, Yakima, Wash.; W. J. Craft, San Francisco; Robert R. Mann, Tacoma, Wash.; Mr. and Mrs. G. J. Milligan, Fairfax, Va.; Charles Wood, Seattle and W. H. Goodlowe, San Francisco.

The crew — Pilot Lloyd Rickman, 33; Co-Pilot Edmund J. Gander, 28, and Stewardess Joan Tabor, 22, all of Seattle.

Republican Legislators Accuse Democrats Of Waging False Fight Against Rent Boosts

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 17 (AP)—Republican legislators today accused the Democrats of waging a phony fight against an official plan to permit residential rent increases up to 15 per cent.

The GOP charged that the Legislature's Democratic minority leaders were "playing politics" and trying to "hoax" tenants by their flat opposition to the new rent control plan drafted by State Rent Czar Joseph D. McGoldrick.

They accused the Democrats of:

1—"Deliberately" implying that the McGoldrick plan would authorize "across-the-board rent increases" of 15 per cent.

2—Insincere opposition to the plan's four per cent "fair net return" formula for landlords.

The Republicans reiterated that the 15 per cent increases permitted under the McGoldrick plan would affect less than one-third—possibly only 20 per cent—of the estimated 5,000,000 tenants protected by the present state rent "freeze."

They also contended that the Democrats favored "an unlimited fair net return" formula for landlords last year. They claimed that many Democrats had expressed approval of the McGoldrick "fair net return" method on which to base rent increases.

McGoldrick said last night that the proposed program was neither a "landlord plan" nor a "tenant's plan." He added that he had tried to "produce a fair and reasonable plan."

McGoldrick spoke in New York city at a dinner-meeting of the management division of the Real Estate Board of New York, Inc. He said:

"Unless there is some equalization of rents—until all landlords are at least allowed a minimum profit—I do not see how there could be equitable controls now or a basis upon which to approach eventual decontrol, however far away decontrol may be."

"Accordingly," he continued, "the proposed regulations provide generally for the same basic controls of rents and evictions that are in the present regulations, with every continuing protection and safeguard for the tenant of housing accommodations which had been intended for tenant occupancy, and with the allowance—the novel part of the new rent control plan—of a minimum return for landlords who are now being deprived of that return."

Governor Dewey, who appointed McGoldrick last year when the state went into the rent control business, has not commented on the plan.

Republican leaders indicate cautiously it will not be rejected by the legislature, although a few hint there may be some changes. Some parliamentary authorities, however, contend the Legislature must either reject or accept the McGoldrick plan in

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 17 (AP)—Governor Dewey's blast at "vast increases" for non-defense spending in President Truman's new budget touched off fresh speculation today over Dewey's political future.

Some observers concluded that Dewey might be warding off any offer to join the Truman cabinet in order to stay in the clear for another possible shot at the Republican nomination in 1952.

Dewey accused the President yesterday of imperiling "essential unity" on national defense by proposing a $1,400,000,000 increase in spending on Fair Deal domestic programs.

Dewey termed it "a serious venture into politics-as-usual" and said the country could not afford this in time of crisis.

Apparently referring to the possible effect of increased non-defense spending on unity behind the defense program, Dewey commented:

This "well could be the straw that broke the camel's back."

Although Dewey supports the administration foreign policy of combatting communism on a world-wide front, his new criticism of the President's home-front policies brought speculation as to possible political factors.

In reply to a question as to whether he spoke as titular leader of the Republican party, Dewey replied:

"I'm saying what I think is right—as a citizen and as governor. Just as Tom Dewey. Take it as you will."

Some observers wondered whether the attack on President Truman's non-defense spending might not have been launched to:

1—Reassure Republicans that Dewey was not playing political

Welch Offers Bill

Washington, Jan. 17 (AP)—Representative Welch (D-Mo.) said he would reoffer in the House today a bill to provide $100,000 a year for life to each of the individuals who discover cures for cancer, polio and heart disease. Under his bill, the $100,000 annuities would be tax exempt. The surgeon general of the U. S. Public Health Service would be empowered to determine whether any research qualified by discovering a general cure for one of the diseases. His decision would be final and could not be challenged in court. Welch introduced a somewhat similar bill in the last Congress but no action was taken on it.

Rejection Reported

Earnings Increase In Area Factories

Average weekly earnings of factory production workers in the state gained two cents an hour in November over October, 1950, a state report said today and it listed the Kingston-Albany area as the one showing "the largest gains in weekly earnings."

The Buffalo area, said the report by Industrial Commissioner Edward Corsi, reported the highest average weekly wages, $69.94 as against $68.42 in October. In November, 1949, the rate was $61.16.

In the Kingston area the average increased by $2.26 to $60.57, "due mainly to a wage increase," the report said. In the Albany area a $1.72 increase to $68 was due to a wage rise and the lengthening of the work week by a small hourly fraction.

The rates listed for Kingston, Newburgh and Poughkeepsie were the same; $60.57 in November, 1950, $58.31 in October. The November, 1949 rate was $52.48, and the average hourly rate for last November was $1.48 in the Central Hudson area.

Leaves From Boyle's Notebook

By WILLIAM C. BARNARD
(For Hal Boyle)

On the Korea Central Front (Delayed) (AP) — "This foxhole fighting is cold and tiresome and the nights get mighty long," said the sergeant.

He is Thomas G. Ziek, of San Antonio, Tex., and this (Jan. 15) was his 19th day of fighting from foxholes in temperatures down to 25 degrees below zero Fahrenheit.

Ziek and his buddy, Cpl. Robert E. Kelly, of Alliance, O., were carefully arranging fresh straw in the foxhole they shared. It was on a ridge south of Wonju.

Ahead was a hill from which North Koreans had staged an unsuccessful banzai attack two dawns before. You could also see part of the road that winds 36 frozen, narrow miles through three mountain passes from Wonju to Changju.

Snow was deep along the foxhole and whitened the pines on the ridge.

There were many other foxholes along the ridge. The red-eyed men who had dug them so painfully from the hard frozen earth sat in them or on their edges, their rifles always handy. They moved slowly, talking in low tones when they talked at all.

"We know we have a job to do," said Ziek. "We want to do it and get it over with."

It was 15 degrees below zero. There was a sporadic crackling of rifle fire, and continuous artillery volley thundering up the narrow valley.

Hard On The Feet

"I think the worst thing about being out here like this is what happens to your feet," Ziek went on.

"We all try to take care of our feet, massaging them and changing socks once a day. But when your feet get cold and numb at night, there's not a damn thing you can do. You can't ever take off your shoes at night. If the enemy charges you when you had your shoes off you'd be in a mess of trouble.

The next worst thing is that you hardly get any sleep at all. The cold wakes you up. Even when you're dead tired you're just too cold to sleep very long. When I think of what I want most, it's my bed at home. I never think of home now without thinking of that bed, a bed where I could crawl in and sleep for 48 hours without ever worrying about someone slipping up and letting me have it."

The talk turned to chow, and Kelly said he could go for a steaming bowl of chili right now.

Ziek said he'd rather have a big glass of fresh milk. "And after I finished that I'd call for another."

Melt Snow For Water

"They try to get hot chow to us here," Kelly said. "They do the best they can but it doesn't work out too well. They heat our C-ration cans in hot water before they send them up, but by the time they get here they aren't warm any more. At least they're not frozen. The thing we need most is good water. We melt snow in the daytime but the water you get that way tastes awfully smoky and you can't build a fire at night, of course, even down behind this ridge."

Their foxhole is 4x2x3.

"Each man has a blanket," said Kelly. "That makes two for us. At night one of us is always awake, sitting up watching for trouble while the other tries to catch a nap. The straw helps to keep the cold of the ground from coming up at us."

Both men landed in August, and Kelly has fought since then. Ziek was out for 43 days after rifle bullets caught him in both legs along the Naktong river. He was back in time to run the gantlet of hell with the outfit down Kunu Pass late in November.

"I've lost about 20 pounds, from 170 to 150, but I feel fine," he said. "I'm doing okay."

Men In Good Spirits

Capt. William N. Payne, of Nashville, Tenn., said he thought the men in the line were in good spirits despite the bitter cold.

"It would be so much better if they could have sleeping bags," he said.

"But when a man is zipped up in a sleeping bag he's helpless in case of sudden enemy attack."

Pvt. Vincent Cidoni, of Brooklyn, N. Y., (street address unavailable) sat in his foxhole.

"Two guys share this one with me," said he. "That gives us three blankets. All we need is some good water."

"I've never been so cold," said Pvt. Allan Crowie of 1551 William Bridge Road, the Bronx, New York. "Boy, it really gets noisy up here when the attacks come. Even old Times Square on New Year's Eve can't match that kind of noise."

Average weekly earnings of factory production workers in the state gained two cents an hour in November over October, 1950, a state report said today and it listed the Kingston-Albany area as the one showing "the largest gains in weekly earnings."

The Buffalo area, said the report by Industrial Commissioner Edward Corsi, reported the highest average weekly wages, $69.94 as against $68.42 in October. In November, 1949, the rate was $61.16.

In the Kingston area the average increased by $2.26 to $60.57, "due mainly to a wage increase," the report said. In the Albany area a $1.72 increase to $68 was due to a wage rise and the lengthening of the work week by a small hourly fraction.

The rates listed for Kingston, Newburgh and Poughkeepsie were the same; $60.57 in November, 1950, $58.31 in October. The November, 1949 rate was $52.48, and the average hourly rate for last November was $1.48 in the Central Hudson area.

Leaves From Boyle's Notebook

By WILLIAM C. BARNARD
(For Hal Boyle)

On the Korea Central Front (Delayed) (AP) — "This foxhole fighting is cold and tiresome and the nights get mighty long," said the sergeant.

He is Thomas G. Ziek, of San Antonio, Tex., and this (Jan. 15) was his 19th day of fighting from foxholes in temperatures down to 25 degrees below zero Fahrenheit.

Ziek and his buddy, Cpl. Robert E. Kelly, of Alliance, O., were carefully arranging fresh straw in the foxhole they shared. It was on a ridge south of Wonju.

Ahead was a hill from which North Koreans had staged an unsuccessful banzai attack two dawns before. You could also see part of the road that winds 36 frozen, narrow miles through three mountain passes from Wonju to Changju.

Snow was deep along the foxhole and whitened the pines on the ridge.

There were many other foxholes along the ridge. The red-eyed men who had dug them so painfully from the hard frozen earth sat in them or on their edges, their rifles always handy. They moved slowly, talking in low tones when they talked at all.

"We know we have a job to do," said Ziek. "We want to do it and get it over with."

It was 15 degrees below zero. There was a sporadic crackling of rifle fire, and continuous artillery volley thundering up the narrow valley.

Hard On The Feet

"I think the worst thing about being out here like this is what happens to your feet," Ziek went on.

"We all try to take care of our feet, massaging them and changing socks once a day. But when your feet get cold and numb at night, there's not a damn thing you can do. You can't ever take off your shoes at night. If the enemy charges you when you had your shoes off you'd be in a mess of trouble.

The next worst thing is that you hardly get any sleep at all. The cold wakes you up. Even when you're dead tired you're just too cold to sleep very long. When I think of what I want most, it's my bed at home. I never think of home now without thinking of that bed, a bed where I could crawl in and sleep for 48 hours without ever worrying about someone slipping up and letting me have it."

The talk turned to chow, and Kelly said he could go for a steaming bowl of chili right now.

Ziek said he'd rather have a big glass of fresh milk. "And after I finished that I'd call for another."

Melt Snow For Water

"They try to get hot chow to us here," Kelly said. "They do the best they can but it doesn't work out too well. They heat our C-ration cans in hot water before they send them up, but by the time they get here they aren't warm any more. At least they're not frozen. The thing we need most is good water. We melt snow in the daytime but the water you get that way tastes awfully smoky and you can't build a fire at night, of course, even down behind this ridge."

Their foxhole is 4x2x3.

"Each man has a blanket," said Kelly. "That makes two for us. At night one of us is always awake, sitting up watching for trouble while the other tries to catch a nap. The straw helps to keep the cold of the ground from coming up at us."

Both men landed in August, and Kelly has fought since then. Ziek was out for 43 days after rifle bullets caught him in both legs along the Naktong river. He was back in time to run the gantlet of hell with the outfit down Kunu Pass late in November.

"I've lost about 20 pounds, from 170 to 150, but I feel fine," he said. "I'm doing okay."

Men in Good Spirits

Capt. William N. Payne, of Nashville, Tenn., said he thought the men in the line were in good spirits despite the bitter cold.

"It would be so much better if they could have sleeping bags," he said.

"But when a man is zipped up in a sleeping bag he's helpless in case of sudden enemy attack."

Pvt. Vincent Cidoni, of Brooklyn, N. Y., (street address unavailable) sat in his foxhole.

"Two guys share this one with me," said he. "That gives us three blankets. All we need is some good water."

"I've never been so cold," said Pvt. Allan Crowie of 1551 William Bridge Road, the Bronx, New York. "Boy, it really gets noisy up here when the attacks come. Even old Times Square on New Year's Eve can't match that kind of noise."

Mount Rainer, third highest mountain in continental United States, was named after Peter Rainer, a British admiral.

Hotels Are Filled For Horticulture Meeting Period

Kingston's major hotels are already booked almost to capacity from January 24 to January 26, it was revealed today by Albert Kurdt, executive director of the Chamber of Commerce. The dates coincide with the dates of the Eastern meeting of the New York Horticultural Society.

Requests for reservations are still being received at the Chamber office and are being referred to tourist homes, Kurdt said.

The Horticultural Society meeting, with its three days of discussions, its evening meetings and the annual banquet, and with its exhibits of latest farm machinery, annually attracts hundreds of persons to this city.

58 Firms Coming

Many of the hotel rooms are taken by exhibitors of farm implements, some of whom arrive here several days in advance of the show in order to set up the exhibits. This year 58 firms have already arranged for exhibit space in the state armory here. Exhibits are shipped in from such places as New York, Syracuse, Ithaca, Rochester and Schenectady, N. Y. Also represented are firms with home addresses in Lansing, Mich.; Princess Anne, Md.; Indianapolis, Ind.; Hudson, Mich.; Los Angeles, Calif.; Ashland, Ohio; Milwaukee, Wis.; Louisiana, Mo., and Covesville, Va.

Each of these exhibits is staffed by two or more men, most of whom remain in Kingston four or five days at the least.

Last year, 250 fruit growers and their wives attended the annual banquet at the Governor Clinton Hotel, giving an indication of the number of persons who attended most sessions. Added to that is an unknown number of growers and other farmers from the locality who commute from their homes to Kingston each day to take part in the discussions and to view the exhibits. There is also a large number of 4-H Club members who come to Kingston to participate in the various contests arranged for club members.

Many Show Interest

In addition to those who are professionally interested in the sessions, there are hundreds and perhaps thousands of gardeners, non-professional farmers and other interested persons from Kingston and its immediate vicinity who come in to view the exhibits at least once while the show is in progress.

Speakers program and commercial exhibits will be in the New York State Armory on Manor avenue. Evening programs and the annual banquet on Thursday night will be at the Governor Clinton Hotel. This year's banquet speaker will be George A. Bowie, public relations man for the Firestone Tire and Rubber Company of Akron, Ohio.

full, under provisions of the two-year rent law.

If the Legislature rejects the McGoldrick plan, it would not mean the end of state rent controls. His legal advisers contend that McGoldrick could continue to regulate rents under the present system which gives him sweeping discretionary authority.

Assemblyman D. Mallory Stephens, chairman of the temporary State Rent Commission, said in a statement last night that the Democrats "continue to deliberately mistate the facts" in connection with rent control.

Stephens, Putnam county Republican, added:

"The Republican party had not, nor will it ever, play politics with the vital question of rent controls. The Democrats, this year, are continuing to play the same low order of politics with rent controls that they did last year. It is misleading and a hoax on thousands of tenants."

Stephens said the McGoldrick plan "does not authorize across the board rent increases in any form." To charge otherwise, he added, "is untrue."

McGoldrick's plan provides seven conditions as the basis on which to grant rent increases. Under the present system, about the only way a landlord can get an increase is to prove "out-of-pocket" losses on his rental deal.

The plan provides two major conditions on which rent increases may be authorized.

They are the four per cent "fair net return" for a landlord on his investment, and voluntary agreements between landlords and tenants providing 15 per cent increases in two-year leases. "Fair return" increases are limited to 15 per cent.

The new plan becomes effective March 15, unless the Republican-controlled Legislature disapproves it by Feb. 16 in a joint resolution.

Cook to Be Sent Back to Oklahoma

San Diego, Calif., Jan. 17 (AP)—William E. Cook, accused kidnaper and suspected slayer of eight persons will be returned to Oklahoma from here to be prosecuted on federal kidnaping charges.

The Department of Justice in Washington announced last night that Cook, 23-year-old ex-convict captured in Mexico after a two-week international manhunt, will be tried on a charge of kidnaping the Carl Mosser family of Atwood, Ill.

The federal charge, known as the Lindbergh law, carries a possible death penalty.

Cook also has been sought by police in Joplin, Mo., where the five bodies of the Mosser family were recovered from a mine shaft. The Mossers, all of whom had been shot, are suspected victims of Cook.

He also has been charged in California with the murder Jan. 6 of Seattle salesman Robert Dewey. A California sheriff's deputy said Cook also had talked of slaying two other persons in Oklahoma. The deputy said he had been kidnaped by Cook but was released unharmed.

Cook is in isolation in a lone upper-floor cell at the county jail where he was taken following his deportation from Mexico Monday and his arraignment here on federal charges of kidnaping and flight to avoid prosecution for murder and robbery.

The Mossers dropped from sight last month while en route from Illinois to New Mexico. Their blood-stained automobile was found in Oklahoma Jan. 3.

Cook has denied he ever killed any one and said he didn't know the Mosser family. He told newsmen he got drunk Christmas night and "might have been anywhere after that."

Cook also has been sought by police in Joplin, Mo., where the five bodies of the Mosser family were recovered from a mine shaft. The Mossers, all of whom had been shot, are suspected victims of Cook.

He also has been charged in California with the murder Jan. 6 of Seattle salesman Robert Dewey. A California sheriff's deputy said Cook also had talked of slaying two other persons in Oklahoma. The deputy said he had been kidnaped by Cook but was released unharmed.

Cook is in isolation in a lone upper-floor cell at the county jail where he was taken following his deportation from Mexico Monday and his arraignment here on federal charges of kidnaping and flight to avoid prosecution for murder and robbery.

The Mossers dropped from sight last month while en route from Illinois to New Mexico. Their blood-stained automobile was found in Oklahoma Jan. 3.

Cook has denied he ever killed any one and said he didn't know the Mosser family. He told newsmen he got drunk Christmas night and "might have been anywhere after that."

He Preferred Television

Los Angeles, Jan. 17 (AP)—Her husband would rather watch television than hear her play the piano, Mrs. Kay Scott Nerney, 23, told the judge. She got a divorce. Mrs. Nerney, who described herself as an actress, said husband John, 34, often worked from 7 a. m. to 10 p. m., including Saturdays and Sundays. Then, she added, he "objected to my playing classical music. He preferred television programs."

LACK OF MORAL CONVICTION

The British know that Red Chinese soldiers have killed and are killing Britons in Korea and that rebels who may get financial and other aid from Communist China are killing British fighting men in Malaya.

The French are thoroughly aware that the Communist Viet Minh forces in Indo-China, which have been battling a French army there for five years, are supplied with weapons and training by the Red Chinese.

Yet the British believe it is proper and sensible to maintain a relatively thriving trade with the Chinese Communists through the British crown colony at Hong Kong. This trade most certainly includes materials which are of value to the Chinese war machine.

And the other day the French were reported to have shipped nearly 140,000 tons of steel rails to Red China. Any child knows the role played by transport in fueling an army with supplies.

The British are quite cool—one might say indifferent—to the fate of Formosa, a rich island which might conceivably have prime strategic importance in keeping powerfully industrial Japan out of Red hands. Yet there are plenty of signs Britain would howl in anguish if Hong Kong were threatened.

What does all this mean?

Plainly, it indicates that both the French and British value Chinese trade so highly they consider it worth the lives of a substantial number of their soldiers.

We all know the British live by exporting. Looking at Britain's economy from the outside and from this distance, it may not be possible to judge fairly how vital the Chinese trade is to that country. But one may at least question whether Britain might not find some substitute for commerce which continues at the price of British blood.

The same may be said for France, which is less a world trading power but nevertheless maintains an active interchange of goods within its colonial empire and with nations on the fringe of that empire. Does the profit from 140,000 tons of rails show when cast in the balance against the bodies of French dead in Indo-China?

More than a few observers of postwar life in France and Britain believe that more than just economic advantage leads these countries to cling desperately to this trade. They believe intense national pride is a great factor, especially in Britain.

Britain already has witnessed a vast shrinkage of her pre-war empire. She has not adjusted to the fact, has not reconciled herself to the drastic curtailment of her world power. She still tends to think of herself in the old terms. Any further shrinkage is viewed with pain.

France, too, hates to face the thought of diminishing global power. She prefers to imagine that past glories are still hers.

If these observers are right, then the British and French, who are supposed to share the touted tradition of European realism, are showing themselves to be highly unrealistic. Failure to come to grips with reality could be a big reason why their moral resolve is so weak in the present world dilemma.

For surely a lack of moral conviction lies at the root of any decision to trade with a nation which is killing your citizens with ruthless calculation.

REAL VICTIMS OF WAR

Occasional dispatches from Korea deal with the plight of the civilians, the unfortunate people who live in the path of war. Some of the pictures have shown their bewilderment and suffering in a way that words cannot equal. Families have been broken up; they have lost their homes, their jobs, their possessions.

For most of this the Americans are blamed. The war would have been brief but for our intervention. The destruction of cities and factories has been largely by American bombs and American demolition crews. It was a necessary work of war, from the military viewpoint, but what do these people know of the military viewpoint?

Their tragedy must be borne in mind as we consider our future position in the East. For a homeless, orphaned South Korean, if asked, would probably say something like this: "Being conquered is bad enough, but spare us from being saved."

This is something to remember when the point is raised, as it was earlier and probably will be again, whether the Koreans are grateful for what we do.

FOREIGN AID

Altogether, between July 1, 1945, and June 30, 1950, the American taxpayer expended, after taking repayments into account, close to $26,000,000,000 in foreign aid. This amounts to about $172 for each man, woman and child in the United States.

Of the $26,000,000,000, Great Britain received $5,900,000,000; France, $3,700,000,000; Germany, $2,900,000,000; Italy, $1,900,000,000.

During the five-year period, China received $1,700,000,000. Regarding this figure, it would be interesting to see a breakdown as to precisely what China received. For instance, Greece and Turkey were charged nominal prices for exactly the same kind of military supplies for which we charged China, replacement prices. At any rate, that is what the figures seem to look like. It would be beneficial all around if some congressional committee went into this question in detail to discover precisely how this figure was reached.

Korea is an attractive case in point. During this five-year period, Korea received $300,000,000, which is the amount that all the American republics put together received from us.

The entire subject of foreign aid needs to be studied closely to see how the money was spent, what our bookkeeping procedure is. For instance, if we charge China one price for an airplane and Great Britain another price, the aid is of different value. Most of the aid was given in the form of commodities rather than money. Most of it was really commercial credits.

Of the $26,000,000,000 spent in this way, the ERP countries received $19,000,000,000. It would again be interesting to have that figure analyzed by a body that could subpoena the books of ECA. For whereas no one questions the integrity of Paul Hoffman or his associates in ECA, the policies pursued would make a tremendous difference.

Let me put it this way: These figures do not include any aid to Soviet Russia, and the assumption must be that none was given by the United States. However, Great Britain has been doing a roaring business with Soviet Russia and the satellite countries.

To what extent have American credits to Great Britain made it possible for the British to engage in this trade? Is it not possible that by this indirect means the British actually released American credits to our enemy, Soviet Russia?

We know from Korean references that the Russians and Chinese Communists supplied the North Koreans with munitions of American origin. If we have been supplying neither the Russians nor the Soviet Chinese, nor giving them credits to buy here, where did they get the stuff? It could not all have been done by American merchants and American steamship lines, some of which ran the Nationalist blockade. An analysis of Hongkong business with Soviet China and with other anti-American groups would not surprise the old-China hand, but it should startle the admirers of British justice in this country.

We need to be sure that American aid is not being used to kill Americans in Korea or anywhere else. The British in Hongkong have been selling American goods to Chinese Communists. They did a flourishing business in that town and are now crying their eyes out that they are no longer permitted to do it. The wail of Hongkong breaks my heart!

The British managed to build a dollar reserve of $3,000,000,000 out of the trade which they developed with our aid. It is, therefore, startling to read the following in the Sunday Times of London, on December 24, 1950:

". . . Giving up Marshall aid (by Great Britain) was a gesture of magnanimity approaching genius."

Why was it magnanimity? The Marshall Plan was an aid; in effect, it was charity. It was a tax on every American household to help an ally in distress. If he no longer needs the aid, why is it magnanimous to give it up? The word, magnanimity, in this instance, is little less than an insult.

Mr. Denis W. Brogan, who used that word, did not mean it that way, as the remainder of his article clearly shows—but the slip in language indicates a state of mind. He says, for instance:

"To a nation under this strain, complaints from Hongkong that the new American embargo will ruin trade sound untimely. There are more important things, the Americans think, than trade in Hongkong, and if Communist China gets away with it, there won't be any British interest in Hongkong or Singapore to suffer."

Too true—but no magnanimous!

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M.D.

IMPORTANCE OF PROPER SHOES

Some of us remember the pointed shoes of years ago. It was these shoes that were responsible for the great number of men and women today who have "unhappy" feet. Our feet can easily mean as much to us as our head in earning a living and enjoying life. We can only go as far in life as our health will take us and to have feet that hurt, when on or off them, is a great handicap, a great liability to health and life.

We're as old as our feet feel and if we feel old and unhappy it is not likely because of the shoes we are wearing at present but those worn when we were children.

According to the National Foot Council News, the council is determined that your children should have healthier feet than our forefathers for "poor feet mean poor posture, frequently leading to headaches and other pains, and age us faster than the calendar." The National Foot Council, therefore, decided to make a survey of the opinions of children's specialists, skin specialists, orthopedic physicians and chiropodists throughout the United States as to just what children's shoes should be like. Writing to 2,000 of them, the council obtained opinions regarding all phases of children's footwear: shape, last, materials, linings, heels, toes, counters, and other details of construction and design.

An advance report on the results of this survey is given by Dr. Joseph Lelyveld, the council's chairman. It gives the mother an idea of what to look for and what to avoid when purchasing shoes for the children.

Fortunately, the shape and lasts of children's shoes today are considered satisfactory by the above-mentioned specialists but many do not like the materials from which some of children's shoes are made. They suggested that shoes should be made of leather, instead of using rubber, as leather shoes permit ventilation and shoes containing rubber prevent ventilation and are responsible for many cases of fungus infections—athletes' foot being one.

About half those replying did not believe in "sneakers" for general wear but recognized their value for play purposes where they are used on soft ground and for short periods only. They considered rubbers or overshoes of real value in cold, damp weather but advised they be removed when indoors to prevent excessive perspiration.

Chinese Inflation

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

Washington.—Jumpin' Joe McCarthy, the "Mc" from Wisconsin, has been alternately calling me a liar and accusing me of being too accurate in publishing army cables estimating Chinese strength in North Korea at about one-quarter of the 1,000,000-man army announced by MacArthur. However, here is another document which Jumpin' Joe also won't want me to publish.

It is the income-tax story of Gangster Charlie Fischetti, cousin of Ralph Capone of Mercer, Wisconsin, at one time a McCarthy political booster.

Fischetti, who is now ducking Senae crime investigators, took over much of the underworld empire of his cousin Al Capone, after the latter was jailed for income-tax evasion. Fischetti's domain extends all the way from the ritzy North Shore of Chicago where he maintains a penthouse at 3100 North Sheridan Road, to Florida, where he has a winter place on Allison Island off Miami Beach.

In addition to Chicago and Miami, Fischetti has gambling operations in Kansas City, St. Louis, East St. Louis, Indiana, Arizona, and in Jumpin' Joe's own bailiwick of Southern Wisconsin.

Yet Charlie Fischetti only reported an income of $23,342.50 for 1949. Every cent he made, he swore, was by "self-speculation," probably a polite name for gambling."

Other gangsters, perhaps more honest (if there is any degree of honesty among gangsters) reported much more income than this. Tony Accardo, one of the top mob in Chicago, reported a total income of $110,000. However, Charles and Ann Fischetti, filing a joint tax return last year, paid a tax of only $4,988.48—mere peanuts.

T-Men Ignore Mob

The public has the idea that modern racketeers are extremely careful in making out their income-tax returns, in order to avoid what happened to Al Capone. That, however, is by no means the case. In the first place, the gangsters operate on a strictly cash basis. Second, Internal Revenue makes no great effort to check on gambling profits.

Though Treasury field agents are honest and diligent, at least one potent official inside the Treasury has shied away from going after the taxes of modern-day racketeers; and this columnist has too many headaches at the moment to risk a libel suit by naming him.

However, it remains a fact that while the average taxpayer sits up nights trying not to forget any part of his income, the big gangsters fill out blanket returns which obviously are underestimates. They give no source for their revenue other than "self-speculation," "wagering," or just plain "income," and they estimate their profit at just about whatever they want to make it.

I have spent a lot of time having an ex-internal revenue agent familiar with Chicago's gangland dig into Fischetti's return. Going back over the years, these returns are all vague. In 1947, he chalked up a meagre income of $16,500, again attributing it to "self-speculation." Yet it seems inconceivable that a racketeer with so many irons in the fire in so many different parts of the U.S.A. should make so little money.

In 1946, Fischetti was equally vague, claiming even less income—only $13,500. In 1945, it was still less—$10,700—while in 1944 it was $9,500.

229 Club

In 1943, however, Fischetti was more specific. He listed $966.25 from the 229 Club and another $9,000 which he attributed to "sundry wagering." The 229 Club, located at 229 South Wabash avenue, Chicago, was a favorite hangout for hoodlums and was where Big Gus Winkler of the St. Louis rats was killed. Fischetti showed that he believed in enforcing the law on at least one occsaion in 1942 when he and his brother Joe, with Paul De Lucia Rica, got caught in a falling elevator in the building at 229 Wabash. The gangsters sued the owner of the building because of the elevator accident, and collected.

An income of only $9,891.25, it should be noted, is suspiciously small for a gangster who lived as lavishly as Charlie Fischetti in the war boom year of 1943.

Fischetti's 1942 income, however, was even more incredible. He listed a $778.02 profit from the 229 Club, another $5,240 from "sundry wagering," and took deductions of $340.86.

In 1940, Fischetti reported a profit of $7,645 on the 229 Club, but reported a loss of $1,134.68 on the Blackhawk Club, another hangout for gamblers above the Blackhawk Restaurant in Chicago.

Lush Gambling Profits

Internal revenue agents so far have done little about checking on the profits of gambling clubs. Though they have access to the books, the U. S. Treasury has not taken the trouble to post men in gambling casinos at the time the money is counted—which is after business closes every night.

Managers of the big gambling establishments are careful to have watchers in rooms about the roulette wheels to look down through holes in the ceilings and make sure no money is stolen by the casinos' own employes. But the Treasury, which could increase its take by millions, has not yet bothered to count the thousands raked in at the close of a casino's business.

This is one of the quickest sources of revenue available to Uncle Sam, at a time when the rest of the American people are going to dig deeper into their tax pockets than ever before.

Fischetti's Record

Fischetti's police record shows he was arrested April 30, 1926, with Ralph Capone, for questioning about the killing of three men—McSwiggan, Doherty and Duffy—in Cicero, Ill. They were discharged on a habeas corpus and turned over to federal authorities in connection with a machine gun found in Ralph Capone's apartment.

On Dec. 26, 1928, Fischetti was arrested again for carrying a concealed weapon, and was held until Jan. 22, 1929. On Nov. 1, 1932, he was arrested with Murray Humphreys and other mobsters for questioning about labor rackets. On Jan. 8, 1933, Fischetti finally received a one-year sentence and $300 fine for carrying a concealed weapon. On July 22, 1943, he was arrested for disorderly conduct; on Oct. 9, 1944, he was arrested in a gambling investigation by Cook county highway police; and on Feb. 14, 1945, he was arrested again for disorderly conduct.

At present, Fischetti is reported in Acapulco, Mexico, sunning himself on the beach until the Kefauver crime committee loses interest in him.

It's quite a life if you can get away with it.

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Jan. 17—Dissatisfaction with the administration's foreign policy and particularly with the American government's support of the so-called "appeasement" resolution in the U.N. is not confined to the Republican party.

The issues are now boring their way into the Democratic party as well. While James F. Byrnes, former secretary of state and newly inaugurated governor of South Carolina, was calling on the U.N. to bombard Red China's bases, Democratic Senator McClellan of Arkansas was asking the Senate to declare Red China an aggressor. He sought to have a resolution adopted to declare that Red China should not be admitted into the U.N. and that economic sanctions and a complete blockade of Red China should be ordered by the U.N. If Communist China isn't an aggressor, he said, then our troops should be withdrawn from Korea.

Within the last few days Senator Eastland of Mississippi, Democrat, has likewise criticized the present policy of the administration. Other senators and members of the House, too, are attacking the support given by the American Department of State to the U.N. resolution which promises negotiations with Red China are to be begun if a "cease fire" is ordered.

State Department officials have been busy explaining to members of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee that they didn't mean any appeasement when Ambassador Austin was instructed to support the much-discussed "cease fire" resolution and that they expected it to be rejected by Red China, anyway.

Secretary Acheson has been in touch with Capitol Hill, too, on the controversy and is reported to have given assurance that support of the resolution didn't signify any American commitment either to recognize Red China or to vote for her admission into the U.N. or any pledge to transfer control of Formosa to the Chinese Reds.

But, as many senators see it, the United States, by voting for a resolution to negotiate all these things simultaneously with a "cease fire" arrangement, has placed itself in the position of trading or bargaining for a temporary ending of hostilities and of being willing to pay for it with a promise to negotiate the delicate questions of admitting Red China to the U.N. and of control of Formosa.

What could the United States do if the other members of the U.N. voted to admit Red China as the price of peace? What could the United States do if the other nations in the U.N. decided that Formosa should be turned over to Red China as another payment for peace? The American government would be maneuvered into the position of being compelled to resume the fighting unless it gave in to Red China.

Many of the member nations are so anxious to get American military and industrial resources concentrated in Europe that they are willing to abandon the Far East. This attitude does not find favor in Washington but it emphasizes how the United States has yielded its freedom of action in the world. Other nations may decide, by majority vote, what American policy is to be.

Irrespective of whether this represents a step forward or backward in America's policies, members do not like to see the most powerful nation in the world being told how to deploy its military resources, especially after the U.N., by solemn pledge, declared war on the aggressor in Korea and didn't back it up.

The fact that the U.N. has delayed so long and has refused to adopt an American resolution condemning Red China as an aggressor is causing the U.N. to grow weaker and weaker in prestige. The Congress may, by its debates and its votes hereafter, take a different attitude toward Europe and other countries. The cause of isolationism here grows stronger every day in the face of an unfortunate series of blunders by European governments and especially by the conference of prime ministers of the British Commonwealth of states.

With both political parties here showing an antagonism to the administration's foreign policies, it looks like hard sledding ahead for all proposals to send American troops and funds abroad. The U.N. resolution on "cease fire" may get tangled up in Communist palaver. Unless the Peiping government presents an unequivocal acceptance, the chances are the United States will be expected to lead a fight in the U.N. for the adoption of the resolution condemning Red China as an aggressor before even an amended "cease fire" resolution is again considered.

AS PEGLER SEES IT

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

New York, Jan. 16—In praising the beautiful version of chili con that was revealed to me in my gallivanting youth in the mid-and-southwest, I had no intention to invite or wage controversy. Yet, I should have remembered that gladsomeness begets its own compuppance and that compliments are made only on pain of angry dissent.

During his Christmas trip home, President Truman stopped at Vergne Dixon's chili parlor at 1504-06 Olive street, Kansas City, and puts himself outside a bowl of chili along with a scuttle of beer fetched from yonder, Mr. Dixon having no beer license. It seems to me that some law got busted here, but I am not for multiplying our President's troubles so I will only mutter in a low voice that the W.C.T.U., which hollered murder when our troops got beer in Korea, certainly booted one.

I am afraid I carried on when I got going about chili con, for this delicatessen is downright spiritual with us who long since sat on the high stools, as Mr. Truman did in Dixon's, and on $25 a week got by from pay-day to pay-day, well-fed and well-content, I wrote that chili-con should be made with ground beef, beans, chili powder, tomatoes, onions and garlic, and seized an occasion to extol by name the put-up chili and the chili beans and powder sold by Gebhardt's of El Paso. I had no inkling of the feeling among the devotees of the House of Gebhardt, who fell on me in numbers, by telegram and mail. Not only is Gebhardt's an ancient and honorable institution of San Antonio, but Gebhardt's meat is not ground but cooked so well that it comes undone, releasing its juices among the beans. Then, too, I ran afoul of the devotees of Wolfe's chili con and related products, which actually are mades in El Paso. Mrs. Louis Messolonghites, of New York, the former Bernice Brown, of Wichita Falls, Tex., sometimes cooks her own but, for boughten goods out of cans, throws in with Wolfe's.

I got a letter from a man laid up with a broken leg, Thomas Hall, of Kansas City. Those shut-in jobs are hair-trigger letter-writers.

"There are," he wrote, "no onions or tomatoes in chili con. Likewise no potatoes, ochra, corn nor other vegetables except dark beans and garlic. Lying here with little to do I phoned Vergne Dixon, who says he doesn't even use garlic."

I telegraphed Mr. Dixon for his recipe and he wired back: "Have been established 32 years in same location. Use neither tomatoes nor onions, we use no garlic owing to various tastes of customers. We buy California pink beans and cook separate from meat. Meat is cooked in steam cookers and we use ground chuck. We use no chili powder. Our spices come from James H. Forbes and Co. We mix them ourselves. Various types of chili are served in various localities, but our type is served in Kansas City. If you are ever in K. C. would like to have you visit us."

The I.N.S. reported from Denver that Gov.-elect Dan Thornton, a native of Texas, when asked to indorse a brand of chili made in Texas, replied that the one way to improve Texas chili would be to make it of Colorado beef and Colorado pinto beans.

Mrs. Virginia McDonald, the author of "How I Cook It," wrote that chili con "is unknown in Mexico," wherein she is mistaken to my certain knowledge.

"Properly made," she continued "the meat is cubed, not ground and it is served with bread, not crackers. Only Yankees serve it with crackers. I am a native Texan and know whereof I speak."

I don't want a fight. I am just a mild fellow anxious to please everybody. But nobody can tell me they don't grind the meat or team chili with crackers in Texas. Mrs. McDonald probably doesn't hang around railroad stations much. That is where you find chili parlors. And doesn't Vergne Dixon use "ground chuck"?

LACK OF MORAL CONVICTION

The British know that Red Chinese soldiers have killed and are killing Britons in Korea and that rebels who may get financial and other aid from Communist China are killing British fighting men in Malaya.

The French are thoroughly aware that the Communist Viet Minh forces in Indo-China, which have been battling a French army there for five years, are supplied with weapons and training by the Red Chinese.

Yet the British believe it is proper and sensible to maintain a relatively thriving trade with the Chinese Communists through the British crown colony at Hong Kong. This trade most certainly includes materials which are of value to the Chinese war machine.

And the other day the French were reported to have shipped nearly 140,000 tons of steel rails to Red China. Any child knows the role played by transport in fueling an army with supplies.

The British are quite cool—one might say indifferent—to the fate of Formosa, a rich island which might conceivably have prime strategic importance in keeping powerfully industrial Japan out of Red hands. Yet there are plenty of signs Britain would howl in anguish if Hong Kong were threatened.

What does all this mean?

Plainly, it indicates that both the French and British value Chinese trade so highly they consider it worth the lives of a substantial number of their soldiers.

We all know the British live by exporting. Looking at Britain's economy from the outside and from this distance, it may not be possible to judge fairly how vital the Chinese trade is to that country. But one may at least question whether Britain might not find some substitute for commerce which continues at the price of British blood.

The same may be said for France, which is less a world trading power but nevertheless maintains an active interchange of goods within its colonial empire and with nations on the fringe of that empire. Does the profit from 140,000 tons of rails show when cast in the balance against the bodies of French dead in Indo-China?

More than a few observers of postwar life in France and Britain believe that more than just economic advantage leads these countries to cling desperately to this trade. They believe intense national pride is a great factor, especially in Britain.

Britain already has witnessed a vast shrinkage of her pre-war empire. She has not adjusted to the fact, has not reconciled herself to the drastic curtailment of her world power. She still tends to think of herself in the old terms. Any further shrinkage is viewed with pain.

France, too, hates to face the thought of diminishing global power. She prefers to imagine that past glories are still hers.

If these observers are right, then the British and French, who are supposed to share the touted tradition of European realism, are showing themselves to be highly unrealistic. Failure to come to grips with reality could be a big reason why their moral resolve is so weak in the present world dilemma.

For surely a lack of moral conviction lies at the root of any decision to trade with a nation which is killing your citizens with ruthless calculation.

REAL VICTIMS OF WAR

Occasional dispatches from Korea deal with the plight of the civilians, the unfortunate people who live in the path of war. Some of the pictures have shown their bewilderment and suffering in a way that words cannot equal. Families have been broken up; they have lost their homes, their jobs, their possessions.

For most of this the Americans are blamed. The war would have been brief but for our intervention. The destruction of cities and factories has been largely by American bombs and American demolition crews. It was a necessary work of war, from the military viewpoint, but what do these people know of the military viewpoint?

Their tragedy must be borne in mind as we consider our future position in the East. For a homeless, orphaned South Korean, if asked, would probably say something like this: "Being conquered is bad enough, but spare us from being saved."

This is something to remember when the point is raised, as it was earlier and probably will be again, whether the Koreans are grateful for what we do.

FOREIGN AID

Altogether, between July 1, 1945, and June 30, 1950, the American taxpayer expended, after taking repayments into account, close to $26,000,000,000 in foreign aid. This amounts to about $172 for each man, woman and child in the United States.

Of the $26,000,000,000, Great Britain received $5,900,000,000; France, $3,700,000,000; Germany, $2,900,000,000; Italy, $1,900,000,000.

During the five-year period, China received $1,700,000,000. Regarding this figure, it would be interesting to see a breakdown as to precisely what China received. For instance, Greece and Turkey were charged nominal prices for exactly the same kind of military supplies for which we charged China, replacement prices. At any rate, that is what the figures seem to look like. It would be beneficial all around if some congressional committee went into this question in detail to discover precisely how this figure was reached.

Korea is an attractive case in point. During this five-year period, Korea received $300,000,000, which is the amount that all the American republics put together received from us.

The entire subject of foreign aid needs to be studied closely to see how the money was spent, what our bookkeeping procedure is. For instance, if we charge China one price for an airplane and Great Britain another price, the aid is of different value. Most of the aid was given in the form of commodities rather than money. Most of it was really commercial credits.

Of the $25,000,000,000 spent in this way, the ERP countries received $19,000,000,000. It would again be interesting to have that figure analyzed by a body that could subpoena the books of ECA. For whereas no one questions the integrity of Paul Hoffman or his associates in ECA, the policies pursued would make a tremendous difference.

Let me put it this way: These figures do not include any aid to Soviet Russia, and the assumption must be that none was given by the United States. However, Great Britain has been doing a roaring business with Soviet Russia and the satellite countries.

To what extent have American credits to Great Britain made it possible for the British to engage in this trade? Is it not possible that by this indirect means the British actually released American credits to our enemy, Soviet Russia?

We know from Korean references that the Russians and Chinese Communists supplied the North Koreans with munitions of American origin. If we have been supplying neither the Russians nor the Soviet Chinese, nor giving them credits to buy here, where did they get the stuff? It could not all have been done by American merchants and American steamship lines, some of which ran the Nationalist blockade. An analysis of Hongkong business with Soviet China and with other anti-American groups would not surprise the old-China hand, but it should startle the admirers of British justice in this country.

We need to be sure that American aid is not being used to kill Americans in Korea or anywhere else. The British in Hongkong have been selling American goods to Chinese Communists. They did a flourishing business in that town and are now crying their eyes out that they are no longer permitted to do it. The wail of Hongkong breaks my heart!

The British managed to build a dollar reserve of $3,000,000,000 out of the trade which they developed with our aid. It is, therefore, startling to read the following in the Sunday Times of London, on December 24, 1950:

". . . Giving up Marshall aid (by Great Britain) was a gesture of magnanimity approaching genius."

Why was it magnanimity? The Marshall Plan was an aid; in effect, it was charity. It was a tax on every American household to help an ally in distress. If he no longer needs the aid, why is it magnanimous to give it up? The word, magnanimity, in this instance, is little less than an insult.

Mr. Denis W. Brogan, who used that word, did not mean it that way, as the remainder of his article clearly shows—but the slip in language indicates a state of mind. He says, for instance:

"To a nation under this strain, complaints from Hongkong that the new American embargo will ruin trade sound untimely. There are more important things, the Americans think, than trade in Hongkong, and if Communist China gets away with it, there won't be any British interest in Hongkong or Singapore to suffer."

Too true—but no magnanimous!

IMPORTANCE OF PROPER SHOES

Some of us remember the pointed shoes of years ago. It was these shoes that were responsible for the great number of men and women today who have "unhappy" feet. Our feet can easily mean as much to us as our head in earning a living and enjoying life. We can only go as far in life as our health will take us and to have feet that hurt, when on or off them, is a great handicap, a great liability to health and life.

We're as old as our feet feel and if we feel old and unhappy it is not likely because of the shoes we are wearing at present but those worn when we were children.

According to the National Foot Council News, the council is determined that your children should have healthier feet than our forefathers for "poor feet mean poor posture, frequently leading to headaches and other pains, and age us faster than the calendar." The National Foot Council, therefore, decided to make a survey of the opinions of children's specialists, skin specialists, orthopedic physicians and chiropodists throughout the United States as to just what children's shoes should be like. Writing to 2,000 of them, the council obtained opinions regarding all phases of children's footwear: shape, last, materials, linings, heels, toes, counters, and other details of construction and design.

An advance report on the results of this survey is given by Dr. Joseph Lelyveld, the council's chairman. It gives the mother an idea of what to look for and what to avoid when purchasing shoes for the children.

Fortunately, the shape and lasts of children's shoes today are considered satisfactory by the above-mentioned specialists but many do not like the materials from which some of children's shoes are made. They suggested that shoes should be made of leather, instead of using rubber, as leather shoes permit ventilation and shoes containing rubber prevent ventilation and are responsible for many cases of fungus infections—athletes' foot being one.

About half those replying did not believe in "sneakers" for general wear but recognized their value for play purposes where they are used on soft ground and for short periods only. They considered rubbers or overshoes of real value in cold, damp weather but advised they be removed when indoors to prevent excessive perspiration.

Chinese Inflation

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

Washington.—Jumpin' Joe McCarthy, the "Mc" from Wisconsin, has been alternately calling me a liar and accusing me of being too accurate in publishing army cables estimating Chinese strength in North Korea at about one-quarter of the 1,000,000-man army announced by MacArthur. However, here is another document which Jumpin' Joe also won't want me to publish.

It is the income-tax story of Gangster Charlie Fischetti, cousin of Ralph Capone of Mercer, Wisconsin, at one time a McCarthy political booster.

Fischetti, who is now ducking Senae crime investigators, took over much of the underworld empire of his cousin Al Capone, after the latter was jailed for income-tax evasion. Fischetti's domain extends all the way from the ritzy North Shore of Chicago where he maintains a penthouse at 3100 North Sheridan Road, to Florida, where he has a winter place on Allison Island off Miami Beach.

In addition to Chicago and Miami, Fischetti has gambling operations in Kansas City, St. Louis, East St. Louis, Indiana, Arizona, and in Jumpin' Joe's own bailiwick of Southern Wisconsin.

Yet Charlie Fischetti only reported an income of $23,342.50 for 1949. Every cent he made, he swore, was by "self-speculation," probably a polite name for gambling."

Other gangsters, perhaps more honest (if there is any degree of honesty among gangsters) reported much more income than this. Tony Accardo, one of the top mob in Chicago, reported a total income of $110,000. However, Charles and Ann Fischetti, filing a joint tax return last year, paid a tax of only $4,988.48—mere peanuts.

T-Men Ignore Mob

The public has the idea that modern racketeers are extremely careful in making out their income-tax returns, in order to avoid what happened to Al Capone. That, however, is by no means the case. In the first place, the gangsters operate on a strictly cash basis. Second, Internal Revenue makes no great effort to check on gambling profits.

Though Treasury field agents are honest and diligent, at least one potent official inside the Treasury has shied away from going after the taxes of modern-day racketeers; and this columnist has too many headaches at the moment to risk a libel suit by naming him.

However, it remains a fact that while the average taxpayer sits up nights trying not to forget any part of his income, the big gangsters fill out blanket returns which obviously are underestimates. They give no source for their revenue other than "self-speculation," "wagering," or just plain "income," and they estimate their profit at just about whatever they want to make it.

I have spent a lot of time having an ex-internal revenue agent familiar with Chicago's gangland dig into Fischetti's return. Going back over the years, these returns are all vague. In 1947, he chalked up a meagre income of $16,500, again attributing it to "self-speculation." Yet it seems inconceivable that a racketeer with so many irons in the fire in so many different parts of the U.S.A. should make so little money.

In 1946, Fischetti was equally vague, claiming even less income—only $13,500. In 1945, it was still less—$10,700—while in 1944 it was $9,500.

229 Club

In 1943, however, Fischetti was more specific. He listed $966.25 from the 229 Club and another $9,000 which he attributed to "sundry wagering." The 229 Club, located at 229 South Wabash avenue, Chicago, was a favorite hangout for hoodlums and was where Big Gus Winkler of the St. Louis rats was killed. Fischetti showed that he believed in enforcing the law on at least one occsaion in 1942 when he and his brother Joe, with Paul De Lucia Rica, got caught in a falling elevator in the building at 229 Wabash. The gangsters sued the owner of the building because of the elevator accident, and collected.

An income of only $9,891.25, it should be noted, is suspiciously small for a gangster who lived as lavishly as Charlie Fischetti in the war boom year of 1943.

Fischetti's 1942 income, however, was even more incredible. He listed a $778.02 profit from the 229 Club, another $5,240 from "sundry wagering," and took deductions of $340.86.

In 1940, Fischetti reported a profit of $7,645 on the 229 Club, but reported a loss of $1,134.68 on the Blackhawk Club, another hangout for gamblers above the Blackhawk Restaurant in Chicago.

Lush Gambling Profits

Internal revenue agents so far have done little about checking on the profits of gambling clubs. Though they have access to the books, the U. S. Treasury has not taken the trouble to post men in gambling casinos at the time the money is counted—which is after business closes every night.

Managers of the big gambling establishments are careful to have watchers in rooms about the roulette wheels to look down through holes in the ceilings and make sure no money is stolen by the casinos' own employes. But the Treasury, which could increase its take by millions, has not yet bothered to count the thousands raked in at the close of a casino's business.

This is one of the quickest sources of revenue available to Uncle Sam, at a time when the rest of the American people are going to dig deeper into their tax pockets than ever before.

Fischetti's Record

Fischetti's police record shows he was arrested April 30, 1926, with Ralph Capone, for questioning about the killing of three men—McSwiggan, Doherty and Duffy—in Cicero, Ill. They were discharged on a habeas corpus and turned over to federal authorities in connection with a machine gun found in Ralph Capone's apartment.

On Dec. 26, 1928, Fischetti was arrested again for carrying a concealed weapon, and was held until Jan. 22, 1929. On Nov. 1, 1932, he was arrested with Murray Humphreys and other mobsters for questioning about labor rackets. On Jan. 8, 1933, Fischetti finally received a one-year sentence and $300 fine for carrying a concealed weapon. On July 22, 1943, he was arrested for disorderly conduct; on Oct. 9, 1944, he was arrested in a gambling investigation by Cook county highway police; and on Feb. 14, 1945, he was arrested again for disorderly conduct.

At present, Fischetti is reported in Acapulco, Mexico, sunning himself on the beach until the Kefauver crime committee loses interest in him.

It's quite a life if you can get away with it.

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Jan. 17—Dissatisfaction with the administration's foreign policy and particularly with the American government's support of the so-called "appeasement" resolution in the U.N. is not confined to the Republican party.

The issues are now boring their way into the Democratic party as well. While James F. Byrnes, former secretary of state and newly inaugurated governor of South Carolina, was calling on the U.N. to bombard Red China's bases, Democratic Senator McClellan of Arkansas was asking the Senate to declare Red China an aggressor. He sought to have a resolution adopted to declare that Red China should not be admitted into the U.N. and that economic sanctions and a complete blockade of Red China should be ordered by the U.N. If Communist China isn't an aggressor, he said, then our troops should be withdrawn from Korea.

Within the last few days Senator Eastland of Mississippi, Democrat, has likewise criticized the present policy of the administration. Other senators and members of the House, too, are attacking the support given by the American Department of State to the U.N. resolution which promises negotiations with Red China are to be begun if a "cease fire" is ordered.

State Department officials have been busy explaining to members of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee that they didn't mean any appeasement when Ambassador Austin was instructed to support the much-discussed "cease fire" resolution and that they expected it to be rejected by Red China, anyway.

Secretary Acheson has been in touch with Capitol Hill, too, on the controversy and is reported to have given assurance that support of the resolution didn't signify any American commitment either to recognize Red China or to vote for her admission into the U.N. or any pledge to transfer control of Formosa to the Chinese Reds.

But, as many senators see it, the United States, by voting for a resolution to negotiate all these things simultaneously with a "cease fire" arrangement, has placed itself in the position of trading or bargaining for a temporary ending of hostilities and of being willing to pay for it with a promise to negotiate the delicate questions of admitting Red China to the U.N. and of control of Formosa.

What could the United States do if the other members of the U.N. voted to admit Red China as the price of peace? What could the United States do if the other nations in the U.N. decided that Formosa should be turned over to Red China as another payment for peace? The American government would be maneuvered into the position of being compelled to resume the fighting unless it gave in to Red China.

Many of the member nations are so anxious to get American military and industrial resources concentrated in Europe that they are willing to abandon the Far East. This attitude does not find favor in Washington but it emphasizes how the United States has yielded its freedom of action in the world. Other nations may decide, by majority vote, what American policy is to be.

Irrespective of whether this represents a step forward or backward in America's policies, members do not like to see the most powerful nation in the world being told how to deploy its military resources, especially after the U.N., by solemn pledge, declared war on the aggressor in Korea and didn't back it up.

The fact that the U.N. has delayed so long and has refused to adopt an American resolution condemning Red China as an aggressor is causing the U.N. to grow weaker and weaker in prestige. The Congress may, by its debates and its votes hereafter, take a different attitude toward Europe and other countries. The cause of isolationism here grows stronger every day in the face of an unfortunate series of blunders by European governments and especially by the conference of prime ministers of the British Commonwealth of states.

With both political parties here showing an antagonism to the administration's foreign policies, it looks like hard sledding ahead for all proposals to send American troops and funds abroad. The U.N. resolution on "cease fire" may get tangled up in Communist palaver. Unless the Peiping government presents an unequivocal acceptance, the chances are the United States will be expected to lead a fight in the U.N. for the adoption of the resolution condemning Red China as an aggressor before even an amended "cease fire" resolution is again considered.

AS PEGLER SEES IT

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

New York, Jan. 16—In praising the beautiful version of chili con that was revealed to me in my gallivanting youth in the mid-and-southwest, I had no intention to invite or wage controversy. Yet, I should have remembered that gladsomeness begets its own compuppance and that compliments are made only on pain of angry dissent.

During his Christmas trip home, President Truman stopped at Vergne Dixon's chili parlor at 1504-06 Olive street, Kansas City, and puts himself outside a bowl of chili along with a scuttle of beer fetched from yonder, Mr. Dixon having no beer license. It seems to me that some law got busted here, but I am not for multiplying our President's troubles so I will only mutter in a low voice that the W.C.T.U., which hollered murder when our troops got beer in Korea, certainly booted one.

I am afraid I carried on when I got going about chili con, for this delicatessen is downright spiritual with us who long since sat on the high stools, as Mr. Truman did in Dixon's, and on $25 a week got by from pay-day to pay-day, well-fed and well-content. I wrote that chili-con should be made with ground beef, beans, chili powder, tomatoes, onions and garlic, and seized an occasion to extol by name the put-up chili and the chili beans and powder sold by Gebhardt's of El Paso. I had no inkling of the feeling among the devotees of the House of Gebhardt, who fell on me in numbers, by telegram and mail. Not only is Gebhardt's an ancient and honorable institution of San Antonio, but Gebhardt's meat is not ground but cooked so well that it comes undone, releasing its juices among the beans. Then, too, I ran afoul of the devotees of Wolfe's chili con and related products, which actually are mades in El Paso. Mrs. Louis Messolonghites, of New York, the former Bernice Brown, of Wichita Falls, Tex., sometimes cooks her own but, for boughten goods out of cans, throws in with Wolfe's.

I got a letter from a man laid up with a broken leg, Thomas Hall, of Kansas City. Those shut-in jobs are hair-trigger letterwriters.

"There are," he wrote, "no onions or tomatoes in chili con. Likewise no potatoes, ochra, corn nor other vegetables except dark beans and garlic. Lying here with little to do I phoned Vergne Dixon, who says he doesn't even use garlic."

I telegraphed Mr. Dixon for his recipe and he wired back: "Have been established 32 years in same location. Use neither tomatoes nor onions, we use no garlic owing to various tastes of customers. We buy California pink beans and cook separate from meat. Meat is cooked in steam cookers and we use ground chuck. We use no chili powder. Our spices come from James H. Forbes and Co. We mix them ourselves. Various types of chili are served in various localities, but our type is served in Kansas City. If you are ever in K. C. would like to have you visit us."

The I.N.S. reported from Denver that Gov.-elect Dan Thornton, a native of Texas, when asked to indorse a brand of chili made in Texas, replied that the one way to improve Texas chili would be to make it of Colorado beef and Colorado pinto beans.

Mrs. Virginia McDonald, the author of "How I Cook It," wrote that chili con "is unknown in Mexico," wherein she is mistaken to my certain knowledge.

"Properly made," she continued "the meat is cubed, not ground and it is served with bread, not crackers. Only Yankees serve it with crackers. I am a native Texan and know whereof I speak."

I don't want a fight. I am just a mild fellow anxious to please everybody. But nobody can tell me they don't grind the meat or team chili with crackers in Texas. Mrs. McDonald probably doesn't hang around railroad stations much. That is where you find chili parlors. And doesn't Vergne Dixon use "ground chuck"?

Home-Seekers Annual Meeting

The annual meeting of the shareholders of Home-Seekers Savings and Loan Association was held at the office of the association on Monday evening. The following persons were re-elected directors for a term of three years, John B. Sterley, Peter J. Halloran, Raymond Howe, Samuel H. Peyer, and Wilmer S. Nickerson.

After the shareholders meeting the directors met for organization and elected Dr. Samuel Stern, president; Henry J. Wieber, vice president; Deweese W. DeWitt, executive secretary and treasurer; Harry L. Kirchner and William D. Costello, assistant secretaries; Samuel H. Peyer, assistant treasurer; and John B. Sterley, counsel.

In his annual report of the year's activities DeWitt pointed out that the total assets of the institution had gained slightly more than one million dollars to a total of $7,138,245.73. Net earnings after expenses were approximately $200,000, of which $145,000 was paid to nearly 3000 savers. The balance of $55,000 was added to surplus and reserves.

Unusual Demand

The year 1950 presented an unusual demand for mortgage money and 366 loans were closed totaling nearly two million dollars. It is interesting to note that 78 of the loans were for the construction of new homes and 159 for the purchase of homes.

At the last session of the legislature a law was passed permitting savings and loan associations of over five million to lease safe deposit boxes and on July 1 Home-Seekers began the renting of the boxes in their vault. This business was formerly carried on by the Home-Seekers Safe Deposit Company which corporation will now be liquidated.

DeWitt pointed out that due to increased business during the past year it had been necessary to increase the staff to seven. He is now assisted in the active management by William D. Costello, assistant secretary and chief accountant; Virginia Cave, private secretary to Mr. DeWitt; Lois Keator, head teller; Mary Modica, receptionist; George Magley, teller; and Marilyn Klein, clerk.

Legion Loses $650,000

Washington, Jan. 17 (AP)—The American Legion said today it will "fold" its musical revue, "Red, White and Blue," following the evening performance at Chicago next Saturday. This venture into big-time entertainment — which aimed at a long Broadway run following a nationwide tour—has turned into a costly flop. Erle Cocke, Jr., Legion national commander, said that since the revue opened in Los Angeles last Oct. 7 it has performed in 20 cities and lost about $650,000. It reached Chicago Jan. 1. The hoped-for profits from the revue were to have been used for the support of Legion rehabilitation and child welfare activities.

Plane Develops Trouble

New York, Jan. 17 (AP)—A passenger plane developed engine trouble shortly after taking off from La Guardia Field yesterday, sending a smokelike oil-vapor streaming from one engine and frightening people in a wide area of the city. Bronx and Queens borough residents flooded police switchboards with reports of a plane on fire in the air. However, the plane, a four-engine Trans World Airliner, returned safely to the airport and a TWA official said there was no fire. He explained that the No. 3 engine developed piston trouble and that this caused oil to gush forth in a smoke-like vapor. None of the passengers became alarmed, it was added, and all boarded another plane, for Los Angeles, shortly afterward.

Dewey's Blast . . .

pattycake with Truman because of his support of the President's foreign policy.

2—Forestall any possible bid from the President to accept a federal assignment, a development which conceivably might crimp Dewey's role in his own party now and at the 1952 presidential convention.

As a result of his re-election to a third term as governor last fall and widespread popular reaction to his all-out mobilization and foreign policy speech last Dec. 13, Dewey apparently has become a presidential contender again.

His position well might be jeopardized if he joined the Truman administration—at least in circumstances less than actual war.

Informed sources said last week that Dewey wanted no Washington job under President Truman, expected no offer but might find it difficult to refuse if publicly invited to accept in the interests of national defense.

Dewey was offered the ambassadorship to Great Britain last August and turned it down. He told reporters yesterday he had not been asked to become secretary of state.

Suit Over Local Building Project

New York, Jan. 17 (Special)—A suit was filed on behalf of the Kinnear Manufacturing Co., Inc., New York, in Federal Court here Tuesday charging that the company has failed to receive payment for work it did in the construction of a government storage building at the New York State Property Site, North Manor avenue, Kingston.

According to the suit, the Marlboro Construction Co., Inc., of New York, contracted with the Federal government to construct the building in May, 1949, and posted a $40,250 bond through the Travelers Indemnity Co. of New York to insure prompt payment to workers and suppliers. The Kinnear firm claims it later built certain doors in the building but Marlboro has failed to pay $2,500 for the work.

Marlboro and the bonding company are named defendants in the action.

Byrnes' Stand Is

in the great debate on American foreign and military policy. It contained words that appeared to be direct answers to statements of ex-President Herbert Hoover, Sen. Robert Taft and former Ambassador Joseph Kennedy.

Kennedy, for example, asserted that Britain is weaker, militarily, now than she was in 1946. Hoover contrasted the number of divisions western Europe put in the field in the last two wars with the strength the same nations can display now.

Byrnes said: "It is said that western European governments have not raised armies for their own defense. In view of our record, we should not complain. In 1948, after Czechoslovakia had fallen, I made a speech urging that it was so clear the Soviets planned domination of the world we should cease all non-defense expenditures and immediately draft men to increase our military forces. Many others made similar pleas. Little was done."

Cannot Be Ignored

On the matter of the later debate, concerning the dispatch of American troops to Europe, Byrnes said:

"The argument that additional troops should not be sent to Europe cannot be ignored. It cannot be answered by the statement that we must comply with our obligations. The Atlantic treaty and the U.N. do not require us to act except in case of aggression.

"But there is a requirement more urgent than these—the requirement of self-defense."

Too Late for Debates

In effect, he said the hour is much too late for such debates.

"Responsible leaders can and should be assisted by constructive discussion of our foreign policies but that discussion should be dispassionate and dignified, not demagogic and destructive."

If Byrnes was speaking for the south, with its great military tradition and its unusually marked contribution to American arms, this was the most important statement in his speech:

"The last vestige of isolationism left the shores of America on the wings of the plane that carried the first atomic bomb to Hiroshima."

Raider Teams . . .

pounded the enemy. B-29 Superforts of the Far East air forces blasted Kaesong and Chongju Wednesday with 176 tons of explosives. Kaesong, a few miles south of Parallel 38, is a rail and highway junction. Chongju is in northwest Korea on the main Red supply line from Manchuria.

Wave after wave of B-29s hit the rail yards at Kaesong and Chongju in clear weather. Pilots said the raids were successful.

East of Seoul toward Ichon and abandoned Wonju on the central Korean front Red Korean and Chinese troops dug in. They were not rushing to attack the new allied positions.

Instead, they kept up steady harrassment of allied supply lines with busy guerrillas. U. S. Eighth Army headquarters has been reluctant to discuss guerrilla activity in any specific Korean section. But an allied corps commander said his raiders were hitting the guerrillas wherever they were found. Seventeen were killed Monday out of a band of 200 near the east coast port of Samchok.

Morse Asks Draft

ness group, including Johnson, insist that increases in the armed forces to the nearly 3,500,000 asked by President Truman can be drafted from the present 19 through 25 year pool.

Favors One Point

Johnson has suggested a minimum draft age of 18 years and six months with a prohibition against overseas duty until the recruit is 19.

Secretary of Labor Tobin yesterday backed up administration plans to defer key skilled workers and executives for industrial and agricultural production, as well as students who would provide the technicians, doctors and other professional skills for the future.

Tobin told the subcommittee that 4,000,000 additional workers would be required to meet defense production goals. He said they could be found by employment of more women and older workers and a shift from non-essential civilian and non-defense industries to defense production.

Washington, Jan. 17 (AP)—Secretary of State Acheson said today the United States supported the latest United Nations cease-fire proposal as to Korea in order to "maintain the unity of the free nations against aggression." Acheson devoted much of a news conference to explaining the American U.N. vote which drew sharp criticism from many Congress members. At the time of his conference, there were news reports from Tokyo saying the Chinese Communists had rejected the "cease fire" appeal. Acheson said, however, he had received no word on that.

Byrnes said: "It is said that western European governments have not raised armies for their own defense. In view of our record, we should not complain. In 1948, after Czechoslovakia had fallen, I made a speech urging that it was so clear the Soviets planned domination of the world we should cease all non-defense expenditures and immediately draft men to increase our military forces. Many others made similar pleas. Little was done."

Cannot Be Ignored

On the matter of the later debate, concerning the dispatch of American troops to Europe, Byrnes said:

"The argument that additional troops should not be sent to Europe cannot be ignored. It cannot be answered by the statement that we must comply with our obligations. The Atlantic treaty and the U.N. do not require us to act except in case of aggression.

"But there is a requirement more urgent than these—the requirement of self-defense."

Too Late for Debates

In effect, he said the hour is much too late for such debates.

"Responsible leaders can and should be assisted by constructive discussion of our foreign policies but that discussion should be dispassionate and dignified, not demagogic and destructive."

If Byrnes was speaking for the south, with its great military tradition and its unusually marked contribution to American arms, this was the most important statement in his speech:

"The last vestige of isolationism left the shores of America on the wings of the plane that carried the first atomic bomb to Hiroshima."

Raider Teams . . .

pounded the enemy. B-29 Superforts of the Far East air forces blasted Kaesong and Chongju Wednesday with 176 tons of explosives. Kaesong, a few miles south of Parallel 38, is a rail and highway junction. Chongju is in northwest Korea on the main Red supply line from Manchuria.

Wave after wave of B-29s hit the rail yards at Kaesong and Chongju in clear weather. Pilots said the raids were successful.

East of Seoul toward Ichon and abandoned Wonju on the central Korean front Red Korean and Chinese troops dug in. They were not rushing to attack the new allied positions.

Instead, they kept up steady harrassment of allied supply lines with busy guerrillas. U. S. Eighth Army headquarters has been reluctant to discuss guerrilla activity in any specific Korean section. But an allied corps commander said his raiders were hitting the guerrillas wherever they were found. Seventeen were killed Monday out of a band of 200 near the east coast port of Samchok.

Morse Asks Draft

ness group, including Johnson, insist that increases in the armed forces to the nearly 3,500,000 asked by President Truman can be drafted from the present 19 through 25 year pool.

Favors One Point

Johnson has suggested a minimum draft age of 18 years and six months with a prohibition against overseas duty until the recruit is 19.

Secretary of Labor Tobin yesterday backed up administration plans to defer key skilled workers and executives for industrial and agricultural production, as well as students who would provide the technicians, doctors and other professional skills for the future.

Tobin told the subcommittee that 4,000,000 additional workers would be required to meet defense production goals. He said they could be found by employment of more women and older workers and a shift from non-essential civilian and non-defense industries to defense production.

Explains U. S. Vote

Washington, Jan. 17 (AP)—Secretary of State Acheson said today the United States supported the latest United Nations cease-fire proposal as to Korea in order to "maintain the unity of the free nations against aggression." Acheson devoted much of a news conference to explaining the American U.N. vote which drew sharp criticism from many Congress members. At the time of his conference, there were news reports from Tokyo saying the Chinese Communists had rejected the "cease fire" appeal. Acheson said, however, he had received no word on that.

Flanagan, Ortale FormLawCombine

A new law partnership has been formed here between one of the city's best known lawyers for the past 35 years and a young attorney, who has been practicing since 1942 when he was admitted to the Bar.

Chris J. Flanagan, who has engaged in a number of important trials in this area, is the senior member of the new firm, and the junior is Robert M. Ortale.

The partnership will conduct its law business uptown in the offices that have been occupied over a period of years by Attorney Flanagan at 276 Fair street.

Ortale is a graduate of Kingston High School, class of 1935. He was graduated from the University of Notre Dame in 1939 and from Albany Law School in 1942. He was admitted to the New York State Bar the same year.

During World War 2, Ortale served as a lieutenant, junior grade, in the navy for more than two years. After his discharge in 1946, he became associated with Flanagan in the practice of law.

Barbara's frozen body, unclothed except for overshoes, socks and shoes, was found yesterday afternoon spread-eagled near a pile of rotting timber in a field about three blocks from her home. A bloodstained plank lay nearby.

Alimony is like paying installments on a car after the wreck.

Arriving home earlier than usual, he found his wife in the arms of his best friend.

Friend—I love your wife and she loves me. I'll play you a game of cards for her. If I win, I promise never to see her again. How about gin rummy?

Husband—All right, and how about a penny a point to make the game interesting.

Under the free government, the will of the people is carried out through the process of proposal, disagreement, discussion, and compromise.

Harris—What did the guy who held you up look like?

Kinney—He was a short bald guy about six feet tall with black hair.

One Married Man—Fancy letting your wife go about telling the neighbors she made a man of you! You don't hear my wife saying that.

Second Same—No, but I heard her telling my wife that she's done her best.

Isn't it a curious situation that the United States now owns $24,-500,000,000 worth of gold, more than 60 per cent of the earth's known supply and still stands ready to buy from all the world at $35 an ounce?

Professor—Why did you come to college, anyway? You are not studying.

Willie—I don't know exactly myself. Mother says it is to fit me for the Presidency; Uncle Bill, to sow my wild oats; Sis, to get a chum for her to marry, and Pa, to bankrupt the family.

Dean—And where have you been for the last week?

Ladies Will Discuss Pies, Fashions at Growers Meeting

While their men are talking about how to raise and market better apples, wives of fruit growers will meet on Thursday, January 25, to find out who can bake the best apple pie and to talk about fashions.

The men will be in the second day of the annual eastern meeting of the New York State Horticultural Society in session at the state armory here from January 24 to 26. The women will meet at the First Baptist Church on Albany avenue for a special ladies' day program.

The Horticultural Society has met in Kingston every year since 1936. The past three years there has been a noticeable trend toward granting recognition to the wives of the fruit growers who attend the sessions.

Ladies' day programs were held on an informal basis in 1949 and 1950. This year the program takes on a more formal note with its listing as "Hudson Valley Women's Horticultural Society Meeting" instead of merely as a "Ladies' Day Program."

The ladies have scheduled a discussion on the possibility of organizing a permanent society, with nominal dues.

Prize for Best Pie

Of special interest this year will be an apple pie contest open to all interested persons. The Kingston Chamber of Commerce will provide a prize for the best pie baked, and the Horticultural Society will continue its prize for the best pie made from McIntosh apples.

Pies entered in the contest must be in place at the First Baptist Church by 1:15 p. m. Thursday, January 25. Pie and container will become the property of the Ladies' Society to be sold to raise funds for the society, unless the contestant specifies otherwise.

Judging will be on appearance, color, moisture content, tenderness, texture, taste and flavor of the crust; and appearance, color, consistency, texture, taste and flavor of the filling.

The pie contest is open to all women. It is in addition to a separate contest for 4-H Club members for apple, currant and cherry pies.

The women's program itself will get under way at 1:30 p. m. at the church. Featured will be a talk by Mrs. Grace L. Hudowalski, travel promotion supervisor of the State Department of Commerce. She will talk on the topic of dress materials and patterns developed from New York state folklore and history. The writer of many articles about outdoor recreation, Mrs. Hudowalski is the first woman on record to climb all 46 of the Adirondack peaks which are 4,000 feet or more in elevation—and she climbed each of them twice. She has been with the commerce department since 1945.

Fashions Talk

A talk on new clothing styles and fabrics will be given by Mrs. Roger Loughran of Hurley, who proved to be a popular speaker at the first ladies' day program in 1949.

There will also be a food demonstration by a 4-H Club member, and exhibits from all Hudson Valley County Home Bureaus interested. The Geneva Experiment Station will have an exhibit on calcium treatment of apples and tomatoes, and the department of commerce will exhibit a model roadside stand.

The committee in charge of this year's ladies' program is headed by Mrs. C. C. DuMond, Jr., of Ulster Park. Other members are Mrs. DuBois Riley, Mrs. J. W. TenBroeck, Mrs. Milton Cosman and Mrs. E. Stuart Hubbard, Jr.

Gave Wrong Pull

Monterrey Park, Calif., Jan. 17 (AP)—Patrick John Regan of El Monte used the wrong defense. He said he was drunk because he had just had six teeth pulled and he couldn't stand the pain. Police Judge Lester B. Steers thumbed through Regan's record. "You started having your teeth pulled in 1936," he observed. "By this time you shouldn't have a tooth in your head. Ten days in jail. Next case."

Asks $15,000 More

Los Angeles, Jan. 17 (AP)—Russell Birdwell claims James Roosevelt owes him another $15,000 for his services as publicist in Roosevelt's unsuccessful campaign last fall for governor of California. Birdwell filed suit yesterday, saying he had been paid $10,000 but believes his services worth $25,000.

Well Drillers Have Plans for Defense

James H. Stoutenburgh of Glenford, vice-president of the Empire State Water Well Drillers' Association, has been named chairman of a committee to survey the needs for the association's civil defense project.

Stoutenburgh pointed out that the well drillers' association, at its annual meeting in Utica, offered its services to Civil Defense authorities in event of a disaster. In the event of a bomb attack, he said, a shortage of drinking water often is one of the most pressing needs to alleviate suffering.

Other members of Stoutenburgh's committee are Robert McClean, Germantown; Neil Crandall, Oriskany, and Clifford E. Ehmke, Silver Creek.

The association has a membership of nearly 300 well drillers from the entire state. Regional meetings are held quarterly in various locations and the annual meeting has been held in Utica since 1941. At the last annual meeting, held January 10, Ray Knapp of Lancaster was elected president to succeed Fred Merrill, Jr., of Liverpool. Stoutenburgh was elected vice-president; Robert Klindt of Morris, secretary-treasurer, and Louis Molanchuk, Croton Falls, director.

MODENA

Modena, Jan. 17—The community of Modena was plunged into darkness over a period of several hours on Saturday evening and Sunday morning, when the electric service was interrupted.

Merrill Small, Sr., was elected junior deacon of Adonia Lodge, 718, F & A.M. at the annual election of officers held Monday evening at the Masonic Hall in Highland.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph E. Hasbrouck of this section, also Mrs. Grace DuBois, Marian and Evelyn DuBois of Gardiner were among guests entertained at a buffet supper at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Henry DuBois in New Paltz on Saturday evening.

Local members of the Plattekill Grange attended the regular meeting held Saturday evening in the Grange Hall, when first and second degrees of initiation were conferred.

Mrs. George Shultis of Kingston was a guest of Mrs. Myron Shultis on Thursday and Friday of the past week.

Mr. and Mrs. William Palmer of Jamaica, L. I., were recent visitors of relatives here.

Mrs. Bessie Gerow of New Paltz was among visitors of Mrs. A. D. Wager and daughter on Sunday.

Edward Hartney of Highland formerly of Modena has been again appointed chairman of the annual March of Dimes campaign of the Town of Plattekill.

Local people attended the wedding of Miss Betty Jeanne Tilghman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank C. Tilghman of Wallkill, and Floyd Harold Paltridge, son of Mrs. John Hogan of Long Island, and Harold Paltridge of Modena at the Shawangunk Reformed Church on Saturday, Jan. 13. After a wedding trip to New York, Mr. and Mrs. Paltridge will make their home in Walden. Mr. Paltridge, who is a member of the naval reserve, is associated with his father in the contracting and building business in Modena.

Mrs. Martin Tonneson entertained at her home on Monday afternoon, Mrs. Myron Shultis, Mrs. Edward Atchinson, Mrs. Archie Mackey, Mrs. Joseph E. Hasbrouck, Mrs. Leander Minard, Mrs. Theodore Ross.

Capt. and Mrs. Clifford Conklin and family of Washington, D. C., were recent visitors of relatives in New Paltz. Both Capt. and Mrs. Conklin were former residents of Modena.

Mrs. Andrew L. F. Deyo is chairman of the committee serving refreshments at the regular meeting of the Dutch Guild of the New Paltz Reformed Church held Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Ralph Buchanan, North Manheim Boulevard, New Paltz.

As Pegler Sees It

Phoenix, wrote: "Old man Gebhardt started three generations ago in New Braunfels and moved to San Antonio when Commerce St. was a donkey trail. The combination of seasoning in Gebhardt's is a secret. They are mixed and ground in old Mexico where they are grown on the company farms. Fifty years ago in Dallas an old fellow ran a hole in the wall chili counter with stools only until he had a stake to set up a fancy cafe to go broke in a few months and return to his hole in the wall which the owner always kept unleased for him to set up again knowing he would soon be back.

"Spaghetti red is spaghetti with cheese dressing and chili poured over the top. Take a fork in one hand, a hunk of bread in the other and chase the stuff into a corner and gormandize. Use a slab of bald-faced pie for dessert."

From Great Falls, Mont., James J. Flaherty writes: "In Charley Russell's great painting, 'A Bronc for Breakfast,' the center character is the cook, cursing out the cow-puncher who could not handle his bronc which had upset the coffee pot. The cook was the famous old Eli who drifted into Great Falls and ran the best lunch counter, where you sat on a high stool. He was tops with chili con carne. The high and mighty and the bums congregated at his counter in the back end of the 'mint'."

In New York, Will Corum, who subscribes to the St. Louis version of chili con, implying ground meat, has advised me to try the Alamo on 47th off Sixth, and I just remembered El Rancho, a Gebhardt parlor at 720 Seventh avenue, where our family traded years ago. Notwithstanding my duodenal bunion I might give El Rancho one more play. You only die once.

Ladies Will Discuss Pies, Fashions at Growers Meeting

While their men are talking about how to raise and market better apples, wives of fruit growers will meet on Thursday, January 25, to find out who can bake the best apple pie and to talk about fashions.

The men will be in the second day of the annual eastern meeting of the New York State Horticultural Society in session at the state armory here from January 24 to 26. The women will meet at the First Baptist Church on Albany avenue for a special ladies' day program.

The Horticultural Society has met in Kingston every year since 1936. The past three years there has been a noticeable trend toward granting recognition to the wives of the fruit growers who attend the sessions.

Ladies' day programs were held on an informal basis in 1949 and 1950. This year the program takes on a more formal note with its listing as "Hudson Valley Women's Horticultural Society Meeting" instead of merely as a "Ladies' Day Program."

The ladies have scheduled a discussion on the possibility of organizing a permanent society, with nominal dues.

Prize for Best Pie

Of special interest this year will be an apple pie contest open to all interested persons. The Kingston Chamber of Commerce will provide a prize for the best pie baked, and the Horticultural Society will continue its prize for the best pie made from McIntosh apples.

Pies entered in the contest must be in place at the First Baptist Church by 1:15 p. m. Thursday, January 25. Pie and container will become the property of the Ladies' Society to be sold to raise funds for the society, unless the contestant specifies otherwise.

Judging will be on appearance, color, moisture content, tenderness, texture, taste and flavor of the crust; and appearance, color, consistency, texture, taste and flavor of the filling.

The pie contest is open to all women. It is in addition to a separate contest for 4-H Club members for apple, currant and cherry pies.

The women's program itself will get under way at 1:30 p. m. at the church. Featured will be a talk by Mrs. Grace L. Hudowalski, travel promotion supervisor of the State Department of Commerce. She will talk on the topic of dress materials and patterns developed from New York state folklore and history. The writer of many articles about outdoor recreation, Mrs. Hudowalski is the first woman on record to climb all 46 of the Adirondack peaks which are 4,000 feet or more in elevation—and she climbed each of them twice. She has been with the commerce department since 1945.

Fashions Talk

A talk on new clothing styles and fabrics will be given by Mrs. Roger Loughran of Hurley, who proved to be a popular speaker at the first ladies' day program in 1949.

There will also be a food demonstration by a 4-H Club member, and exhibits from all Hudson Valley County Home Bureaus interested. The Geneva Experiment Station will have an exhibit on calcium treatment of apples and tomatoes, and the department of commerce will exhibit a model roadside stand.

The committee in charge of this year's ladies' program is headed by Mrs. C. C. DuMond, Jr., of Ulster Park. Other members are Mrs. DuBois Riley, Mrs. J. W. TenBroeck, Mrs. Milton Cosman and Mrs. E. Stuart Hubbard, Jr.

Gave Wrong Pull

Monterrey Park, Calif., Jan. 17 (AP)—Patrick John Regan of El Monte used the wrong defense. He said he was drunk because he had just had six teeth pulled and he couldn't stand the pain. Police Judge Lester B. Steers thumbed through Regan's record. "You started having your teeth pulled in 1936," he observed. "By this time you shouldn't have a tooth in your head. Ten days in jail. Next case."

Asks $15,000 More

Los Angeles, Jan. 17 (AP)—Russell Birdwell claims James Roosevelt owes him another $15,000 for his services as publicist in Roosevelt's unsuccessful campaign last fall for governor of California. Birdwell filed suit yesterday, saying he had been paid $10,000 but believes his services worth $25,000.

Well Drillers Have Plans for Defense

James H. Stoutenburgh of Glenford, vice-president of the Empire State Water Well Drillers' Association, has been named chairman of a committee to survey the needs for the association's civil defense project.

Stoutenburgh pointed out that the well drillers' association, at its annual meeting in Utica, offered its services to Civil Defense authorities in event of a disaster. In the event of a bomb attack, he said, a shortage of drinking water often is one of the most pressing needs to alleviate suffering.

Other members of Stoutenburgh's committee are Robert McClean, Germantown; Neil Crandall, Oriskany, and Clifford E. Ehmke, Silver Creek.

The association has a membership of nearly 300 well drillers from the entire state. Regional meetings are held quarterly in various locations and the annual meeting has been held in Utica since 1941. At the last annual meeting, held January 10, Ray Knapp of Lancaster was elected president to succeed Fred Merrill, Jr., of Liverpool. Stoutenburgh was elected vice-president; Robert Klindt of Morris, secretary-treasurer, and Louis Molanchuk, Croton Falls, director.

MODENA

Modena, Jan. 17—The community of Modena was plunged into darkness over a period of several hours on Saturday evening and Sunday morning, when the electric service was interrupted.

Merrill Small, Sr., was elected junior deacon of Adonia Lodge, 718, F & A.M. at the annual election of officers held Monday evening at the Masonic Hall in Highland.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph E. Hasbrouck of this section, also Mrs. Grace DuBois, Marian and Evelyn DuBois of Gardiner were among guests entertained at a buffet supper at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Henry DuBois in New Paltz on Saturday evening.

Local members of the Plattekill Grange attended the regular meeting held Saturday evening in the Grange Hall, when first and second degrees of initiation were conferred.

Mrs. George Shultis of Kingston was a guest of Mrs. Myron Shultis on Thursday and Friday of the past week.

Mr. and Mrs. William Palmer of Jamaica, L. I., were recent visitors of relatives here.

Mrs. Bessie Gerow of New Paltz was among visitors of Mrs. A. D. Wager and daughter on Sunday.

Edward Hartney of Highland formerly of Modena has been again appointed chairman of the annual March of Dimes campaign of the Town of Plattekill.

Local people attended the wedding of Miss Betty Jeanne Tilghman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank C. Tilghman of Wallkill, and Floyd Harold Paltridge, son of Mrs. John Hogan of Long Island, and Harold Paltridge of Modena at the Shawangunk Reformed Church on Saturday, Jan. 13. After a wedding trip to New York, Mr. and Mrs. Paltridge will make their home in Walden. Mr. Paltridge, who is a member of the naval reserve, is associated with his father in the contracting and building business in Modena.

Mrs. Martin Tonneson entertained at her home on Monday afternoon, Mrs. Myron Shultis, Mrs. Edward Atchinson, Mrs. Archie Mackey, Mrs. Joseph E. Hasbrouck, Mrs. Leander Minard, Mrs. Theodore Ross.

Capt. and Mrs. Clifford Conklin and family of Washington, D. C., were recent visitors of relatives in New Paltz. Both Capt. and Mrs. Conklin were former residents of Modena.

Mrs. Andrew L. F. Deyo is chairman of the committee serving refreshments at the regular meeting of the Dutch Guild of the New Paltz Reformed Church held Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Ralph Buchanan, North Manheim Boulevard, New Paltz.

As Pegler Sees It

Phoenix, wrote: "Old man Gebhardt started three generations ago in New Braunfels and moved to San Antonio when Commerce St. was a donkey trail. The combination of seasoning in Gebhardt's is a secret. They are mixed and ground in old Mexico where they are grown on the company farms. Fifty years ago in Dallas an old fellow ran a hole in the wall chili counter with stools only until he had a stake to set up a fancy cafe to go broke in a few months and return to his hole in the wall which the owner always kept unleased for him to set up again knowing he would soon be back.

"Spaghetti red is spaghetti with cheese dressing and chili poured over the top. Take a fork in one hand, a hunk of bread in the other and chase the stuff into a corner and gormandize. Use a slab of bald-faced pie for dessert."

From Great Falls, Mont., James J. Flaherty writes: "In Charley Russell's great painting, 'A Bronc for Breakfast,' the center character is the cook, cursing out the cow-puncher who could not handle his bronc which had upset the coffee pot. The cook was the famous old Eli who drifted into Great Falls and ran the best lunch counter, where you sat on a high stool. He was tops with chili con carne. The high and mighty and the bums congregated at his counter in the back end of the 'mint'."

In New York, Will Corum, who subscribes to the St. Louis version of chili con, implying ground meat, has advised me to try the Alamo on 47th off Sixth, and I just remembered El Rancho, a Gebhardt parlor at 720 Seventh avenue, where our family traded years ago. Notwithstanding my duodenal bunion I might give El Rancho one more play. You only die once.

THE PHILHARMONIC PIANO QUARTET

Community Concert to Feature American Artists in Philharmonic Piano Quartet

The Community Concert Association will be host next Monday to four talented young American artists, hailed by the New York Times as "a virtuoso ensemble," the Philharmonic Piano Quartet. And traveling with them, will be four carefully selected Steinway grand pianos.

The program, which will begin at 8:30 p. m. in Kingston High School auditorium, will range from the classic, time honored Mozart to "Toccata Guatemala," a combination of two native Guatemalan tunes arranged by Sam Morgenstern, who first heard them in their native setting.

The quartet is not a newcomer to the "road." Their 40 fleet fingers, in two sold-out tours of the United States and Canada, have earned them laurels for their versatility, and virtuosity. In addition to concert work, the quartet has often been heard over the air, at the Lewisohn Stadium concerts, and recently at the Roxy Theatre in New York. They are also known for their record album, "Music for Four Pianos."

Steuermann's Pupil

Ada Kopetz, a native-born New Yorker, has studied piano in California under Steuermann, and in New York with James Friskin. During World War 2 under the auspices of the U.S.O., she toured both this country, and Canada presenting concert and hospital programs. She has done solo work with the City Symphony, and at Radio City Music Hall.

Bertha Melnik, the other feminine member of the Piano Quartet, hails from Hartford, Conn. Her studies carried her to Fontainebleau, France, where she was a pupil under Robert Casadesus. She also studied under Alexander Siloti. Her auspicious recital debut was made in Town Hall, New York, in February, 1947.

Oklahoma Born

Born in Oklahoma, John G. Scales, after he had received his B.M. degree from Oklahoma Baptist University, set out for the east. Here he studied under Gordon Stanley, and earned his master's degree from Columbia University.

The Philharmonic Piano Quartet's fourth member, Max Walmer, came from Kansas, and was graduated from Lindsborg's Bethany College, before finding his way to the musician's Mecca, New York. Once there he too studied under Alexander Siloti, as well as with Rosina Lhevinne.

Scales is known for his professional radio and recording work, while Walmer acted as pianist for the Nine O'Clock Opera Company in its transcontinental tours, as well as serving as accompanist for many well-known artists.

Kingston Program

The quartet's program Monday night will include the overture to "The Marriage of Figaro," Mozart; "Variations on a Theme of Haydn, Op. 56," Brahms; "To Be Sung on the Waters," Schubert; "Etude in G-sharp minor," Chopin; "Consolation, D flat," Liszt; "Scherzo" from "Midsummer Night's Dream," Mendelssohn; "Orgia," Joaquin Turina; "Procession" from "Peter and the Wolf," Prokofieff; excerpts from "The Nutcracker Ballet," Tschaikowsky; "Toccata Guatemala," composed and arranged by Sam Morgenstern; "Offenbachiana," arranged for the quartet from the works of Jacques Offenbach; "Cradle Song," traditional; and "Square Reel," Scott Watson.

THE PHILHARMONIC PIANO QUARTET

Community Concert to Feature American Artists in Philharmonic Piano Quartet

The Community Concert Association will be host next Monday to four talented young American artists, hailed by the New York Times as "a virtuoso ensemble," the Philharmonic Piano Quartet. And traveling with them, will be four carefully selected Steinway grand pianos.

The program, which will begin at 8:30 p. m. in Kingston High School auditorium, will range from the classic, time honored Mozart to "Toccata Guatemala," a combination of two native Guatemalan tunes arranged by Sam Morgenstern, who first heard them in their native setting.

The quartet is not a newcomer to the "road." Their 40 fleet fingers, in two sold-out tours of the United States and Canada, have earned them laurels for their versatility, and virtuosity. In addition to concert work, the quartet has often been heard over the air, at the Lewisohn Stadium concerts, and recently at the Roxy Theatre in New York. They are also known for their record album, "Music for Four Pianos."

Steuermann's Pupil

Ada Kopetz, a native-born New Yorker, has studied piano in California under Steuermann, and in New York with James Friskin. During World War 2 under the auspices of the U.S.O., she toured both this country, and Canada presenting concert and hospital programs. She has done solo work with the City Symphony, and at Radio City Music Hall.

Bertha Melnik, the other feminine member of the Piano Quartet, hails from Hartford, Conn. Her studies carried her to Fontainebleau, France, where she was a pupil under Robert Casadesus. She also studied under Alexander Siloti. Her auspicious recital debut was made in Town Hall, New York, in February, 1947.

Oklahoma Born

Born in Oklahoma, John G. Scales, after he had received his B.M. degree from Oklahoma Baptist University, set out for the east. Here he studied under Gordon Stanley, and earned his master's degree from Columbia University.

The Philharmonic Piano Quartet's fourth member Max Walmer, came from Kansas, and was graduated from Lindsborg's Bethany College, before finding his way to the musician's Mecca, New York. Once there he too studied under Alexander Siloti, as well as with Rosina Lhevinne.

Scales is known for his professional radio and recording work, while Walmer acted as pianist for the Nine O'Clock Opera Company in its transcontinental tours, as well as serving as accompanist for many well-known artists.

Kingston Program

The quartet's program Monday night will include the overture to "The Marriage of Figaro," Mozart; "Variations on a Theme of Haydn, Op. 56," Brahms; "To Be Sung on the Waters," Schubert; "Etude in G-sharp minor," Chopin; "Consolation, D flat," Liszt; "Scherzo" from "Midsummer Night's Dream," Mendelssohn; "Orgia," Joaquin Turina; "Procession" from "Peter and the Wolf," Prokofieff; excerpts from "The Nutcracker Ballet," Tschaikowsky; "Toccata Guatemala," composed and arranged by Sam Morgenstern; "Offenbachiana," arranged for the quartet from the works of Jacques Offenbach; "Cradle Song," traditional; and "Square Reel," Scott Watson.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a white satin gown with lace inserts, and a train. Her fingertip veil was fastened to a crown of seed pearls, and she carried a bouquet of carnations, and snapdragons.

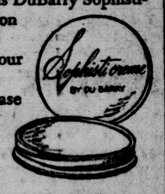
Make-Up Secrets from the Richard Hudnut Salon

Have you ever analyzed the features of some woman you thought particularly beautiful—perhaps a star of stage or screen? If you have, you will realize her features are probably no better than your own. But that woman you admire knows a secret—the secret of glamorous make-up—and you can know it, too.

Here at the Richard Hudnut Salon we teach make-up to enhance your best features—minimize your feature faults. The basis for any truly lovely, lasting make-up is DuBarry Sophisti-Creme. Smooth on this cream-cake make-up to give your skin the petal-soft look—a perfect base for the rest of your make-up.



Next, your DuBarry Cream Rouge to subdue angles and heighten contours. Remember, where you rouge, you shadow, and shadows reduce the prominence of feature faults such as over-wide cheekbones or a square jaw. Blend your rouge in smoothly so it fades away into your skin. Rouge adds color and warmth to your face, too.

Now apply DuBarry Face Powder. Pick up a generous amount of powder on puff or cotton and press it firmly on the entire surface of neck and face—then lightly dust off any surplus. This will give you a smooth, even, well-groomed look; "set" your make-up so it will last for hours.

Last, but not least, your lipstick—DuBarry Lipstick, of course, to brighten your whole face with the brightness of your lips. DuBarry Lipstick won't tell tales, either. This new wonder formula won't easily eat off, drink off, or kiss off.

DuBarry Beauty Preparations are hypo-allergenic—scientifically blended to agree with your skin. DuBarry Sophisti-Creme, Cream Rouge, Face Powder—$1 each. DuBarry Lipstick $1 and $1.50. All prices plus tax at...

St. Ursula Names 'Life With Father' For Annual Play

The rollicking Broadway comedy, "Life with Father," that celebrated more birthdays with birthday cakes, probably, than any other Great White Way hit, has been named by the dramatic committee of the Academy of St. Ursula as this year's choice for stage production. Clarence Day's familiar story, adapted to the stage by Harold Lindsay and Russell Crouse, it was announced, is already in rehearsal. The production, a two-night stand, is to open February 4 with curtain time at 8 p. m.

An epic picture of life in the colorful, and fabulous, bustle-backed '80s, when New York's Central Park was a farm, and the elevated a new miracle, the stage life of the Day home has achieved that degree of human warmth that comes when a house is inhabited by a family enjoying its own company. Minor and major confusions crop up, and run their gamut, as the extremely volatile group of four red-haired boys, their spirited, red-haired mother, and their dominant, red-haired father, make their stage appearances. The four groups of boys who "outgrew" their roles, during its phenomenal New York run, stand ample testimony to Clarence Day's popular lines.

The play will be given in St. Mary's auditorium and St. Joseph's auditorium February 4 and 5 respectively. Tickets may be purchased from academy students or at the academy.

WIFE ASKS TO BE EXONERATED

A wife sends a request which sounds as urgent as it is unusual: "Please explain in your column without delay, that I did NOT write the recent letter you printed asking whether it was not inconsiderate for a man to insist upon displaying his first wife's picture in their living room. That is what is done in our house and when my husband read your answer to an almost identical situation, he took for granted that I was the hurt wife who wrote you. Needless to say, he's been very upset ever since!"

Surely your husband will realize, if he thinks about it, that there must be many problems duplicated every day in my letters. But I can at least assure him that I have no record of having received a letter from you before and therefore the letter I anwered couldn't have been yours.

Engagement Gift

Dear Mrs. Post: Please tell me if a gift is expected from us after the engagement of my son is announced?

Answer: Engagement gifts are never an obligation; nevertheless, it is a welcoming gesture for his family to give her a present—particularly something personal for herself.

Buying Wedding Corsages

Dear Mrs. Post: Who buys the corsages worn by both mothers at the wedding?

Answer: It is true that in some localities the bridegroom buys them, but the more usual custom is for the husbands to buy those worn by their wives. Widows usually order their own.

Rangoon, Burma, Jan. 17 (AP)—A Burma Court today judged Dr. Gordon Seagrave, World War Two's "Burma Surgeon," guilty of high treason. The 53-year-old American was sentenced to serve six years in prison for aiding hill tribesmen rebelling against the Burmese government. Make-Up Secrets from the Richard Hudnut Salon

Have you ever analyzed the features of some woman you thought particularly beautiful—perhaps a star of stage or screen? If you have, you will realize her features are probably no better than your own. But that woman you admire knows a secret—the secret of glamorous make-up—and you can know it, too.

Here at the Richard Hudnut Salon we teach make-up to enhance your best features—minimize your feature faults. The basis for any truly lovely, lasting make-up is DuBarry Sophisti-Creme. Smooth on this cream-cake make-up to give your skin the petal-soft look—a perfect base for the rest of your make-up.

Next, your DuBarry Cream Rouge to subdue angles and heighten contours. Remember, where you rouge, you shadow, and shadows reduce the prominence of feature faults such as over-wide cheekbones or a square jaw. Blend your rouge in smoothly so it fades away into your skin. Rouge adds color and warmth to your face, too.

Now apply DuBarry Face Powder. Pick up a generous amount of powder on puff or cotton and press it firmly on the entire surface of neck and face—then lightly dust off any surplus. This will give you a smooth, even, well-groomed look; "set" your make-up so it will last for hours.

Last, but not least, your lipstick—DuBarry Lipstick, of course, to brighten your whole face with the brightness of your lips. DuBarry Lipstick won't tell tales, either. This new wonder formula won't easily eat off, drink off, or kiss off.

DuBarry Beauty Preparations are hypo-allergenic—scientifically blended to agree with your skin. DuBarry Sophisti-Creme, Cream Rouge, Face Powder—$1 each. DuBarry Lipstick $1 and $1.50. All prices plus tax at...

WEDDING RINGS

Richard Meyer
30 JOHN ST. — JEWELER — KINGSTON, N. Y.
"A Family of Jewelers for Over a Century."

St. Ursula Names 'Life With Father' For Annual Play

The rollicking Broadway comedy, "Life with Father," that celebrated more birthdays with birthday cakes, probably, than any other Great White Way hit, has been named by the dramatic committee of the Academy of St. Ursula as this year's choice for stage production. Clarence Day's familiar story, adapted to the stage by Harold Lindsay and Russell Crouse, it was announced, is already in rehearsal. The production, a two-night stand, is to open February 4 with curtain time at 8 p. m.

An epic picture of life in the colorful, and fabulous, bustle-backed '80s, when New York's Central Park was a farm, and the elevated a new miracle, the stage life of the Day home has achieved that degree of human warmth that comes when a house is inhabited by a family enjoying its own company. Minor and major confusions crop up, and run their gamut, as the extremely volatile group of four red-haired boys, their spirited, red-haired mother, and their dominant, red-haired father, make their stage appearances. The four groups of boys who "outgrew" their roles, during its phenomenal New York run, stand ample testimony to Clarence Day's popular lines.

The play will be given in St. Mary's auditorium and St. Joseph's auditorium February 4 and 5 respectively. Tickets may be purchased from academy students or at the academy.

WIFE ASKS TO BE EXONERATED

A wife sends a request which sounds as urgent as it is unusual: "Please explain in your column without delay, that I did NOT write the recent letter you printed asking whether it was not inconsiderate for a man to insist upon displaying his first wife's picture in their living room. That is what is done in our house and when my husband read your answer to an almost identical situation, he took for granted that I was the hurt wife who wrote you. Needless to say, he's been very upset ever since!"

Surely your husband will realize, if he thinks about it, that there must be many problems duplicated every day in my letters. But I can at least assure him that I have no record of having received a letter from you before and therefore the letter I anwered couldn't have been yours.

Engagement Gift

Dear Mrs. Post: Please tell me if a gift is expected from us after the engagement of my son is announced?

Answer: Engagement gifts are never an obligation; nevertheless, it is a welcoming gesture for his family to give her a present—particularly something personal for herself.

Buying Wedding Corsages

Dear Mrs. Post: Who buys the corsages worn by both mothers at the wedding?

Answer: It is true that in some localities the bridegroom buys them, but the more usual custom is for the husbands to buy those worn by their wives. Widows usually order their own.

High School Beats Catskill, 59-43; Ellenville Plays Here Thursday

Maroon Center Plays Best Game of Season

Kingston High's "breather" against Catskill High came out according to format last night, but not until both clubs spent almost as much time rolling on the Catskill hardwoods as they did racing over them.

The final score of 59-43 left little doubt of the Maroon's superiority and again they achieved it the hard way.

With Don Sims, a center of DUSO League calibre hitting for nine points, the home cagers ran up a nine-point lead in the early stages of the first period but the Kiasmen reduced it to 16-15 at the quarter mark.

Carpouzis' shot sent Kingston ahead 17-16 early in the second period and the Maroons were never headed. They piled up a 16-4 edge in that session to walk off the floor with a 31-20 lead.

Two quick baskets widened the Maroon bulge to 13 points and they moved to a 47-31 lead going into the final period. A Catskill spurt sliced the lead by eight points but the locals regained control to win going away.

Referees Conte and Wagner called 44 personals, not unusual, and four technicals (quite unusual) and the contest was far rougher and ragged than the score might indicate. Four Kingston players had four personal fouls when the game ended and "Bones" Hampton was ejected in the final period for disagreeing with the referee's eyesight.

Leonard Stars

The keen duel between the rival centers—Mill Leonard of Kingston and Don Sims of Catskill—furnished an interesting sidelight. Sims scored 24 points to Leonard's 20 but both were steady throughout the four quarters of action. Sims didn't get too much support from his teammates, while Leroy Hooker boosted the Kingston total with 17 points. George Carpouzis was held to a comparatively low total of eight.

Leonard played his best all-round game of the season and stayed close enough to Sims to prevent the Catskill center from making it a one-man show. An oddity in the boxscore was the five straight fouls converted by Yip Koenig in the final period.

The Maroon foul shooting showed considerable improvement with 17 in 22 attempts, Leonard accounting for six. They had only 3 in 21 against Liberty.

The victory was the seventh in eight starts for Kingston which meets Ellenville in a DUSO League contest Thursday night at 8 o'clock at the municipal auditorium. The Jayvee squads meet in the preliminary at 6:30 p. m.

The K. H. S. Jayvees reeled off eight straight points near the end of the second period to slice a Catskill Jayvee lead from 23-11 to 23-19 at the half and then went on to dominate second half play for a 46-39 victory, last night in the preliminary game in Catskill.

The Maroon yearling led 29-28 going into the stretch and piled up a 17-11 margin, controlling the ball through virtually all of the last few minutes.

Don Dempsey and Mousey Telepas paced the Maroon attack with 14 points apiece. Bucky Bower had six points and rebounded impressively. Swain and Ferretti scored 11 and 10 points respectively for the losers.

Betz Has Boost For Gussie Moran

Los Angeles, Jan. 17 (AP)—Gertrude (Gussy) Moran has been taking a "bum rap" on her ability as a tennis player on her professional tour with the Bobby Riggs troupe.

Authority for that observation is her opponent, Pauline Betz, four time women's amateur champion before turning pro herself.

The gorgeous one, declared Miss Betz, a comely young matron herself, "is a lot better player than she gets credit for being. Her ground strokes are splendid and I can vouch for the fact that there is nothing missing in her competitive spirit."

The "bum rap" started when the pros opened the tour in Madison Square Garden in New York Nov. 26.

"Gussy was very nervous, and so was I that night. I think Jack was, too," the Titian haired Pauline continued. "We knew we didn't play well that night, and it took us four or five matches before we began to play good tennis.

"But the critics jumped on Gussy and the feeling has persisted that she is—well, not a good player. They shouldn't have condemned the tour on the one opening match."

Reported Boycott of Penn by Ivy Stirs Cross-Country Grid Rhubarb

Slur on Yale, Harvard Started Trouble

Philadelphia, Jan. 17 (AP)—If Pennsylvania's football team is having schedule trouble with fellow Ivy League members, as it claims, nobody is confirming it. In fact, there's been nothing but denials.

A New York sports columnist smoked it all out yesterday when he wrote that the sedate Ivy League, excepting Cornell, is boycotting—or planning to boycott—Penn's Red and Blue. The scheduling difficulties reportedly will start after 1952.

Ivy League football teams are Penn, Cornell, Yale, Harvard, Princeton, Dartmouth, Columbia and Brown. The group, actually, has no official standing. It was named by sportswriters.

Quaker president Harold E. Stassen blamed the troubles on Penn's efforts to meet Notre Dame on the gridiron in 1952.

But columnist Joe Williams of the New York World-Telegram and Sun said the uppity-uppity Ivy football teams took offense at a recent Stassen remark—and thus started the cold shoulder treatment of Penn as a future grid opponent.

Stassen rejected Williams' interpretation this way:

"It is my understanding that the real reason for the scheduling difficulty is that some athletic officials object to Pennsylvania's anticipated game with Notre Dame in 1952.

"I do not believe in boycotting Notre Dame or any other American college team whether they are weak or strong, north or south, east or west."

Stassen didn't explain the "objections" to Notre Dame but a reliable university source, who declined identification, said Ivy League officials regard the Fighting Irish as below par scholastically. And if Penn plays Notre Dame it means the Quakers condone the Irish academic policy.

Irish Reply

Notre Dame's athletic director Ed (Moose) Krause replied:

"Our academic requirements are equal to, if not better than, those of the Ivy League or any other institution in the country.

"Our entrance requirements, and class standards, are absolutely beyond reproach and all anyone has to do to prove it is to investigate and determine for himself."

Williams said the Stassen remark that touched off the cross-country burst of comment, mostly denying the boycott but never confirming it, was this:

"Penn will never drop a team from its schedule because the team has beaten Penn consistently."

Slur on Harvard

Williams interpreted this as a slur on Harvard and Yale, both of whom have severed grid relations with Penn—Harvard in 1942, Yale a year later.

Wrote Williams: "Unless Stassen apologies—and he does not impress me as a fellow who makes excuses for his convictions—Penn will have to strike out for itself as an independent power."

Only Cornell, Williams said, will play Penn as it has done every year since 1893 "because the Cornell-Penn game is history-packed and solid box office." He added:

"The boycott of the Ivies will become complete as soon as the games previously scheduled are carried out."

Penn's 1951 schedule includes Dartmouth, Princeton, Columbia and Cornell. Brown, not Princeton, was on the 1950 schedule.

Stassen has said numerous times that Penn wants to schedule Harvard and Yale.

Quiz of the week: With his chairmanship of the county polio drive, presidency of Colonial City Baseball, Inc., city bowling tournament managership and a dairy to manage, when does Addison "Mr. Bowling" Jones sleep?

March of Dimes week for Kingston bowlers will be from January 21 to January 27. . . . "Bo" Gill, eminent Newburgh golfer, chides the United Press for including Army among the MAJOR unbeaten college basketball squads. Friend "Bo" takes jaded view of Kingston hoopala about Big Ed Weaver. . . . Whatever happened to the Recreation re-entry into the Orange-Sullivan Basketball League or is Andy Murphy holding out on us? The O-S League never bothers to send out an official standing or scoring statistics. Woodridge Atoms, the pros from the hills of Sullivan county (and nearby states) always manage to inspire a 30-point scorer. Larry Krieger dunked that total as the Atoms shaded Newburgh, 80-78, in Newburgh.

Old Joe Louis, the Mighty Methuselah, says he'll quit "for sure" if he loses one more fight. On plans for his retirement, the old Bomber is seriously challenging the record set by Adeline Patti of Opera fame.

Poughkeepsie and Newburgh Jayvees tied for the DUSO junior varsity lead with six wins and one defeat. Champ Holstein, who is burning up the Y Basketball League, has received his greetings from Uncle Sam. Big Bob Ghear, George Holstein and others making inquiries about the Navy. Lou Schafer said the Y League has lost seven men to the service since the start of the 1950-51 season. He says he'll be happy to wind up with a corporal's guard next spring. If Ronnie Scheffel graduates to the St. Bonaventure varsity next year, he'll be playing a major league schedule. S.R.O. games—Kingston High at Pokeep and Kingston at Newburgh. Wonder if Sam Kalloch will invite Oswald Tower to be on hand, just in case. Basketball, the truly American game, is played by 20 million people in 60 countries.

Sal Maglie is one ball player who got something more than money in the Mexican League. It was there that Maglie completed his pitching education at a rather late date under Adolf Luque.

The old-time Cuban curve-baller taught Maglie the odds and ends, how to pitch in spots; when and where to throw the curve, the importance of getting a piece of the plate with it.

Maglie throws with an almost three-quarter motion, and while he is swift enough, he is more on the cute side, and one of the superior fielding pitchers.

Another pick-up or two like Hearn or Maglie and the New York Giants would indeed be tough. Monte Irvin batted .344 the last eight weeks of last season, and was adequate at first base. During that span, the six-foot, 195-pound Orange, N. J., Negro cracked 10 home runs, as many doubles and four triples, lifting his average from .250 to an even .300.

Monte Irvin is another of the numerous reasons why the Giants, the fastest traveling outfit in baseball from July 20 on the last trip, will be the most interesting club in major league training.

High School Beats Catskill, 59-43; Ellenville Plays Here Thursday

Maroon Center Plays Best Game of Season

Kingston High's "breather" against Catskill High came out according to format last night, but not until both clubs spent almost as much time rolling on the Catskill hardwoods as they did racing over them.

The final score of 59-43 left little doubt of the Maroon's superiority and again they achieved it the hard way.

With Don Sims, a center of DUSO League calibre hitting for nine points, the home cagers ran up a nine-point lead in the early stages of the first period but the Kiasmen reduced it to 16-15 at the quarter mark.

Carpouzis' shot sent Kingston ahead 17-16 early in the second period and the Maroons were never headed. They piled up a 16-4 edge in that session to walk off the floor with a 31-20 lead.

Two quick baskets widened the Maroon bulge to 13 points and they moved to a 47-31 lead going into the final period. A Catskill spurt sliced the lead by eight points but the locals regained control to win going away.

Referees Conte and Wagner called 44 personals, not unusual, and four technicals (quite unusual) and the contest was far rougher and ragged than the score might indicate. Four Kingston players had four personal fouls when the game ended and "Bones" Hampton was ejected in the final period for disagreeing with the referee's eyesight.

Leonard Stars

The keen duel between the rival centers—Mill Leonard of Kingston and Don Sims of Catskill—furnished an interesting sidelight. Sims scored 24 points to Leonard's 20 but both were steady throughout the four quarters of action. Sims didn't get too much support from his teammates, while Leroy Hooker boosted the Kingston total with 17 points. George Carpouzis was held to a comparatively low total of eight.

Leonard played his best all-round game of the season and stayed close enough to Sims to prevent the Catskill center from making it a one-man show. An oddity in the boxscore was the five straight fouls converted by Yip Koenig in the final period.

The Maroon foul shooting showed considerable improvement with 17 in 22 attempts, Leonard accounting for six. They had only 3 in 21 against Liberty.

The victory was the seventh in eight starts for Kingston which meets Ellenville in a DUSO League contest Thursday night at 8 o'clock at the municipal auditorium. The Jayvee squads meet in the preliminary at 6:30 p. m.

The K. H. S. Jayvees reeled off eight straight points near the end of the second period to slice a Catskill Jayvee lead from 23-11 to 23-19 at the half and then went on to dominate second half play for a 46-39 victory, last night in the preliminary game in Catskill.

The Maroon yearling led 29-28 going into the stretch and piled up a 17-11 margin, controlling the ball through virtually all of the last few minutes.

Don Dempsey and Mousey Telepas paced the Maroon attack with 14 points apiece. Bucky Bower had six points and rebounded impressively. Swain and Ferretti scored 11 and 10 points respectively for the losers.

Betz Has Boost For Gussie Moran

Los Angeles, Jan. 17 (AP)—Gertrude (Gussy) Moran has been taking a "bum rap" on her ability as a tennis player on her professional tour with the Bobby Riggs troupe.

Authority for that observation is her opponent, Pauline Betz, four time women's amateur champion before turning pro herself.

The gorgeous one, declared Miss Betz, a comely young matron herself, "is a lot better player than she gets credit for being. Her ground strokes are splendid and I can vouch for the fact that there is nothing missing in her competitive spirit."

The "bum rap" started when the pros opened the tour in Madison Square Garden in New York Nov. 26.

"Gussy was very nervous, and so was I that night. I think Jack was, too," the Titian haired Pauline continued. "We knew we didn't play well that night, and it took us four or five matches before we began to play good tennis.

"But the critics jumped on Gussy and the feeling has persisted that she is—well, not a good player. They shouldn't have condemned the tour on the one opening match."

Reported Boycott of Penn by Ivy Stirs Cross-Country Grid Rhubarb

Slur on Yale, Harvard Started Trouble

Philadelphia, Jan. 17 (AP)—If Pennsylvania's football team is having schedule trouble with fellow Ivy League members, as it claims, nobody is confirming it. In fact, there's been nothing but denials.

A New York sports columnist smoked it all out yesterday when he wrote that the sedate Ivy League, excepting Cornell, is boycotting—or planning to boycott—Penn's Red and Blue. The scheduling difficulties reportedly will start after 1952.

Ivy League football teams are Penn, Cornell, Yale, Harvard, Princeton, Dartmouth, Columbia and Brown. The group, actually, has no official standing. It was named by sportswriters.

Quaker president Harold E. Stassen blamed the troubles on Penn's efforts to meet Notre Dame on the gridiron in 1952.

But columnist Joe Williams of the New York World-Telegram and Sun said the uppity-uppity Ivy football teams took offense at a recent Stassen remark—and thus started the cold shoulder treatment of Penn as a future grid opponent.

Stassen rejected Williams' interpretation this way:

"It is my understanding that the real reason for the scheduling difficulty is that some athletic officials object to Pennsylvania's anticipated game with Notre Dame in 1952.

"I do not believe in boycotting Notre Dame or any other American college team whether they are weak or strong, north or south, east or west."

Stassen didn't explain the "objections" to Notre Dame but a reliable university source, who declined identification, said Ivy League officials regard the Fighting Irish as below par scholastically. And if Penn plays Notre Dame it means the Quakers condone the Irish academic policy.

Irish Reply

Notre Dame's athletic director Ed (Moose) Krause replied:

"Our academic requirements are equal to, if not better than, those of the Ivy League or any other institution in the country.

"Our entrance requirements, and class standards, are absolutely beyond reproach and all anyone has to do to prove it is to investigate and determine for himself."

Williams said the Stassen remark that touched off the cross-country burst of comment, mostly denying the boycott but never confirming it, was this:

"Penn will never drop a team from its schedule because the team has beaten Penn consistently."

Slur on Harvard

Williams interpreted this as a slur on Harvard and Yale, both of whom have severed grid relations with Penn—Harvard in 1942, Yale a year later.

Wrote Williams: "Unless Stassen apologies—and he does not impress me as a fellow who makes excuses for his convictions—Penn will have to strike out for itself as an independent power."

Only Cornell, Williams said, will play Penn as it has done every year since 1893 "because the Cornell-Penn game is history-packed and solid box office." He added:

"The boycott of the Ivies will become complete as soon as the games previously scheduled are carried out."

Penn's 1951 schedule includes Dartmouth, Princeton, Columbia and Cornell. Brown, not Princeton, was on the 1950 schedule.

Stassen has said numerous times that Penn wants to schedule Harvard and Yale.

Quiz of the week: With his chairmanship of the county polio drive, presidency of Colonial City Baseball, Inc., city bowling tournament managership and a dairy to manage, when does Addison "Mr. Bowling" Jones sleep?

• Flotsam and Jetsam:

March of Dimes week for Kingston bowlers will be from January 21 to January 27. . . . "Bo" Gill, eminent Newburgh golfer, chides the United Press for including Army among the MAJOR unbeaten college basketball squads. Friend "Bo" takes jaded view of Kingston hoopala about Big Ed Weaver. . . . Whatever happened to the Recreation re-entry into the Orange-Sullivan Basketball League or is Andy Murphy holding out on us? The O-S League never bothers to send out an official standing or scoring statistics. Woodridge Atoms, the pros from the hills of Sullivan county (and nearby states) always manage to inspire a 30-point scorer. Larry Krieger dunked that total as the Atoms shaded Newburgh, 80-78, in Newburgh.

Old Joe Louis, the Mighty Methuselah, says he'll quit "for sure" if he loses one more fight. On plans for his retirement, the old Bomber is seriously challenging the record set by Adeline Patti of Opera fame.

Poughkeepsie and Newburgh Jayvees tied for the DUSO junior varsity lead with six wins and one defeat. Champ Holstein, who is burning up the Y Basketball League, has received his greetings from Uncle Sam, Big Bob Ghear, George Holstein and others making inquiries about the Navy. Lou Schafer said the Y League has lost seven men to the service since the start of the 1950-51 season. He says he'll be happy to wind up with a corporal's guard next spring. If Ronnie Scheffel graduates to the St. Bonaventure varsity next year, he'll be playing a major league schedule. S.R.O. games—Kingston High at Pokeep and Kingston at Newburgh. Wonder if Sam Kalloch will invite Oswald Tower to be on hand, just in case. Basketball, the truly American game, is played by 20 million people in 60 countries.

Chez Emile Defeats Angels, 79-74 In Overtime Game in YMCA Tilt

24-Point Period Ties Regulation Game

Chez Emile overcame a 13-point deficit in the final quarter against Harry's Angels to deadlock the regulation game, 68-68, and then went on to win in the overtime period, 79-74, last night on the Y court.

Wiltwyck Motors humbled the Sixth Ward, 71-44, in the companion piece.

The Angels opened up a 21-16 quarter lead over Chez Emile and led 38-30 at the half. They picked up five additional points in the third period before Chez Emile exploded for 24 points.

Clark Mains, who made a strong finish, netted nine points in the stretch period and four in overtime. Johnny Vertetis hit six points, Al Thomas 4 and Gallagher 2 to give Chezzies a 24-11 bulge.

Rough Game

The game was extremely rough but not dirty. Referees Fox and Meyers called 51 personal fouls and three technicals. Champ Holstein was a victim on personals in the third quarter and slipped to seven points from his 30-point average a game.

Andy Juhl kept the Angels in the running with the top individual scoring effort of 24 points. Andy Petruski tossed in 13 and Big Bill East 10. Dan McGrane did heavy duty for Chezzies with 18; Al Thomas tossed in 14, Clark Mains 16 and Vertetis 11.

Wiltwycks ran up a 31-18 halftime lead against Sixth Ward to breeze home an easy winner. Don Haggerty was leading scorer with 18 points. Fink McElrath had 15, Fred Parslow 13 and Big Bill Kleine 10. Scott tossed in 16 for the Wardmen.

Plan Movie Based On Rock's Life

"I ain't signed yet," he said. "But my lawyer has got the contract. We got to work out a few details. Ya know what I mean?

"This is going to be the truth. The whole story. Almost nothing left out. They're going to make it right on the streets in the East Side.

Graziano said a new company—Rex Carleton Productions—would make the picture, probably starting next summer.

Not So Ill a Wind

Memphis, Tenn. Jan. 17 (AP)—The breeze that scattered Billy Minshew's $132 over a busy downtown corner turned out to be not such an ill wind. All but one dollar was returned after a newspaper story described the "rain" of $1, $10 and $20 bills over amazed shoppers and gave Minshew's rueful explanation of the phenomenon. Minshew, an 18-year-old Kosciusko, Miss., student at a Memphis business school, said he dropped the wad of bills from his pocket Monday and that a stiff wind scooped them up and sent them flying. "I got back $131 more than I expected," he said. "And it sure is a relief."

Early Training For Don Newcombe

Brooklyn, Jan. 17 (AP)—Big Don Newcombe, 10 pounds over his best pitching weight at 248 pounds, plans to get an early start on conditioning at Hot Springs, Ark.

"I'm going to Hot Springs with Roy Campanella right after the baseball writers' dinner," Newcombe said yesterday. "I always have a hard time getting started in the spring.

Newcombe signed his 1951 contract for a reported $20,000 yesterday at the Brooklyn Dodger office. He feels he can better his 19-11 record of last summer.

Asked if he felt he is a cinch to win 20 games next summer, Newcombe said:

"If I feel all year like I did after the all-star game last summer, there'd be no limit on how many I might win."

High Tiger Bid For Ferris Fain

Detroit, Jan. 17 (AP)—Manager Red Rolfe of the Detroit Tigers discloses that the club has made "a fabulous offer" in an effort to buy First Baseman Ferris Fain of the Philadelphia Athletics.

This confirms gossip of the recent major league meetings in St. Petersburg, Fla.

Rolfe told the Tigers' annual press and radio dinner last night that Detroit will go all-out to get Fain.

"We do not want to part with any players, but we're willing to spend a considerable amount of money. Walter O. Briggs, Sr. (owner of the Tigers) has given us the okay to go after Fain," Rolfe said.

There was no indication from Rolfe as to the amount involved, but a usually well informed source said it was in the neighborhood of $100,000.

Policy Conference

Washington, Jan. 17 (AP)—Premier Rene Pleven of France will come to Washington Jan. 29 for a two-day policy conference with President Truman. Announcing this today, the State Department said Pleven suggested the conference and that Mr. Truman welcomed him to confer on "important questions of mutual interest."

Woodstock, Jan. 17—A meeting of committee members was held at the home of Dr. Hans J. Cohn on Wednesday afternoon to discuss final plans for the first program of the third of the series of winter concerts of chamber music to be held at the Woodstock Town Hall on Sunday, January 28, at 3:30 p. m.

The program will include the Beethoven Trio, Opus 121, with 10 variations. Following an intermission the quartet will play Brahms Quartet in C Minor, Opus 60, Allegretton troppo, Scherzo, Andante, Finale—allegro comodo.

Committee chairmen for the concerts are as follows: Edith Heckeroth and Helen Ostrander, tickets; Inez Carroll, programs; Mrs. Carl Eric Lindin, announcements. They will be assisted by Miss Katrina Fischer, Mrs. Helen Buttrick, Mrs. Hans J. Cohn, Mrs. Emmet Edwards and Mrs. Henry Morton Robinson.

During the meeting Dr. Cohn announced the remaining concerts of the series will be given on Sunday, March 11, and Sunday, April 15. All of the concerts will be of 60 to 75 minutes duration.

Tickets may be obtained from committee members or at the box office on the day of the concert.

Brownies Are Initiated At January Meeting

Woodstock, Jan. 17—During a meeting on January 9 at the Woodstock School, the following Brownies were invested by Dorothy Shultis, leader, and Alice Wolven, assistant leader: Sharon Graver, Mary Ann Ohl, Priscilla Melville, Elaine Gordon, Susan and Gail Shultis, Barbara Jean Bodie.

The Brownies brought to the meeting many articles for inclusion in school bags by the Intermediate Girl Scouts to be sent overseas. The Brownies in addition made a complete school bag themselves.

Confident Town Will Give to Polio

Woodstock, Jan. 17—E. A. Jurist, chairman of Woodstock's March of Dimes campaign, opened the drive for this area on Monday, January 15. In a brief statement, Jurist mentioned the facilities in Woodstock, such as the new school and the recreation field, which are indicative of the community's keen interest in the welfare of its youth. He is, therefore, confident in the town's interest in doing its full share in financing the fight against polio, which has become an enemy of adults as well as children. This will be the most ambitious March of Dimes drive ever undertaken.

Heads of committees assisting in the drive are Mrs. Irving Ostrander, Mrs. Albert Montgomery, Mrs. Warren Hutty, Mrs. Austin Mecklem, Miss Winifred Davis, Walter Van Wagenen and George Hard. Plans for the campaign will include personal and written appeals for funds. Anyone wishing to assist with the drive is requested to call Mr. Jurist or any committee member.

The drive will be climaxed by a benefit motion picture which will be shown by arrangement with Sam Davis of the Woodstock Theatre and the Woodstock Business Association, the entire proceeds from which will go to the March of Dimes.

JACOBY ON BRIDGE

Here's When Raise Means No Support

By OSWALD JACOBY
Written for NEA Service

"When is a raise not a raise?" The curious fact is that in bridge it is possible to raise your partner's suit when your real meaning is that you have no support at all for that suit.

In the hand shown today, North became slam conscious as soon as his partner responded in diamonds. He decided that the best way to show his distribution and his values was to bid spades, clubs, and then diamonds—including a jump bid somewhere along the way. This would indicate extreme shortness in the fourth suit (hearts), and would encourage South to proceed if possible.

This plan would have been good enough, but a better idea presented itself when West doubled three hearts. (West, by the way, didn't think that the double would stay in. He just wanted to indicate a favorable lead to his partner.)

North could bid four hearts to show that he had no hearts at all. It was clear that North couldn't have heart support, for then he would have been glad to redouble instead of increasing the contract. Hence the "raise" could be nothing but a bid to show control of the suit.

North later completed his message by raising diamonds. South then knew his partner's distribution and could safely bid the slam.

The play was simple enough. South could expect to win five spades and a club and therefore needed six trump tricks to make the small slam. Therefore he had to win four trump tricks in his own hand and two heart ruffs in the dummy.

South won the opening lead in his own hand with the ten of trumps, ruffed a heart with dummy's jack, returned to his hand by leading a trump to the king, and ruffed another heart with the queen of diamonds. Declarer got back with the jack of spades to draw the last trump, after which the rest of dummy's spades could be run.

Quiet Franklin Birthday

Philadelphia, Jan. 17 (AP)—Benjamin Franklin's 25th birthday is being observed today with a simplicity keyed to the rigors of the times. In more tranquil years the anniversary was kept in gala fashion. Famous men from many places gathered in the old city for a festival of oratory, fanfare and parading. But this year the sponsors resolved to forego the trimmings. Said James J. D. Spillan, president of the Poor Richard Club: "We are maintaining the tradition but curtailing ceremonies because of the national emergency."

Chez Emile Defeats Angels, 79-74 In Overtime Game in YMCA Tilt

24-Point Period Ties Regulation Game

Chez Emile overcame a 13-point deficit in the final quarter against Harry's Angels to deadlock the regulation game, 68-68, and then went on to win in the overtime period, 79-74, last night on the Y court.

Wiltwyck Motors humbled the Sixth Ward, 71-44, in the companion piece.

The Angels opened up a 21-16 quarter lead over Chez Emile and led 38-30 at the half. They picked up five additional points in the third period before Chez Emile exploded for 24 points.

Clark Mains, who made a strong finish, netted nine points in the stretch period and four in overtime. Johnny Vertetis hit six points, Al Thomas 4 and Gallagher 2 to give Chezzies a 24-11 bulge.

Rough Game

The game was extremely rough but not dirty. Referees Fox and Meyers called 51 personal fouls and three technicals. Champ Holstein was a victim on personals in the third quarter and slipped to seven points from his 30-point average a game.

Andy Juhl kept the Angels in the running with the top individual scoring effort of 24 points. Andy Petruski tossed in 13 and Big Bill East 10. Dan McGrane did heavy duty for Chezzies with 18; Al Thomas tossed in 14, Clark Mains 16 and Vertetis 11.

Wiltwycks ran up a 31-18 halftime lead against Sixth Ward to breeze home an easy winner. Don Haggerty was leading scorer with 18 points. Fink McElrath had 15, Fred Parslow 13 and Big Bill Kleine 10. Scott tossed in 16 for the Wardmen.

Plan Movie Based On Rock's Life

New York, Jan. 17 (AP)—Rocky Graziano, laying off because of a minor operation, is about to sign a contract for a movie of his life story.

"I ain't signed yet," he said. "But my lawyer has got the contract. We got to work out a few details. Ya know what I mean?

"This is going to be the truth. The whole story. Almost nothing left out. They're going to make it right on the streets in the East Side.

"That movie guy, Richard Conte, probably will be me but they're going to give me a little part, too."

Graziano said a new company—Rex Carleton Productions—would make the picture, probably starting next summer.

Not So Ill a Wind

Memphis, Tenn. Jan. 17 (AP)—The breeze that scattered Billy Minshew's $132 over a busy downtown corner turned out to be not such an ill wind. All but one dollar was returned after a newspaper story described the "rain" of $1, $10 and $20 bills over amazed shoppers and gave Minshew's rueful explanation of the phenomenon. Minshew, an 18-year-old Kosciusko, Miss., student at a Memphis business school, said he dropped the wad of bills from his pocket Monday and that a stiff wind scooped them up and sent them flying. "I got back $131 more than I expected," he said. "And it sure is a relief."

Early Training For Don Newcombe

Brooklyn, Jan. 17 (AP)—Big Don Newcombe, 10 pounds over his best pitching weight at 248 pounds, plans to get an early start on conditioning at Hot Springs, Ark.

"I'm going to Hot Springs with Roy Campanella right after the baseball writers' dinner," Newcombe said yesterday. "I always have a hard time getting started in the spring.

Newcombe signed his 1951 contract for a reported $20,000 yesterday at the Brooklyn Dodger office. He feels he can better his 19-11 record of last summer.

Asked if he felt he is a cinch to win 20 games next summer, Newcombe said:

"If I feel all year like I did after the all-star game last summer, there'd be no limit on how many I might win."

High Tiger Bid For Ferris Fain

Detroit, Jan. 17 (AP)—Manager Red Rolfe of the Detroit Tigers discloses that the club has made "a fabulous offer" in an effort to buy First Baseman Ferris Fain of the Philadelphia Athletics.

This confirms gossip of the recent major league meetings in St. Petersburg, Fla.

Rolfe told the Tigers' annual press and radio dinner last night that Detroit will go all-out to get Fain.

"We do not want to part with any players, but we're willing to spend a considerable amount of money. Walter O. Briggs, Sr. (owner of the Tigers) has given us the okay to go after Fain," Rolfe said.

There was no indication from Rolfe as to the amount involved, but a usually well informed source said it was in the neighborhood of $100,000.

Policy Conference

Washington, Jan. 17 (AP)—Premier Rene Pleven of France will come to Washington Jan. 29 for a two-day policy conference with President Truman. Announcing this today, the State Department said Pleven suggested the conference and that Mr. Truman welcomed him to confer on "important questions of mutual interest."

WOODSTOCK NEWS

By RICHARD E. THIBAUT, JR.

Musicians Are Listed For Sunday Concert

Woodstock, Jan. 17—A meeting of committee members was held at the home of Dr. Hans J. Cohn on Wednesday afternoon to discuss final plans for the first program of the third of the series of winter concerts of chamber music to be held at the Woodstock Town Hall on Sunday, January 28, at 3:30 p. m.

The musicians appearing in Sunday's concert will be Inez Carroll, pianist, of Woodstock; Mrs. Alice Smiley, violinist, of Mohonk; Miss Genevieve Nichols, of Vassar College, violist; and Dr. Hans J. Cohn, cellist, of Woodstock.

The program will include the Beethoven Trio, Opus 121, with 10 variations. Following an intermission the quartet will play Brahms Quartet in C Minor, Opus 60, Allegro non troppo, Scherzo, Andante, Finale—allegro comodo.

Committee chairmen for the concerts are as follows: Edith Heckeroth and Helen Ostrander, tickets; Inez Carroll, programs; Mrs. Carl Eric Lindin, announcements. They will be assisted by Miss Katrina Fischer, Mrs. Helen Buttrick, Mrs. Hans J. Cohn, Mrs. Emmet Edwards and Mrs. Henry Morton Robinson.

During the meeting Dr. Cohn announced the remaining concerts of the series will be given on Sunday, March 11, and Sunday, April 15. All of the concerts will be of 60 to 75 minutes duration.

Tickets may be obtained from committee members or at the box office on the day of the concert.

Brownies Are Initiated At January Meeting

Woodstock, Jan. 17—During a meeting on January 9 at the Woodstock School, the following Brownies were invested by Dorothy Shultis, leader, and Alice Wolven, assistant leader: Sharon Graver, Mary Ann Ohl, Priscilla Melville, Elaine Gordon, Susan and Gail Shultis, Barbara Jean Bodie.

The Brownies brought to the meeting many articles for inclusion in school bags by the Intermediate Girl Scouts to be sent overseas. The Brownies in addition made a complete school bag themselves.

Confident Town Will Give to Polio

Woodstock, Jan. 17—E. A. Jurist, chairman of Woodstock's March of Dimes campaign, opened the drive for this area on Monday, January 15. In a brief statement, Jurist mentioned the facilities in Woodstock, such as the new school and the recreation field, which are indicative of the community's keen interest in the welfare of its youth. He is, therefore, confident in the town's interest in doing its full share in financing the fight against polio, which has become an enemy of adults as well as children. This will be the most ambitious March of Dimes drive ever undertaken.

Heads of committees assisting in the drive are Mrs. Irving Ostrander, Mrs. Albert Montgomery, Mrs. Warren Hutty, Mrs. Austin Mecklem, Miss Winifred Davis, Walter Van Wagenen and George Hard. Plans for the campaign will include personal and written appeals for funds. Anyone wishing to assist with the drive is requested to call Mr. Jurist or any committee member.

The drive will be climaxed by a benefit motion picture which will be shown by arrangement with Sam Davis of the Woodstock Theatre and the Woodstock Business Association, the entire proceeds from which will go to the March of Dimes.

JACOBY ON BRIDGE

Here's When Raise Means No Support

By OSWALD JACOBY
Written for NEA Service

"When is a raise not a raise?" The curious fact is that in bridge it is possible to raise your partner's suit when your real meaning is that you have no support at all for that suit.

In the hand shown today, North became slam conscious as soon as his partner responded in diamonds. He decided that the best way to show his distribution and his values was to bid spades, clubs, and then diamonds—including a jump bid somewhere along the way. This would indicate extreme shortness in the fourth suit (hearts), and would encourage South to proceed if possible.

This plan would have been good enough, but a better idea presented itself when West doubled three hearts. (West, by the way, didn't think that the double would stay in. He just wanted to indicate a favorable lead to his partner.)

North could bid four hearts to show that he had no hearts at all. It was clear that North couldn't have heart support, for then he would have been glad to redouble instead of increasing the contract. Hence the "raise" could be nothing but a bid to show control of the suit.

North later completed his message by raising diamonds. South then knew his partner's distribution and could safely bid the slam.

The play was simple enough. South could expect to win five spades and a club and therefore needed six trump tricks to make the small slam. Therefore he had to win four trump tricks in his own hand and two heart ruffs in the dummy.

South won the opening lead in his own hand with the ten of trumps, ruffed a heart with dummy's jack, returned to his hand by leading a trump to the king, and ruffed another heart with the queen of diamonds. Declarer got back with the jack of spades to draw the last trump, after which the rest of dummy's spades could be run.

Quiet Franklin Birthday

Philadelphia, Jan. 17 (AP)—Benjamin Franklin's 25th birthday is being observed today with a simplicity keyed to the rigors of the times. In more tranquil years the anniversary was kept in gala fashion. Famous men from many places gathered in the old city for a festival of oratory, fanfare and parading. But this year the sponsors resolved to forego the trimmings. Said James J. D. Spillan, president of the Poor Richard Club: "We are maintaining the tradition but curtailing ceremonies because of the national emergency."

Horses Are Killed

Phoenix, Ariz., Jan. 17 (AP)—Fire swept through a barn at the Arizona State Fairgrounds last night, killing an estimated 10 to 15 race horses. The blaze leveled one building at the track and endangered two other barns before it was brought under control after 40 minutes. An estimated 350 horses were in the barns. J. N. Cooper, 55, a race track worker, was badly burned about the face, hands and feet. Cause of the fire has not been determined. There was no estimate of the loss, which is covered by insurance.

Insemination Bill Offered

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 17 (AP)—A bill proposed in the Legislature would make a child born by artificial insemination to a married woman, with the consent of the husband, the legitimate, natural child of both. The measure was introduced yesterday by Senator Louis L. Friedman, Brooklyn Democrat. An identical bill died in committee last year.

Hold Manhattan College Cagers On Bribery Charge

New York, Jan. 17 (AP)—Two members of last year's Manhattan College basketball team and three other men were arrested today on charges of bribery and conspiracy.

Assistant District Attorney Edward F. Breslin of the Bronx said the five were accused of throwing Manhattan College basketball games last year.

He identified the former players as Henry E. Poppe, 24, and John A. Byrnes, 22, who were co-captains of the team. Poppe was a guard and Brynes a forward.

Breslin said they "dumped several games and each received a total of $5,000."

The men arrested with the players were listed as Irving Schwartzberg, 36 years old, of 44-10 MacNish Place, Elmhurst, Queens, his brother, Benjamin, 35, of 21-44 Brown street, Brooklyn; and Cornelius Kelleher, 35, of 307 East 239th street.

Poppe lives at 158-09 Sanford avenue, Flushing, Queens. Byrnes lives at 31-15 82nd street, Jackson Heights, Queens.

Breslin said these three men instigated the "dumping" of the games by the players.

Manhattan won 13 and lost 11 games in the 1949-50 season.

Breslin reported there had been an attempt to "fix" last night's basketball game between DePaul University and Manhattan College, and that the attempt led to discovery of "fixes" last year.

Breslin told this story:

Poppe last Thursday night went to the college room of Julius Kellogg, 23, six foot seven inch Negro center of this year's Manhattan team and told him he could make $1,000 by "dumping" last night's game.

Kellogg spurned the offer, but Poppe told him to think it over and said he would telephone Kellogg again on Sunday.

Kellogg immediately reported the Thursday conversation to Kenneth Norton, Manhattan athletic director and basketball coach, who notified police.

Marlborough Man Fined as Drunk Driver

William E. Hill, 33, Marlborough, was arrested Tuesday afternoon by State Trooper E. Johnson of the Highland station on a charge of driving a car while intoxicated and on being arraigned before Justice Philip Lyon paid a fine of $25 following a plea of guilty.

The arrest came as a result of a five car mix-up on Route 9-W in Marlborough.

Hill was operating his Dodge car north when it struck the rear of a Plymouth coach owned and operated by Rabbi M. J. Bloom, 48, of Newburgh which was also proceeding north, Trooper Johnson reported. A Chevrolet truck owned by Samuel Fillaran, 58, of Marlborough and a Ford sedan of Frank Troncillito, 30, Marlborough were parked on Route 9-W headed north.

After striking the Bloom car the Hill car glanced off and hit a Brockway truck and trailer owned by the Provan Petroleum Company of Newburgh, operated by Sylvester Smith, 31, of Creek Locks. The Hill car then glanced off and struck the rear of the Ford sedan of Frank Troncillito, 30, of Marlborough.

The Plymouth car of Rabbi Bloom ran off the east side of the road after being struck and went through the Troncillito garage doing extensive damage. None of the parties involved were injured.

Health for All

Influenza

Despite the millions of lives lost over the years during influenza epidemics, it is believed that the disease itself is rarely responsible for fatalities. However, complications which often follow influenza may cause death. The most common of these is pneumonia. Influenza may also have an adverse effect on tuberculosis.

There are various types of influenza, all of which are caused by a virus, or tiny germ. The milder forms of influenza resemble a severe cold, with chills and fever, extreme exhaustion, and aches and pains in the muscles.

The severe form of influenza most often occurs in epidemics, when the disease spreads rapidly through the community, or throughout the nation, as it did in 1918. High fever, prostration, and excruciating muscular pain accompany the severe form.

Influenza is believed to be spread from person to person, most commonly through "uncovered" coughs and sneezes of the sick person when droplets of moisture containing the influenza virus are sprayed into the air and inhaled by those near the patient.

Although the acute stage of influenza usually has a short but severe period of a week or less, it often leaves its victim exhausted for several days. To avoid relapse and regain his lost strength, the recuperating patient should rest completely before returning to routine tasks for as long as the doctor thinks necessary.

At the first sign of symptoms that might mean influenza, the sick person should go to bed and call the doctor without delay. The dangerous complications of influenza can usually be avoided if the doctor is called in time and if his advice is carefully followed.

Visitors should be kept away from the influenza patient, for their own sake as well as for the good of the sick person, since the disease is contagious. Moreover, even seemingly healthy visitors can bring germs into the sick room which might complicate the patient's fight against his influenza.

There is not yet a specific preventive against influenza, although medical science continues its search for a protective vaccine. Right now, the best defense we know of against influenza is good personal hygiene, including adequate rest and sleep, a well-balanced diet, and the avoidance of chilling. While observing the rules of good health does not guarantee that influenza will never strike, it lessens the likelihood of contracting the disease.

Will Test Sirens

New York, Jan. 17 (AP)—New York will hold its first citywide test of air-raid sirens at noon Saturday, Jan. 27. Arthur W. Wallander, city civil defense director, said similar tests will be conducted at the same hour each Saturday thereafter. The purpose is to learn whether the sirens and defense communications system operates properly. A drill for all defense workers and civilians is expected later, but for the present workers will not be required to report to their posts, nor will citizens be asked to seek shelter.

Sued for Divorce

Los Angeles, Jan. 17 (AP)—Leslie Charteris, writer of mystery stories, has been sued for divorce by his second wife, Mrs. Elizabeth Bryant Dorst Charteris, former Boston society woman and night club singer.

The couple parted last Dec. 6 and signed a financial settlement a week ago, Mrs. Charteris stated yesterday in her suit. They were married in 1943 in Santa Fe, N. M. She alleged cruelty. Charteris is the creator of the character "The Saint," in his stories and in the films.

Do You Remember

by SOPHIE MILLER

At the Masonic Temple the other evening met Millard Everett, a telegraph operator at the West Shore Station. We didn't know each other by sight, although I had mentioned him a number of times in this column and he had phoned me on the Bottle Neck Telegraph System of West Hurley back in the early 1900's. He said they used the regular Morse code, and had some 14 miles of wire covering every part of the village and its four churches. He is now the only one left alive of the original Bottle Neck Telegraph operators.

He says, his uncle was Charles Everett, who ran a bakery and grocery at corner Main and Wall street, who was also part of their system, and from whom he learned the telegraph operation, but Charles went into another profession later. This hobby brought most of those young fellows their profession for life, and according to Mr. Everett he enjoys it as much today working for the West Shore as he thrilled over it back in 1903 or 4. He said, all the popular girls of the village were given numbers by the young telegraph operators. One he remembers well as No. 22, her name was Grace Miller and she now lives near them right here on Lucas avenue. Everett's code number was KS, Patsy Joyce, another operator, was near the church which Grace attended. So Millard on spotting her would send her code No. 22 that she just passed his house, what she wore, etc. Then Patsy would telegraph back to Millard when she arrived at the church. All popular girls were accounted for all day Sunday by the young telegraphers. That must have been better than a four-party telephone which became popular later.

Does anyone want to buy a Tannery? There is an adv. in "The Ulster Sentinel" printed in Kingston, N. Y., Wednesday, November, 9, 1836 — and owned by Charles O'Connor. "For sale, on reasonable terms, one quarter of the Shandaken Tannery, now in successful operation, with a good stock of bark and leather on hand. Possession will be given immediately. For terms apply to the subscriber, Solomon Carnright." Would they be related to Carnright's Dairy?

Don't think that Cheap Stores, Bargain Stores, or Cut Rate Store is something new and modern, for this 1836 paper as well as others list them often: "Ulster County Cheap Boot and Shoe Store. The largest and cheapest assortment in the County. The subscriber will sell his articles '10 per cent cheaper for cash' than those sold by others in town. He has boots and shoes, consisting in part of men's fine calf and Kip boots, sewed and pegged. Calf, Kip and coarse sewed Brogans for boys and children. Ladies gaiter lasting and Morocco boots. Morocco shoes of all kinds. Kid, lasting and Morocco slippers of every price from 3 to 8s. Also fine boots from 2 to $5.00. Philo J. Prindle. Also an apprentice from 14 to 16 years of age, is wanted. Application to be made immediately." This was just about 60 years after the Revolution and the burning of Kingston to the ground by the British.

Air Force Halts Enlistments

Washington, Jan. 17 (AP)—Because its indoctrination centers are jammed following heavy volunteering, the air force has virtually halted enlistments except by men with previous air force service. Announcing this last night, a spokesman said it is hoped the suspension can be lifted about February 1. Besides accepting personnel with previous experience, the air force is also continuing to accept applicants for the Women's Air Force and young men who have been appointed to aviation cadet courses for pilots and navigators.

Financial and Commercial

The market's reaction to the tightening of credit curbs on stock transactions was of feather-weight proportions.

A selling blast disturbed the market at the opening and lasted for about half an hour. During that short time, a vast majority of leading shares fell from a few cents to around $1.50 a share.

Many issues remained on the downside—but only fractionally and after substantially reducing earlier declines. Numerous others veered over into the plus column and many gains ranging up to $2.25 dotted the list.

Higher were U. S. Steel, Pittsburgh Steel, Goodyear, Zenith Radio, Motorola, Montgomery Ward, Dow Chemical, duPont, Phillip Morris, Pressed Steel Car, New York Central and Lehigh Portland Cement.

Still depressed were Bethlehem Steel, Chrysler, Caterpillar Tractor, Douglas Aircraft, American Smelting, Homestake Mining, American Cyanamid, Santa Fe, Nickel Plate, T.W.A. and McIntyre Porcupine Mining.

The curb exchange was affected even less than the "big board" and plenty of plus signs appeared over the list. Among those higher were Aspinook, Barium Steel, Clarostat, Claude Neon, Raytheon, St. Lawrence Corp., Unexcelled Chemical and Waltham Watch.

Cutback Causes Saugerties Layoff

William W. Stifler, Jr., manager of the Ferroxcube Corp., now in the plant formerly occupied by the General Electric Corp., on East Bridge street, Saugerties, today announced that 12 employes were laid off temporarily yesterday "in connection with a general production cutback."

"Except where specially trained employes could be transferred to other work within the plant," he said, "the employes were laid off within each department on the basis of total length of service with the company."

Began in July

The corporation began operating at the present plant on July 28, 1950 and was employing 52 persons prior to yesterday's layoff.

The layoff was necessary the manager said, because of the general reduction in television set output and because it will take the corporation some time to develop the new molds required for the production of defense equipment.

The company's engineering staff has been working for several months on military applications of the special material manufactured by the company, and has already filled several small defense orders. It is expected that it will be some time before the plant is geared to turn out large quantities of defense items, however.

Cores and Yokes

The material manufactured is a ferrite substance produced by a chemical engineering process. The principal product made of this substance has been transformer cores and picture tube yokes for television sets. The material can be used however in various other types of electronic equipment such as military communications, electronic computers and radar.

Since the cutback the manufacturing department of the plant is continuing to produce core material at a reduced rate and the engineering department is bending every effort to application of the Ferroxcube material.

The company hopes to be able to rehire all of the employes who were laid off as soon as new jobs are available. Those qualified employes, who were with the company the longest before being laid off will be rehired first, Stifler said.

Tough Time in Court

Lakewood, N. J., Jan. 17 (AP)—Magistrate Sidney Zeben had a tough time last night in municipal court. Law books were brought out. The State Motor Vehicle Act didn't cover the charges. Arresting officers couldn't help. Finally, Zeben levied a $10 fine against Martin Dunham as a disorderly person. Dunham had been charged with driving a horse and buggy while under the influence of liquor.

Cars Jump Rails

Syracuse, N. Y., Jan. 17 (AP)—Twenty-four cars of a westbound New York Central freight train jumped the rails four miles west of here today and blocked main line traffic. The railroad said no one was hurt and that the cause of the derailment had not been determined.

Hold Manhattan College Cagers On Bribery Charge

New York, Jan. 17 (AP)—Two members of last year's Manhattan College basketball team and three other men were arrested today on charges of bribery and conspiracy.

Assistant District Attorney Edward F. Breslin of the Bronx said the five were accused of throwing Manhattan College basketball games last year.

He identified the former players as Henry E. Poppe, 24, and John A. Byrnes, 22, who were co-captains of the team. Poppe was a guard and Brynes a forward.

Breslin said they "dumped several games and each received a total of $5,000."

The men arrested with the players were listed as Irving Schwartzberg, 36 years old, of 44-10 MacNish Place, Elmhurst, Queens, his brother, Benjamin, 35, of 21-44 Brown street, Brooklyn; and Cornelius Kelleher, 35, of 307 East 239th street.

Poppe lives at 158-09 Sanford avenue, Flushing, Queens. Byrnes lives at 31-15 82nd street, Jackson Heights, Queens.

Breslin said these three men instigated the "dumping" of the games by the players.

Manhattan won 13 and lost 11 games in the 1949-50 season.

Breslin reported there had been an attempt to "fix" last night's basketball game between DePaul University and Manhattan College, and that the attempt led to discovery of "fixes" last year.

Manhattan won last night's game, 62 to 59 in an upset. DePaul had entered the game as a favorite.

Breslin told this story:

Poppe last Thursday night went to the college room of Julius Kellogg, 23, six foot seven inch Negro center of this year's Manhattan team and told him he could make $1,000 by "dumping" last night's game.

Kellogg spurned the offer, but Poppe told him to think it over and said he would telephone Kellogg again on Sunday.

Kellogg immediately reported the Thursday conversation to Kenneth Norton, Manhattan athletic director and basketball coach, who notified police.

Marlborough Man Fined as Drunk Driver

William E. Hill, 33, Marlborough, was arrested Tuesday afternoon by State Trooper E. Johnson of the Highland station on a charge of driving a car while intoxicated and on being arraigned before Justice Philip Lyon paid a fine of $25 following a plea of guilty.

The arrest came as a result of a five car mix-up on Route 9-W in Marlborough.

Hill was operating his Dodge car north when it struck the rear of a Plymouth coach owned and operated by Rabbi M. J. Bloom, 48, of Newburgh which was also proceeding north, Trooper Johnson reported. A Chevrolet truck owned by Samuel Fillaran, 58, of Marlborough and a Ford sedan of Frank Troncillito, 30, Marlborough were parked on Route 9-W headed north.

After striking the Bloom car the Hill car glanced off and hit a Brockway truck and trailer owned by the Provan Petroleum Company of Newburgh, operated by Sylvester Smith, 31, of Creek Locks. The Hill car then glanced off and struck the rear of the Ford sedan of Frank Troncillito, 30, of Marlborough.

The Plymouth car of Rabbi Bloom ran off the east side of the road after being struck and went through the Troncillito garage doing extensive damage. None of the parties involved were injured.

Health for All

Influenza

Despite the millions of lives lost over the years during influenza epidemics, it is believed that the disease itself is rarely responsible for fatalities. However, complications which often follow influenza may cause death. The most common of these is pneumonia. Influenza may also have an adverse effect on tuberculosis.

There are various types of influenza, all of which are caused by a virus, or tiny germ. The milder forms of influenza resemble a severe cold, with chills and fever, extreme exhaustion, and aches and pains in the muscles.

The severe form of influenza most often occurs in epidemics, when the disease spreads rapidly through the community, or throughout the nation, as it did in 1918. High fever, prostration, and excruciating muscular pain accompany the severe form.

Influenza is believed to be spread from person to person, most commonly through "uncovered" coughs and sneezes of the sick person when droplets of moisture containing the influenza virus are sprayed into the air and inhaled by those near the patient.

Although the acute stage of influenza usually has a short but severe period of a week or less, it often leaves its victim exhausted for several days. To avoid relapse and regain his lost strength, the recuperating patient should rest completely before returning to routine tasks for as long as the doctor thinks necessary.

At the first sign of symptoms that might mean influenza, the sick person should go to bed and call the doctor without delay. The dangerous complications of influenza can usually be avoided if the doctor is called in time and if his advice is carefully followed.

Visitors should be kept away from the influenza patient, for their own sake as well as for the good of the sick person, since the disease is contagious. Moreover, even seemingly healthy visitors can bring germs into the sick room which might complicate the patient's fight against his influenza.

There is not yet a specific preventive against influenza, although medical science continues its search for a protective vaccine. Right now, the best defense we know of against influenza is good personal hygiene, including adequate rest and sleep, a well-balanced diet, and the avoidance of chilling. While observing the rules of good health does not guarantee that influenza will never strike, it lessens the likelihood of contracting the disease.

Will Test Sirens

New York, Jan. 17 (AP)—New York will hold its first citywide test of air-raid sirens at noon Saturday, Jan. 27. Arthur W. Wallander, city civil defense director, said similar tests will be conducted at the same hour each Saturday thereafter. The purpose is to learn whether the sirens and defense communications system operates properly. A drill for all defense workers and civilians is expected later, but for the present workers will not be required to report to their posts, nor will citizens be asked to seek shelter.

Sued for Divorce

Los Angeles, Jan. 17 (AP)—Leslie Charteris, writer of mystery stories, has been sued for divorce by his second wife, Mrs. Elizabeth Bryant Dorst Charteris, former Boston society woman and night club singer.

The couple parted last Dec. 6 and signed a financial settlement a week ago, Mrs. Charteris stated yesterday in her suit. They were married in 1943 in Santa Fe, N. M. She alleged cruelty. Charteris is the creator of the character "The Saint," in his stories and in the films.

Do You Remember

by SOPHIE MILLER

At the Masonic Temple the other evening met Millard Everett, a telegraph operator at the West Shore Station. We didn't know each other by sight, although I had mentioned him a number of times in this column and he had phoned me on the Bottle Neck Telegraph System of West Hurley back in the early 1900's. He said they used the regular Morse code, and had some 14 miles of wire covering every part of the village and its four churches. He is now the only one left alive of the original Bottle Neck Telegraph operators.

He says, his uncle was Charles Everett, who ran a bakery and grocery at corner Main and Wall street, who was also part of their system, and from whom he learned the telegraph operation, but Charles went into another profession later. This hobby brought most of those young fellows their profession for life, and according to Mr. Everett he enjoys it as much today working for the West Shore as he thrilled over it back in 1903 or 4. He said, all the popular girls of the village were given numbers by the young telegraph operators. One he remembers well as No. 22, her name was Grace Miller and she now lives near them right here on Lucas avenue. Everett's code number was KS. Patsy Joyce, another operator, was near the church which Grace attended. So Millard on spotting her would send her code No. 22 that she just passed his house, what she wore, etc. Then Patsy would telegraph back to Millard when she arrived at the church. All popular girls were accounted for all day Sunday by the young telegraphers. That must have been better than a four-party telephone which became popular later.

Does anyone want to buy a Tannery? There is an adv. in "The Ulster Sentinel" printed in Kingston, N. Y., Wednesday, November, 9, 1836 — and owned by Charles O'Connor. "For sale, on reasonable terms, one quarter of the Shandaken Tannery, now in successful operation, with a good stock of bark and leather on hand. Possession will be given immediately. For terms apply to the subscriber, Solomon Carnright." Would they be related to Carnright's Dairy?

Don't think that Cheap Stores, Bargain Stores, or Cut Rate Store is something new and modern, for this 1836 paper as well as others list them often: "Ulster County Cheap Boot and Shoe Store. The largest and cheapest assortment in the County. The subscriber will sell his articles '10 per cent cheaper for cash' than those sold by others in town. He has boots and shoes, consisting in part of men's fine calf and Kip boots, sewed and pegged. Calf, Kip and coarse sewed Brogans for boys and children. Ladies gaiter lasting and Morocco boots. Morocco shoes of all kinds. Kid, lasting and Morocco slippers of every price from 3 to 8s. Also fine boots from 2 to $5.00. Philo J. Prindle. Also an apprentice from 14 to 16 years of age, is wanted. Application to be made immediately." This was just about 60 years after the Revolution and the burning of Kingston to the ground by the British.

Air Force Halts Enlistments

Washington, Jan. 17 (AP)—Because its indoctrination centers are jammed following heavy volunteering, the air force has virtually halted enlistments except by men with previous air force service. Announcing this last night, a spokesman said it is hoped the suspension can be lifted about February 1. Besides accepting personnel with previous experience, the air force is also continuing to accept applicants for the Women's Air Force and young men who have been appointed to aviation cadet courses for pilots and navigators.

Financial and Commercial

New York, Jan. 17 (AP)—The stock market weathered a short, sharp selling shock today before prices started on the rise again.

The market's reaction to the tightening of credit curbs on stock transactions was of feather-erweight proportions.

A selling blast disturbed the market at the opening and lasted for about half an hour. During that short time, a vast majority of leading shares fell from a few cents to around $1.50 a share.

Many issues remained on the downside—but only fractionally and after substantially reducing earlier declines. Numerous others veered over into the plus column and many gains ranging up to $2.25 dotted the list.

Higher were U. S. Steel, Pittsburgh Steel, Goodyear, Zenith Radio, Motorola, Montgomery Ward, Dow Chemical, duPont, Phillip Morris, Pressed Steel Car, New York Central and Lehigh Portland Cement.

Still depressed were Bethlehem Steel, Chrysler, Caterpillar Tractor, Douglas Aircraft, American Smelting, Homestake Mining, American Cyanamid, Santa Fe, Nickel Plate, T.W.A. and McIntyre Porcupine Mining.

The curb exchange was affected even less than the "big board" and plenty of plus signs appeared over the list. Among those higher were Aspinook, Barium Steel, Clarostat, Claude Neon, Raytheon, St. Lawrence Corp., Unexcelled Chemical and Waltham Watch.

Cutback Causes Saugerties Layoff

William W. Stifler, Jr., manager of the Ferroxcube Corp., now in the plant formerly occupied by the General Electric Corp., on East Bridge street, Saugerties, today announced that 12 employes were laid off temporarily yesterday "in connection with a general production cutback."

"Except where specially trained employes could be transferred to other work within the plant," he said, "the employes were laid off within each department on the basis of total length of service with the company."

Began in July

The corporation began operating at the present plant on July 28, 1950 and was employing 52 persons prior to yesterday's layoff.

The layoff was necessary the manager said, because of the general reduction in television set output and because it will take the corporation some time to develop the new molds required for the production of defense equipment.

The company's engineering staff has been working for several months on military applications of the special material manufactured by the company, and has already filled several small defense orders. It is expected that it will be some time before the plant is geared to turn out large quantities of defense items, however.

Cores and Yokes

The material manufactured is a ferrite substance produced by a chemical engineering process. The principal product made of this substance has been transformer cores and picture tube yokes for television sets. The material can be used however in various other types of electronic equipment such as military communications, electronic computers and radar.

Since the cutback the manufacturing department of the plant is continuing to produce core material at a reduced rate and the engineering department is bending every effort to application of the Ferroxcube material.

The company hopes to be able to rehire all of the employes who were laid off as soon as new jobs are available. Those qualified employes, who were with the company the longest before being laid off will be rehired first, Stifler said.

Tough Time in Court

Lakewood, N. J., Jan. 17 (AP)—Magistrate Sidney Zeben had a tough time last night in municipal court. Law books were brought out. The State Motor Vehicle Act didn't cover the charges. Arresting officers couldn't help. Finally, Zeben levied a $10 fine against Martin Dunham as a disorderly person. Dunham had been charged with driving a horse and buggy while under the influence of liquor.

Cars Jump Rails

Syracuse, N. Y., Jan. 17 (AP)—Twenty-four cars of a westbound New York Central freight train jumped the rails four miles west of here today and blocked main line traffic. The railroad said no one was hurt and that the cause of the derailment had not been determined.

38 Arrests Made During Dope Raids

At least 40 detectives and five policewomen participated in the dragnet that started in Brooklyn at dawn yesterday, and continued today.

By midnight there had been 38 arrests, including nine women. All, except one woman, are Negroes.

They were booked on charges of selling morphine, heroin and cocaine, much of it to school children.

Police were reluctant to disclose immediately the names of those arrested, on the theory that other suspects and ring leaders might be tipped off.

Police Commissioner Thomas F. Murphy aided in questioning the suspects, all nabbed in the Bedford-Stuyvesant Negro section of Brooklyn.

The raids were staged after a four-month investigation by policemen and policewomen posing as dope-addicted laborers, students, sidewalk vendors and teachers.

None of these agents took part in the raids, but police said all those arrested had sold narcotics to one or more of the disguised police.

Police confiscated large quantities of dope and cash and several weapons.

Arrests were made in homes, drug stores, candy shops, taverns and on street corners.

In a separate police action in the Bronx, two men were held in $10,000 bail each yesterday on charges of selling narcotics to school children. The two, arrested Monday, are Lloyd Sackey, 19, and Amato Perez, 27.

More Chilly Weather

Chicago, Jan. 17 (AP) — The southeast states had more chilly weather today as the central part of the country enjoyed a January mild spell. Temperatures dropped to near freezing in Florida —a reading of 35 at Jacksonville, while the early morning low at Miami was 47. The coldest weather was in the northern plains and in the New England states. Fair weather was reported over most of the country. Rain fell along the Pacific coast from San Francisco northward and there was snow inland to northern Idaho and western Montana.

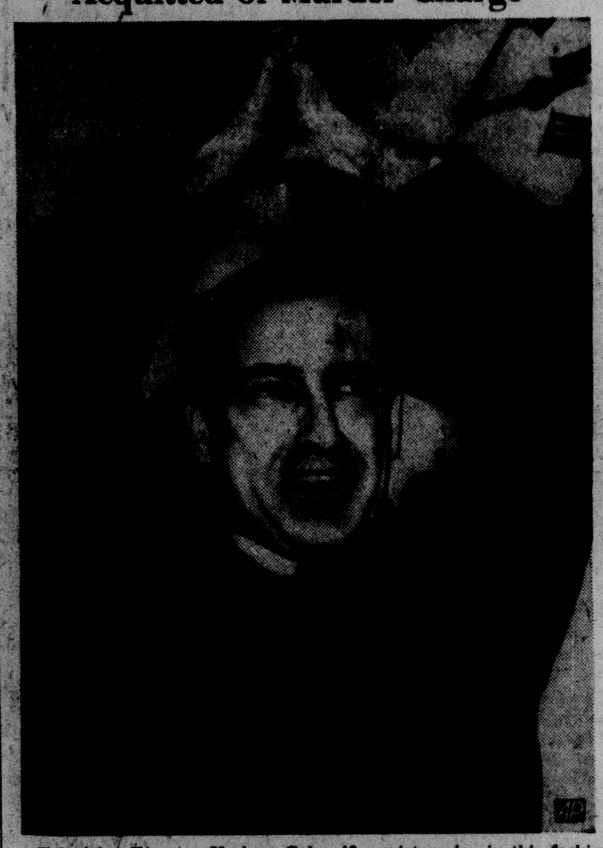
Acquitted of Murder Charge



Television Director Herbert Gehr, 40, registers joy in this fashion in Carmel, N. Y., after being acquitted of charges that he killed his wife when she surprised him in a secluded mountain cabin with another woman. The jury deliberated two hours and 21 minutes. Gehr had been accused of second-degree murder in the fatal shooting of his 21-year-old wife, Andrea, last July 10.

Gehr Is Innocent, Jury Considers, in Shooting of Wife

Carmel, N. Y., Jan. 17 (AP)—A jury found television director Herbert Gehr innocent yesterday of murdering his wife outside a mountain cabin where he was week-ending with another woman.

By the acquittal verdict, the jurors indicated they accepted Gehr's contention that the predawn shooting was accidental.

The handsome, 40-year-old director could have drawn life in prison if convicted under the second degree murder indictment.

When the panel announced its "not guilty" verdict after two hours and 21 minutes of deliberation, Gehr broke down momentarily. He recovered his composure and thanked the Putnam county jurors individually.

Applause broke out in the courtroom, and one spectator shouted: "Be good to your kids."

Gehr, the father of two daughters, was judged by a jury of seven mothers and five married men.

Mrs. Dorothea Matthews, 31, the trim and sultry other woman in the case, was absent from the courtroom for the climax of the drama that started last July 10.

That was the night Gehr's wife, Andrea, 31, led private detectives to her husband's cabin near Brewster, N. Y., in search of divorce evidence.

Shot at 'Prowlers'

Gehr, who admitted shooting his wife, said he thought the divorce raiders were "prowlers," and that he fired through the cottage screen door with no idea that his wife was outside.

Mrs. Matthews, a red-haired divorcee, testified for the state. But even the prosecution admitted she was on Gehr's side. She said she was at the cabin to care for Gehr's children.

Mrs. Matthews was divorced after the shooting from Mark Matthews, a New York messenger service executive. Her own divorce followed a series of sensational bedroom raids and spicy accusations.

There had been rumors that Gehr, formerly a Hollywood photographer as well as New York TV director, would marry Mrs. Matthews if acquitted. But yesterday he said he does not plan to wed her.

Didn't Prove Motive

In his one-hour charge to the jury, Judge John P. Donohoe said the state had not proved any motive for the killing.

"If you reach the conclusion that the taking of the life of this woman was justifiable or excusable, then your verdict must be not guilty," he said.

Gehr's two children, who had been staying with his mother in Forest Hills, New York city, planted enthusiastic kisses on their father's cheeks when he returned to them last night.

"Daddy, daddy," 7-year-old Ingrid and 4-year-old Claudia screamed in glee as he told them today would be a holiday.

Both girls had been told Gehr was "away on a trip" while he was in the Carmel jail during the trial.

They still believe their mother was killed in an auto accident.

Po'keepsie Man Held for Assault

Investigation of the reported attempt to molest Mrs. Mary A. DuBois, of 64 Broadway, on Post street late Monday night resulted in the arrest yesterday at Poughkeepsie of Raymond LeFevre, 37, of 132 Church street, Poughkeepsie on a charge of assault, third degree.

The case was adjourned until Saturday to allow LeFevre time to obtain counsel when he appeared before City Judge Raymond J. Mino today. Bail was fixed at $500 cash.

Detectives Clarence Brophy and William Krum executed the warrant in Poughkeepsie yesterday afternoon through co-operation of the police there.

The investigation followed a report by Joseph Qualtere, 1 Post street at 11:50 p. m., Monday that a man had attempted to molest Mrs. DuBois as she was returning with Joseph's mother, Mrs. Rose Qualtere, from visiting a friend at the Benedictine Hospital.

It is charged that the defendant grabbed Mrs. DuBois by the right leg and "made a motion as if to strike her."

Qualtere said he came out of the house at the time and the man ran, got into a truck and drove towards the Rondout creek bridge. Police said a description and trade name on the truck led to the arrest at Poughkeepsie.

Credit Curbs Tightened On Stock Market Trades

Washington, Jan. 17 (AP)—Credit curbs were tightened on stock market transactions today in a broadening of the government's anti-inflation campaign.

The cash down payment required on purchases or short sales of stock was upped from 50 to 75 per cent of the price by a Federal Reserve Board order issued last night.

That is stiffer than other credit curbs laid down since the Korean war began. Other controls require a top down payment of 50 per cent on houses, 33 1/3 per cent on automobiles, and 25 per cent on most major household goods.

Some Wall Streeters expressed doubt the order would have much effect on the stock market, which has been on the rise since June, 1949.

The change decreed by the board in down payment requirements was the first since March 29, 1949, when it reduced the down payment from 75 to 50 per cent amidst a general easing of credit curbs.

38 Arrests Made During Dope Raids

New York, Jan. 17 (AP)—Dozens of alleged dope peddlers have been rounded up in what officials called "the largest concentrated raids" in many years.

At least 40 detectives and five policewomen participated in the dragnet that started in Brooklyn at dawn yesterday, and continued today.

By midnight there had been 38 arrests, including nine women. All, except one woman, are Negroes.

They were booked on charges of selling morphine, heroin and cocaine, much of it to school children.

Police were reluctant to disclose immediately the names of those arrested, on the theory that other suspects and ring leaders might be tipped off.

Police Commissioner Thomas F. Murphy aided in questioning the suspects, all nabbed in the Bedford-Stuyvesant Negro section of Brooklyn.

The raids were staged after a four-month investigation by policemen and policewomen posing as dope-addicted laborers, students, sidewalk vendors and teachers.

None of these agents took part in the raids, but police said all those arrested had sold narcotics to one or more of the disguised police.

Police confiscated large quantities of dope and cash and several weapons.

Arrests were made in homes, drug stores, candy shops, taverns and on street corners.

In a separate police action in the Bronx, two men were held in $10,000 bail each yesterday on charges of selling narcotics to school children. The two, arrested Monday, are Lloyd Sackey, 19, and Amato Perez, 27.

More Chilly Weather

Chicago, Jan. 17 (AP)—The southeast states had more chilly weather today as the central part of the country enjoyed a January mild spell. Temperatures dropped to near freezing in Florida—a reading of 35 at Jacksonville, while the early morning low at Miami was 47. The coldest weather was in the northern plains and in the New England states. Fair weather was reported over most of the country. Rain fell along the Pacific coast from San Francisco northward and there was snow inland to northern Idaho and western Montana.

Acquitted of Murder Charge

Television Director Herbert Gehr, 40, registers joy in this fashion in Carmel, N. Y., after being acquitted of charges that he killed his wife when she surprised him in a secluded mountain cabin with another woman. The jury deliberated two hours and 21 minutes. Gehr had been accused of second-degree murder in the fatal shooting of his 21-year-old wife, Andrea, last July 10.

Gehr Is Innocent, Jury Considers, in Shooting of Wife

Carmel, N. Y., Jan. 17 (AP)—A jury found television director Herbert Gehr innocent yesterday of murdering his wife outside a mountain cabin where he was week-ending with another woman.

By the acquittal verdict, the jurors indicated they accepted Gehr's contention that the predawn shooting was accidental.

The handsome, 40-year-old director could have drawn life in prison if convicted under the second degree murder indictment.

When the panel announced its "not guilty" verdict after two hours and 21 minutes of deliberation, Gehr broke down momentarily. He recovered his composure and thanked the Putnam county jurors individually.

Applause broke out in the courtroom, and one spectator shouted: "Be good to your kids."

Gehr, the father of two daughters, was judged by a jury of seven mothers and five married men.

Mrs. Dorothea Matthews, 31, the trim and sultry other woman in the case, was absent from the courtroom for the climax of the drama that started last July 10.

That was the night Gehr's wife, Andrea, 31, led private detectives to her husband's cabin near Brewster, N. Y., in search of divorce evidence.

Shot at 'Prowlers'

Gehr, who admitted shooting his wife, said he thought the divorce raiders were "prowlers," and that he fired through the cottage screen door with no idea that his wife was outside.

Mrs. Matthews, a red-haired divorcee, testified for the state. But even the prosecution admitted she was on Gehr's side. She said she was at the cabin to care for Gehr's children.

Mrs. Matthews was divorced after the shooting from Mark Matthews, a New York messenger service executive. Her own divorce followed a series of sensational bedroom raids and spicy accusations.

There had been rumors that Gehr, formerly a Hollywood photographer as well as New York TV director, would marry Mrs. Matthews if acquitted. But yesterday he said he does not plan to wed her.

Didn't Prove Motive

In his one-hour charge to the jury, Judge John P. Donohoe said the state had not proved any motive for the killing.

"If you reach the conclusion that the taking of the life of this woman was justifiable or excusable, then your verdict must be not guilty," he said.

Gehr's two children, who had been staying with his mother in Forest Hills, New York city, planted enthusiastic kisses on their father's cheeks when he returned to them last night.

"Daddy, daddy," 7-year-old Ingrid and 4-year-old Claudia screamed in glee as he told them today would be a holiday.

Both girls had been told Gehr was "away on a trip" while he was in the Carmel jail during the trial.

They still believe their mother was killed in an auto accident.

Homes Are Destroyed

Manila, Jan. 17 (AP)—Fire that broke out in a movie projection room destroyed five blocks of homes last night in Sariaya, Quezon province, about 60 miles southeast of Manila. Authorities estimated damage at $750,000 (U. S.).

Po'keepsie Man Held for Assault

Investigation of the reported attempt to molest Mrs. Mary A. DuBois, of 64 Broadway, on Post street late Monday night resulted in the arrest yesterday at Poughkeepsie of Raymond LeFevre, 37, of 132 Church street, Poughkeepsie on a charge of assault, third degree.

The case was adjourned until Saturday to allow LeFevre time to obtain counsel when he appeared before City Judge Raymond J. Mino today. Bail was fixed at $500 cash.

Detectives Clarence Brophy and William Krum executed the warrant in Poughkeepsie yesterday afternoon through co-operation of the police there.

The investigation followed a report by Joseph Qualtere, 1 Post street at 11:50 p. m., Monday that a man had attempted to molest Mrs. DuBois as she was returning with Joseph's mother, Mrs. Rose Qualtere, from visiting a friend at the Benedictine Hospital.

It is charged that the defendant grabbed Mrs. DuBois by the right leg and "made a motion as if to strike her."

Qualtere said he came out of the house at the time and the man ran, got into a truck and drove towards the Rondout creek bridge. Police said a description and trade name on the truck led to the arrest at Poughkeepsie.

Credit Curbs Tightened On Stock Market Trades

Washington, Jan. 17 (AP)—Credit curbs were tightened on stock market transactions today in a broadening of the government's anti-inflation campaign.

That is stiffer than other credit curbs laid down since the Korean war began. Other controls require a top down payment of 50 per cent on houses, 33 1/3 per cent on automobiles, and 25 per cent on most major household goods.
